 Helen Gregory, U. of N., '95, now of New York city, called upon her old teachers in the University on Friday. She is engaged in teaching in the New York city kindergarten schools.

Professor Bessey's name appears as one of the advisors and collaborators on the editorial staff of the new journal entitled "Nature Study Review," published in New York city.

Two of the most prosperous organizations in the school of agriculture are the Glee club and Orchestra. The latter is under the direction of J. A. Balling, a student in the long course.

Believing in the inestimable benefits to be derived from a good laugh, or even a smile, one excuse for a laugh or smile will be printed each day. Complete facial relaxation preceding and following a smile tends to put off the day of wrinkles of care and beautifies the countenance. It is expected that these "laughs" will be eagerly perused by the fair "co-ed." If the excuse to laugh isn't sufficient, don't laugh, but don't blame us for the jokes are not all original. However, if one is really laughable, credit may be given for originality.
