

GAME POSTPONED

Omaha Team Will Play Here on April 20 and 21.

The wet weather yesterday finally resulted in the postponement of the third game of the series against the Omaha Western League team. Manager Bell succeeded, however, in scheduling two games with the leaguers to take the places of the one lost yesterday, so that the loss has really turned out to be a gain for the University. The games will be played on the Campus Wednesday and Thursday, April 20 and 21.

This will be welcome news to the University fans. It will mean, however, that strenuous practice must be held during the next two weeks if we are again to expect victory over the Omahogs. The league team left last night over the Burlington for Omaha, where they play a game today, and meet the Chicago team next Sunday. They will probably meet other swif company before returning to Lincoln and will be in much better condition to play good ball than at present.

In the meanwhile the University will arrange meets with such local teams as can be accommodated. The next games on the schedule are with the Nebraska Indians next Friday and Saturday. The Indians are already in town—the most of them—and will begin daily practice immediately at the F. & M. park. Several of last year's team are back, which should permit the Aborigines to get into shape with unusual rapidity. They also have Archiquette, the famous left end, who played with the Haskell Indian football team during the past two years. He will play first base.

The report has in some unknown manner gained considerable circulation that "Billy" Wilson, Nebraska's crack firstbaseman last year would register in the University this spring in time to get into the game again. Captain Townsend stated to a Nebraskan reporter last night, that this report is without foundation, although efforts have been made to get Wilson on the team for the coming season. He left the city last evening, moreover, and will probably not return until the football seasons opens next fall.

In track athletics work is progressing as well as the weather will permit.

About thirty men have been out every afternoon and several show signs of record-breaking ability.

Pennrod and Searles are showing up well in the long distance runs. In the sprints, Smith, Bowman, Nelder and Bender show remarkable ability.

There will be great competition among the hurdlers, as Houser, Edger-ton, Mouck and Hagensick are all fast men.

The University will meet the Lincoln high school team on April 23 at the F. & M. park.

On May 20 the annual interscholastic meet will be held on the University campus.

The girls' basket ball team put in a hard practice last evening. They hope to win from Minnesota on their home floor. Their goal throwing is excellent and with good team work they certainly will show the Northerners a "warm time."

The management of the Ladies' Min-strel has secured the Oliver for April 30, and the performance will take place on that night. This is a University affair, and University people will do well to keep this date open.

The eight members of the squad on whom the University has conferred the honor of representing its brains and culture in the intellectual contests of the year are given above. For this honor the competition has been unusually spirited this year. It has been the culmination of a series of steps beginning with the preliminaries when the candidates for places on the squad were chosen. Since the preliminary the men have been working away in the squad under Professor Fogg's supervision, in investigating, getting evidence and weighing it, and round table discussion, and also in regular debates, of which there has been some half dozen in the past two weeks.

The posting of the bulletin yesterday morning aroused much interest among the students in general, as a group of them could be seen reading the list of fortunate candidates at almost any time. A previous bulletin had been posted stating that the two teams would be announced at 11:30, and in anticipation of this a large throng was assembled at the appointed hour.

The teams will now settle down to drawing out together the case out of the mass of material at hand, and in forging the thunderbolts that will be hurled against Kansas and Washington. Kansas will be met in Memorial hall three weeks from tonight, this date having been announced as definite.

The second teams from now on will pose as the Kansas and Washington teams, and will serve in the absolutely necessary function of grindstones. The teams are a composite of old and new material, the seasoned and the untried.

E. R. Buckner is a Phi Beta Kappa man, having been one of the trio of Nebraska debaters who showed themselves superior in scholarship. He participated in the massacre of Kansas last year in April, at Lawrence, this being his first attempt on an interstate team. He is from Oklahoma.

L. C. Lightner appears on an interstate team for the first time. Last year he was a member of the second team against Kansas. He hails from Columbus.

Charles A. Sawyer is from Lincoln, and this will also be his first appearance in interstate debate. He took the training last year in argumentation and the first semester of this year in debate.

R. C. James was a member of the Kansas team last year. His home is at Dunbar.

Geo. A. Lee is from Humboldt, and he captured a P. B. K. last year. He has a long record in inter-state debate, and this will make his third battle for Nebraska. He debated against Missouri in 1901, and was an alternate against that University in 1902. He was also in at the finish of Kansas last year.

Burdette Lewis is a graduate of the Omaha high school, and has had long training in inter-scholastic debate. He was a member of the team that was to have met Colorado last year, but the contest was called off.

J. C. McReynolds is a Lincoln man, and he made the squad last year upon his first attempt and was an alternate on the Missouri team.

John I. Clark is having first experience on the squad. He comes from Columbus.

The merchants of Lawrence, Kan., have offered the University of Kansas an annual prize of $100 for excellence in public speaking.

The announcement of the elective courses at Yale for the coming year shows that the number of these courses has been decreased by fifteen. There are now only 249 electives offered. Those which have been done away with were expensive courses that only a few students took.

Y. W. C. A. Notes.

The old and new cabinets and the sub-chairmen will meet Saturday 1:30 to 3:30 p. m., in the Y. W. C. A. to organize the work for the coming year.

The Sunday meeting needs no further advertisement than the name of Miss Woodmas. She is known everyone as a charming speaker and no girl should fail to hear her, Sunday 3 p. m., U. 106.

Faculty members, students and all lovers of good things to eat are requested to save themselves for the elegant, appetizing annual May morning breakfast to be served by the Y. W. C. A.

Last Saturday evening the Y. W. C. A. room was the scene of a novel house party. Under the touch of a few girls who are very fond of house cleaning the dust disappeared as if by magic and the general disorder gave place to a tasteful arrangement of pictures, books, screens and cushions.

In connection there was a lawn party out on the campus and several girls clad in gowns and caps of which an old southern Mammy would be proud were exercising the muscles developed on the gym floor, and the big dusty rug soon looked as though it had found the fount of perpetual youth.

There was plenty of candy and merriment afterwards for the girls, who demonstrated that there are several ways of spending part of a vacation.

GIVES A REPORT

Prof. Barber Talks on Convention of Educators at Chicago.

Professor Barber gave a very interesting report on the convention of the Northwestern Association of Colleges and Accredited Schools, to which he was a delegate from Nebraska. He said in part:

"This organization was started nine years ago, being designed to meet the demands that could not be satisfied by state association or national organizations. Its purpose is to meet the peculiar conditions that prevail in this strip of country between the Rocky mountains on the west and the state of Ohio on the east, comprising the states of Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Michigan, Wisconsin, Minnesota, Nebraska, Missouri, Kansas, Iowa and the Dakotas. This convention meets once each year, and discussion the educational system and needs of their territory, which are distinctly different from other sections."

After these preliminary remarks, which gave a full outline of the purpose and intention of this annual convention he commented upon the address of the first speaker, ex-President Draper, of Illinois University, whose subject was "Government in American Universities," the comment being as follows: "The key note of the address was that of freedom in all lines of college government from the chief executives to the student body. There should be no political strings wound around the college president; he should not have his seat as a result of political wire-pulling. The same law should be applied to positions held by the members of the faculty.

"Freedom should exist among the teachers to exercise their own judgment in the manner and matter, and their teaching with but one restriction, said President Draper, 'That they should not in classes talk for the public and talk like a fool at that.' He emphasized the fact that students should also have abundant freedom that they might feel some added responsibility and be given plenty of liberty and treated as ladies and gentlemen."

Following this review of the first address he turned to the athletic phase of the convention, which was some what abbreviated because the time was lacking.

It seemed evident, however, that there was a general concurrence in favor of good clean college athletics and all entered freely into an earnest discussion championing this as a necessary addition to the college course. The resolutions that were adopted by these representative educators with reference to college athletics were read. Among them were some well formulated regulations which will act in raising the present standard and stifle the tendency towards professionalism. Among the points touched upon in the resolution were the requisition that students must attend an institution one year before he would be eligible to represent it in any collegiate meet, and that Universities should be discouraged in trying to induce undergraduates of the high schools to enter because of their ability in athletics.

Among the other things that were discussed was the endowments for players. This was considered as extremely unfair, and any institution should be isolated for it. At the close some of the receipts and expenditures in athletics for the different institutions were commented upon, and it was demonstrated that most all of them were in possession of a small surplus for the year's business, with the exception of Nebraska, whose account was somewhat embarrassing.

The report was a good one, but time prevented a complete detailed account.
