Editorial Remarks

"Bummy" is coming back and we are happy. Nebraska's position in the football world for 1905 is assured, and next year we will see if "Bummy" won't come back again.

It is with deep regret that the University has learned of the prospective resignation of Dr. Roscoe Pound from his position as Dean of the College of Law.

A new era in the College of Law began in 1903 when Dean Pound became Dean of the School. The two years course was lengthened to a three years course. The old quarters consisting of two rooms on the first floor of University hall, were enlarged, so that the Law School now occupies the entire north wing of the main building. The law library has been rapidly augmented so that the students now have a working library of 4,000 books, reports and text-books.

Dean Pound has also installed an excellent system of practice courts.
The practice court room is on the third floor, has quite a court room appearance, and here with Dean Pound's aid and supervision, the law students are enabled to put into actual practice, some of the many principles of law, which they receive in the class room.

The Law School, under the brief administration of Dean Pound, has made material progress in every respect.

The Dean has succeeded in arranging an excellent lecture course for the school. These lectures are given frequently by prominent members of the Nebraska Bar, and are immensely helpful.

The Dean has the confidence and heartly friendship of every student in the law school and it is with a deep regret that the school hears of his resignation.

Not only is Dr. Pound all that could be desired as Dean of the College of Law, but his interest in the University has been general, and enthusiastic.
In nearly every branch of University activity his influence is felt, and no appeal for aid, in any manner whatever is passed by Dean Pound. His position will be indeed hard to fill.

The coming withdrawal of Dr. Pound from the University faculty brings again forcibly to mind the fact that some changes ought to be made, and at no very distant date. The work is too onerous, and the remuneration therefore too small. Not only is this true of the position of dean, but it can be said of every position in the faculty, from the head down. Some years ago we suffered an irreparable loss by Missouri's getting Dr. Hall away from us, and last year another severe blow was felt when Professor Cook left for Missouri. And now Dr. Pound is to leave. The faculty of Nebraska has brought the University up from a position of comparative obscurity to one second to very few of the state Universities, and the only way this high place among educational institutions can be maintained is by maintaining our faculty. The argument is used that Nebraska is too poor to afford high salaries. Be that as it may, surely no better way can be found to save what we have than to invest in the best, and keep the best when we get it. The salaries paid to some of our faculty members, men of recognized authority the world over, is ridiculously small.

Perhaps the loss of a few more men, such as those mentioned, whose places it is almost impossible to fill, will wake up the powers that be.

this year he came to his own with greater experience and more power than ever and is certainly deserving of recognition.

SOPHOMORES WIN.

The inter-class championship was settled on Wednesday, Dec. 21, by the Sophomores defeating the Freshmen Laws 5 to 0. The Sophomores won the game in the first half by pushing Little ever for a touchdown after six minutes of play. The second half was very evenly contested with the advantage in favor of the Laws.

A Store For Men.

"Kensington" High Class Suits and Overcoats.

Formerly men who wanted to be correctly dressed had to pay a tailor well for the privilege. There was then a wide gap between tailor made and ready made clothing.
To fill this gap has been the mission of "Kensington" clothes. Men competent to judge pronounce "Kensington" suits the tailors' equal in every way—much less in price—ready to put on. When we sell a "Kensington" the second sale is almost assured. Come in, try them on, you'll be proud beyond your expecta-
