Y. M. Banquet.
Arrangements have all been completed and everything points to the biggest banquet in the history of the Association tonight. Those who attend are again reminded that the banquet will begin promptly at seven forty-five, that no matters of business whatever will be brought up, and that the banquet will be over by eleven o'clock. The toast list and the menu of ten courses was published in full in yesterday's Daily Nebraskan. By an examination of them it will be seen that tomorrow evening's affair will be one long to be remembered in the annals of University history. Plates seventy-five cents.

Nearing Completion.
The carpenters are putting on the inside finish of the new Farm School building, and it is expected that the new structure will be entirely complete and ready to turn over to the regents within sixty days. The contract calls for a complete building by June 1st, but the work has been pushed rather more rapidly than was anticipated. The different parts of the building will be used for class work as soon as they are finished. The inside wood work is of oak and will make a beautiful and enduring finish.

Bishop Thorburn, Dr. Gouches and Dr. Taylor, speakers at the State Missionary Convention, took luncheon with the girls of the Y. W. C. A. yesterday. The rooms were well filled with members and the young ladies of the Christian Association will never again complain that missionaries have long faces. They declare that a more jolly trio never lunched with them.

Chalmers, Iowa's present athletic coach, will probably be elected by the Hawkeyes to serve in this capacity for another year.
