RALLY IN EIGHTH

Uni Snatches Game From Indians In Up-Hill Fight.

By a sensational batting rally in the eighth inning yesterday afternoon Nebraska turned the tide that had set in strong against her and wrenched the game from the grasp of their dusky opponents. For four innings our batters were helpless against the pitching of Snow, only one hit being secured in all that time. But in the fifth inning they got into the game and gained their first start in their uphill fight for victory. Having gained a start they forged along until the eighth inning, when six men crossed the plate with the scores that brought grief to the Indians.

The day was anything but an ideal one for a baseball game. A cold breeze caused the spectators to shiver, and chilled the players at the start, although they warmed up as the game progressed. A fair-sized crowd was present, but what was lacking in numbers was compensated for by the rooting. Enthusiasm was maintained during the entire game, and in the eighth inning, when the winning runs were coming in, it burst into a demonstration of the wildest order.

One thing especially to the credit of our men was that they did not become discouraged at the heavy odds scored against them at the start. They played the whole game with determination, and it was their pluck that won out for them. On the other hand the Indians could not stand adversity, this being their characteristic failing.

At the beginning of the game Snow, the big man who pitched for the Indians, made a wonderful manifestation of fast throwing, and for a while he was almost "untouchable." Steen and Bender fell victims to his curves, and Townsend was thrown out at first. The Indians started out with a whoop and flourish, and for a while there was no telling where they would stop. Every ball that came over the plate looked as big as a balloon to them, and they smashed 'em out in heartrending fashion. A number of bad errors crept in to help them, and they had everything their own way. Six men made the trip around the diamond before the inning was ended.

In the second the Cornhuskers went out in order, although Williams got as far as third on a scorching right. The Indians did no better, as they failed to get a man to first base.

Morse, Bender and Hammel succeeded each in getting to first in the third, and although at one time two men were on bases, the necessary hit was not forthcoming, and another frigid zero was chalked up for our team. In their half the Indians got one run, Rapp coming from third on a throw to second to catch the runner, which was not returned quickly enough.

Fenlon got to first in the fourth and Williams sacrificed him to second, but he succeeded in getting no farther. The Indians also drew a blank.

In the fifth the Cornhuskers broke the ice. Morse and Bender were both brought in by a sharp three-bagger by Steen, and thereupon the hopes of the rooters began to rise and even then they felt a presentiment that their men would win out. In their half of this inning the Indians went out in order.

Cooke scored in the sixth and the performance was repeated in the seventh, during which time the Indians were idle with the stick. Ketchum in center made a beautiful catch off of Bender's bat.

The eighth inning opened with the score 7 to 4 against our team. The crowd began to feel that there was some hope yet, and became quite vociferous in encouraging the boys to go in and win out. As the storm burst with the greatest fury, and the Indians became disheartened, but even if they had not it is a question if they could have stopped that awful batting rally. Cooke got a pass to first, Hammel reached first on an error by the shortstop; Morse got his base on balls, so all the bases were full with only one man out. Bender lined one to right which scored the first two. Steen batted to pitcher and Morse slid in while the catcher dropped the ball.

Townsend then located one of Snow's curves and sent the ball into right field for a home run and two scores were made.

In the first half of the ninth the Indians tried hard, but could not make good. Rapp hit out a nice one, but the next three men perished in quick succession. Snow had a chance to help himself some, and he drove a long fly along the rightfield foul line, which the wind despoiled by carrying it over to the bad side. He got to second before he realized how the matter stood and then came back and struck out. Fenlon was an easy out from pitcher to first and the game was over. Score 10 to 7.

Everyone agreed that the game was a remarkable one, and was impressed with the splendid uphill fight made by the Cornhuskers. The bad start our boys made would have discouraged many teams, and it is to their credit that they kept cool and won out.

Nebraska made seven hits and seven errors. The outfield play was not as good as it might have been, and it is to be hoped that with better weather and more practice the fielders will improve in their work. Yet no man deserved to be slammed for anything he did yesterday. It is better to praise their good work as is merited.

Morse pitched a good game, keeping his head at all the critical stages of the game. Steen, Townsend, Bender, and Williams led in the batting. Miller made a good catch of a long drive into his territory and doubled a man at first.

The teams will line up again this afternoon, and we hope the weather will be more propitious.

The Indians have proven that they know how to play ball, as yesterday's game amply proved. Toby will pitch for them and Adams is slated to twirl for the Cornhuskers.

Following is the graphic story of the game:

The Law baseball team went down to Roca yesterday to meet the first team of that place, and return victorious by a score of 10 to 7. A heavy wind was blowing, which hindered the players greatly, but nevertheless they put up a good game and showed up strongly whenever their opponents began to encroach upon them. They played and batted well, as did also their opponents. Sampson pitched a good game for the Laws. "Willie" Wilson's brother pitched for Roca and did well. Sampson and Barta was the battery for the Laws and Wilson and Hartz for Roca.

WILL PLAY TENNIS.

Minnesota and Nebraska Girls Will Battle With Racquets.

Saturday morning, April 23, the girls of Minnesota and Nebraska will meet on the tennis courts of Minnesota in an inter-collegiate tournament. Minnesota's lady champion, Miss Emily Johnston, who is guard on the Minnesota girls' basket ball team, will meet Miss Inez Everett, who is a guard on our girls' team, and the champion of the handicap at the Country club last fall. It is possible that some sort of a trophy will be offered for the winner of the match.

Nebraska girls have never had any tennis nor town events. Miss Everett is about the only one who has achieved any distinction at all in the game, but it is probable that she will represent Nebraska with credit. There are hopes that the near future may see the establishment of a girls' tennis association here, the chief present difficulty being the lack of enough courts on the campus.

The men's tennis meet with Minnesota is still in the air. No definite assurance has been received from their tennis manager, but as he is the manager of the girls' basket ball team also, and will accompany it on its coming visit to Nebraska, it is expected that the matter may be arranged at that time. The membership of the club at present numbers over thirty, with prospects of increasing to nearly fifty in the near future. A meet with Minnesota would doubtless be a big success.

DISLIKE THE CAPS

Upper Classmen Declare Against Their Having Caps.

The recent almost unprecedented action of the Freshman class in deciding to wear class caps this spring, has begun to call forth some decidedly strenuous comment from Sophomores and upper classmen. The other classes almost as a unit resent bitterly what they are pleased to term the "freshness of the Freshies." While we have made no effort to interview anyone on the question discussion of it has become so frequent that we are enabled to present to our readers some of the most representative and significant views that are held by several of the prominent men of the University.

In the opposition which is being shown to the presumption of the first-year men it is interesting to say the least, that it is not the Sophs who are taking the most decided stand in the matter. While of course the Sophomore class may be depended upon to take stringent measures when once the caps arrive, for the present they seem to be keeping pretty quiet. But it is the dignified Seniors who are entering the most effective and heart-felt kicks against the Freshmen. One of the foremost leaders of the Senior class stated in conversation yesterday that the Senior class was prepared if necessary, to appoint committees to stand at the various gates on the campus and pinch the caps as fast as they arrived. Another Senior who was not present at this conversation approved of the scheme most emphatically when informed of it. "The Freshmen," he said, "are assuming privileges to which they have absolutely no right, and which insult the most ancient traditions of the University. The Freshmen may get caps, and wear them once—just once. That's all. I am prepared to vote for the proposed vigilance committees, and will do anything I can to carry their purpose into effect."

A prominent Junior took a somewhat less serious view of the matter, but was likewise determined that the first-year men should not be permitted to wear class insignia. A Sophomore considered the matter as too "idiotic" for his notice. He merely stated that the Freshmen would never wear caps as long as the Sophomore class was extant.

We interviewed a Freshman on the subject and secured a very able defence of their position. "The Freshman class," he said, "has the same right as any other organization to wear distinguishing insignia. In fact we have a greater right, if anything, than any other class in the University. Just remember for a minute who it is that swells the crowds at the football and baseball games. What class has the most class spirit in our school? The work we do in the University is more important than that of any other class. Our class is much larger than any other. We have an organization. We supply a large percent of the athletics. We are the most patriotic body in school. It is ridiculous that the other classes should object to our wearing some distinguishing and symbolic badge of our organization. If it is against precedent, as everyone seems to think, it does not alter the question. Such a precedent as that should not be permitted to stand, and I am of the opinion that the class of '07 will be the one to destroy it."

Meetings of the Sophomore and Senior classes have been announced for Monday, when it is possible that some action may be taken against the "class of '07." No Junior announcement has as yet been made.
