Editorial Remarks

We wish to call the attention of our subscribers to the changes we have made in our method of delivering the papers.

Instead of making the subscribers line up and wait while the papers are given out at chapel time, we will address all of them and send them directly to subscribers through the Station "A" postoffice, along with other student mail, and we ask our subscribers to call there and get them.

As soon as our system is thoroughly organized and arranged, the papers will be ready for distribution at the postoffice by the time the 10 o'clock classes are out. This will avoid the confusion and crowding which was always a part of our former system, and subscribers can have their papers at any time after 10 o'clock.

We feel that this system will be of especial interest to our young lady subscribers, who naturally enough feel rather shy at standing in line and being pushed and jostled back and forth by the crowd, who are so eager to get their morning "rag."

We take this opportunity of asking the faculty subscribers and stockholders to pardon our delay in getting their papers delivered to them. Since the installation of a mail carrier at the university, it is no longer possible for us to send the faculty papers through the postoffice, except to those who have postoffice boxes. To the remaining members we will be obliged to deliver the papers by a special carrier of our own, and this change in system necessarily makes some delay, as it is no easy matter to find the offices of the several members. Those who are not receiving the paper regularly by this time will confer a favor upon us by notifying the manager, or circulator, and stating at what place they wish their paper delivered.

MINOR FACULTY CHANGES.

Several Professors Have Left the University.—Others Added.

The department of mathematics has lost two of its strongest men by the resignation of Professor Moritz, who goes to the University of Washington, and the transfer of Professor Hodgman to the position of inspector of accredited high schools, which was formerly held by Prof. J. W. Crabtree, now principal of the state normal school at Peru. Professor Hodgman still retains the directorship of the summer session, also, and will continue to take an active part in the affairs of the university as principal of the Lincoln Academy.

The following article in regard to Professor Moritz was published in the Lincoln Daily Star at the time of his departure for Seattle, last month:

"Professor Moritz came to Nebraska University in 1898 from Hastings college, being attracted to the state institution because of the library and laboratory facilities. He is an instructor of extended learning and his departure from Nebraska is considered a distinct loss by the school. Professor Moritz has been secretary of the mathematical seminar, director of the mathematics of the mechanics art school and lecturer on the pedagogy and history of mathematics, the latter course being organized especially by Professor Moritz on his return to this country from Europe several years ago.

"Professor Moritz has written a large number of papers of world-wide interest to mathematicians. Several have been kept by the Smithsonian institution at Washington, D. C. Professor Moritz had two articles in the Popular Science Monthly of October, 1903, and June, 1904, and a third was published in the July number of the University Studies.

"He spent six years in post graduate work in Nebraska, Chicago, Strassburg, Goettingen and Earls universities, specializing in mathematics, physics and astronomy. Besides the bachelor's degree in science—B. Sc.—he received the master's degree in philosophy from Chicago University, the doctor's degree in philosophy from Nebraska University and the doctor's degree in natural philosophy from Strassburg University. He is the author of numerous memoirs and papers, among them being "The Generalization of the Differentiation Process," published in the American Journal of Mathematics, July, 1902, and a thesis in German on continuants, published by Fr. Kaestner, Goettingen, Germany. The first of these has been pronounced by critics one of the important American contributions to pure mathematics. Another paper contains the shortest and simplest proof that the famous "Squaring of the Circle" problem is impossible. This paper was published in the January number of the Annals of Mathematics.

Professor Moritz will be at the head of the department of Mathematics at his new location.

Mr. Congdon, also of the department of mathematics, has left for his home in Omaha, severing his connection with the university. Miss Puffer is on leave of absence, studying at Radcliffe college. Miss Mary E. Sinclair, M. A. University of Chicago, and Messrs. Charles Hagenow, W. V. Lovitt and C. K. Paine, all old U. of N. men, have been added to the department.

Professor C. C. Arbuthnot, formerly of the department of political economy, has resigned his position here to take an advanced position at Western Reserve University. Mr. U. S. Parker, a graduate of the University of Nebraska, who has also studied at Harvard and Chicago, has taken Dr. Arbuthnot's work here.

Miss Cora Wise, '03, and Miss Elva Sly, '03, have been added to the teaching force of the department of German. Mr. Peter Thompson, Miss Shields and Miss Kingsbury have left the department. Miss Shields is teaching German in the Omaha high school, and Miss Kingsbury has accepted a position in Kenyon college, her alma mater.

Prof. Edwin F. Piper, for several years one of the most popular instructors in the English department, has returned to the university, after a year's work at Harvard. Prof. C. W. Wallace, of the department of English literature, is on a leave of absence, studying in Europe.

Professor Price of the department of mechanical drawing, is back after a year's leave of absence. Mr. R. H. Heaton, who will graduate from the university next spring, has also been added to the teaching force of the department.
