Editorial Remarks

No student in the University interested in debate and argumentation should fall to subscribe for "Both Sides," the new debating journal. A magazine containing complete bibliographies on current questions and briefs worked up by the highest talent in the country will be extremely helpful to all debaters and writers. Nebraska holds the highest place in the middle west in debate, and should be well represented not only in the subscription list, but on the editorial staff of this paper. A club of fifty ought to be organized here without effort and every debater should sign his name to the subscription list.

To obtain the utmost effectiveness from our daily work it is absolutely essential that we have a period of mental relaxation every day; a period when our minds are entirely diverted from study; when we can follow some master mind, some master speaker or some master player, and for the time not be compelled to lead for ourselves. The tri-weekly convocation offers just this opportunity for relaxation. The committee in charge of the programs provide from day to day speakers of renown in their various lines, readers of great merit, musicians of exceptional ability, and to do the best for ourselves we ought not to miss a single convocation. In some institutions chapel attendance is made compulsory, and this rule rigorously enforced but compulsory attendance upon convocation would defeat the end aimed to accomplish. To get the most from these exercise our interests must, of course, be voluntary, but they should be generally voluntary. Convocation should be much better attended than at present. We owe it to the faithful committee having these programs in charge to show our appreciation of their efforts, but most of all we owe it to ourselves to hear all these good things, many of which may never come our way again.

GLEE CLUB CONCERT

The annual Glee Club concert will be given next Friday evening at the Oliver theatre. The boys and their director, Mr. Eames, have been putting forth every effort to make the University Glee Club an organization of which not only we of the University, but all Nebraskans might be proud.

Mr. Eames' name stands for more than individual attainments as an artist. Whatever he is connected with he leads with serious, earnest effort toward what stands for the best and highest. This does not mean that all that takes place in his name reaches in attainment all he might wish but rather that it is founded on, and has worked along the honest lines of legitimate art and he deserves more than mere thanks for his untiring and encouraging efforts as well as for the financial support which he has volunteered.

In the short time that he has been connected with the club, which was in a remnant and almost unorganized condition when he came to the rescue, Mr. Eames has accomplished wonderful results. There has been steady improvement in both the work and cooperative interest of the members of the club and there is every reason to believe that this year's concert will be much better than last year's.

Without sacrificing musical merit, Mr. Eames has arranged a program which will be of more interest to the general public.

However, all the above is relative to the merits of the club in itself. But success depends not only on merit, but upon recognition and support. No matter how good football we play, we would never have ranked where we do today without Nebraska support. The Glee Club has never yet been given University support and yet it is the one function which can create and promote college spirit. We need our Glee Club to be recognized as worthy by other universities, but to do this we must first have recognition at home. It will not only mean Glee Club recognition—it will bring our university to the front, for university rank depends on more than athletic prominence and "book larnin'." It is the imperative duty of every University student to go to the concert next Friday evening and not only go, but be enthusiastic—help bring our club to the front and encourage them and their leader for gaining the ground they have gained toward the goal.

Minnesota has decided to have a baseball team this season. This matter, which has been hanging in the air for some time, has prevented Manager Allen from completing his schedule. Minnesota will be without a doubt one of the teams included in the schedule. With Minnesota added the schedule for the varsity will include three "big nine" teams: Illinois, Chicago and Minnesota. No date has been set for this game yet, but it will likely occur about the first of May.
