With thirty-four candidates already out for appointment to positions on the debating squad, the members of the Debating Board are beginning to wonder how the judges at the preliminaries are going to survive the siege. The list does not, however, include an array of persons who could not in reason hope to be appointed as used to be the case some years ago when students made the preliminary debate a field day to practice on the long suffering judges. The average of the candidates, Secretary Waldron says, is regarded as above that of recent years.
