Editorial Remarks

The Nebraskan is glad to notice a lack of any perturbation on the part of the supporters of the scarlet and cream, over the result of the Minnesota-Grinnell contest last Saturday. If it was the intention of the Gophers to intimidate Nebraska by the size of the score in the Grinnell game, they have overdone the thing. We do not mean to assert that Minnesota has not a strong team, or that the Cornhuskers will have an easy time in defeating them, but we do maintain that no unusual anxiety is to be felt on account of the ridiculous score that the Northerners managed to pile up. Two years ago, it will be remembered, Nebraska defeated Grinnell by a score of only 17-0. Minnesota walloped the Iowans minutes of play. Benedict kicked goal. The second touchdown came in the same manner, the ball being carried down by line plunges and end runs and then given to Bender again, who made the second touchdown. Goal was missed. The third touchdown came as a result of a beautiful run by Benedict from a double pass. The Knox man back of the line was not enough to stop him and Bennie planted the pigskin behind the goal line. The ball was kicked out, but a strong wind rendered the goal a difficult one, and again the ball went wide. Time was called with the ball on Knox's 25-yard line. The first touchdown of the second half was a repetition of the first of the first half, Bender carrying the ball over the goal line after a series of line bucks, and end dashes had worked it well down the field. Barwick tried his foot at kicking goal this half, and succeeded in sending the ball over the cross arm for another point. Knox couldn't gain the required distance from the kickoff and again Benedict fooled them on a double pass, and again eluded the only Knox man barring his way and after a run of fifty yards added another touchdown to his credit, and again Barwick kicked goal. The sixth touchdown was made by Robertson, who was called back of the line and used time after time for long gains through the weakening Knox line. Barwick converted this last touchdown into one more point for Nebraska and the scoring ended.

Although failing to score, Knox put up her usual plucky game and played the football which makes the game with the men from Galesburg looked forward to by lovers of a good game. At first their fierce line bucks seemed certain to carry them over Nebraska's goal line, but toward the end the constant hammering of the heavier men began to tell, and the Nebraska backs had no difficulty in gaining.

Our offense was good. When signal for a line buck was given the line was bucked hard and low. And the trick plays and straight end runs were usually successful. But our defense is not satisfactory. At times the Nebraska line was a veritable stone wall, but too often it wasn't, and too often Knox's lighter backs smashed our heavier line for steady gains. During the first half the ball was held pretty well, but the fumbling epidemic seemed to get hold of the team as the game proceeded and the ball was lost time after time in a disheartening manner. Once on Knox's 1-yard line the ball was fumbled, and twice more within easy striking distance. Cotton was given a trial at kicking off, and proved 102-- and yet Nebraska defeated the Gophers 6-0, and did not have such a hard time doing it, either.

Whatever Minnesota thought to gain by running up such an unheard-of score against Grinnell, she may rest assured that Nebraska is by no means dismayed by it. But, after all, we might
