Academy Notes.

The chapel exercises take place at 9:50 Monday mornings. This, it is true, gives little time for the religious exercises and the necessary announcements, but seems the only thing possible under the new convocation hours at the university. It would not do to cut out the devotional part from the Academy chapel, for, as the students observe, it has been so thoroughly eliminated from the university exercises that Freeman, the atheist of supreme court fame, could not take offense.

Yesterday Manager H. G. Myers gave a short talk on the brightening prospects of the football team; from fifteen to twenty men have come out for practice each night the past two weeks on the Temple lots at the corner of Twelfth and R streets. If only the boys had weight (beef, you know), Omaha and York would not look so formidable. An effort was also made at chapel yesterday to sell tickets for the University faculty circus, but it is difficult to interest students not personally acquainted with the faculty sprinters, acrobats and clowns. Did they but know that the principal was nerving himself to make the pull of his life on the tug-of-war sales might increase at Miss McGahey's desk.

The convenience of having some one always at the office is appreciated by parents and students. A telephone now is needed.

A new Smith Premier typewriter has been added to the office equipment in anticipation of an increasing correspondence in connection with the new home study courses now approaching completion. Dr. Sherman and Professor Stuff have finished the first of the twelve lessons in the elementary English course and this lesson is being mimeographed this week. Professors Caldwell, Persinger and Aylsworth are farther advanced in the American history course, so that by the end of the week the printers can go to work on the prospectus of these courses. The first half of each course will be mimeographed so that possible errors and ambiguous questions can be corrected before the lessons are printed. Should these courses meet the approval of Nebraska teachers, others will be inaugurated next year.

The ringing of the electric bells nearly threw the faculty and students into convulsions so strange seemed the sounds. After the final shock of surprise the school settled down to genuine enjoyment of the convenience.

The new oak bookcase for reference texts has arrived and will be filled this week.

Miss Mitchell has been treated to a new demonstration table for her physics class. Now if a student does not understand an experiment he will be laid upon the new table, weights attached to head and feet, the backbone stretched and the idea driven in between the vertebrae.

The principal has received, with the author's compliments, a copy of Miss Elizabeth Kingsbury's new edition of Ernst's Flachmann als Erzieher. It is published by Ginn & Co. and comes as a pleasing reminder to academy people of a teacher greatly loved by all.

Miss Dean and Mrs. Hodgman have been greatly enjoying their calls upon the young women the past week. The first meeting of the Social Hour Club will occur next Monday night at six o'clock at the home of Mrs. Hodgman, 700 North Sixteenth street. It will be a buffet supper and all young women and the women teachers are cordially invited.

Miss Josephine Blixt has been compelled, through ill health, to leave her university and academy work and go to Colorado.

Four new students registered for work the first few days. This makes the registration exceed two hundred, slightly, and with the new arrivals of the second semester insures a larger enrollment than last year. An observer would say the attendance had greatly increased judging from the size of the classes but this arises from the increase of students taking full work in the Academy.

A meeting of the Sophomore class is called for Tuesday at chapel time. The selection of class caps will be the main business. A neat blue cap with '07 in tinsel is to be presented by the committee.
