Editorial Remarks

The small boy epidemic has broken out again. Six balls were stolen during yesterday's game. A half dozen stolen this early in the season means a dozen later on. An example ought to be made of the next culprit. A decided stand taken now by the management will show the thieves that they run a risk in stealing every ball which comes over the fence. They have been allowed to do as they please, so far, without any sort of watch being set upon them, and the number of balls lost yesterday is an indication of their boldness. There is one way to stop this. Make the first "kid" caught suffer.

An ominous silence on the part of the Freshmen is leading the upper classes, the Sophs in particular, to believe that the appearance of the last year men in their class caps is not far distant. In their Freshman year the members of '07 sought to destroy this University tradition by wearing a class cap. How well the tradition was kept intact by the efforts of '06 and '06 is now an interesting portion of University history. In spite of the total annihilation of the obnoxious headgear intended to decorate the crowns of their predecessors the Freshies have ordered caps, and assert that they will wear them, at least once. The Sophs say, and the Juniors and Seniors agree with them, that the first appearance will also be the final appearance of the Freshman caps.

A meeting of the Debating Association was announced by President Andrews for 11 o'clock yesterday, but on account of a quorum failing to appear the meeting was not called to order. A notice appeared yesterday that another meeting will be called Thursday at 11 o'clock in U 110. Several matters of importance will be considered at this meeting and every member is urged to be present.

Medics Program.

At the regular weekly meeting of the Medical Society held in the Y. W. C. A. rooms Friday night, the program committee veered a little from its regular course and entertained an interested audience with the following well executed numbers. Mr. Stoakes' production was especially well received:

Instrumental solo—Miss Tucker.
Vocal solo—Mr. Bates.
Recitation (original)—Miss Gibson.
Vocal duet—Miss Tucker, Mr. Henney.

Instrumental—Miss Pool.
Vocal solo—Mr. Clark.
"Medics Psalm of Life"—Mr. Stoakes.

Light refreshments were served which concluded one of the most pleasant evenings in the history of the Society.

THE MEDICS' PSALM OF LIFE.
Tell me not in idle numbers,
Life is but an empty dream;
For the tasks which are assigned us
Make all Medic students scream.

Life is real! Life is earnest!
An internship is our goal
Visions of a chair at Harvard
Visit our prophetic soul.

Not enjoyment, and not sorrow,
Is our present object then;
But to study that tomorrow
Shall not see us flunk again.

Tasks are long and time is fleeting,
And our hearts, tho brave and strong
Palpitate with sudden terror
When to recite we're called upon.

In the quizz room's field of action,
In the faculty's keen sight,
Be not a flunker like the many,
Be a bright and shining light.

Do no sleeping howe'er pleasant;
Rouse ye early from your bed.
Get your lessons for the present;
Labor now but fame ahead.

Tho our friends at times remind us,
We may miss the path of fame,
And departing, leave behind us
Misty memories of our name.

Memories that future Medics
In their young ambitious day,
Will forget with painful promptness
When we've gone upon our way.

Let us still be up and doing,
Seeking a scientific life;
If we cannot be a specialist,
Maybe we can be his wife.

Engineering Notes.

The General Electric Company has applied for a mechanical engineering apprentice, to take up steam turbine work.

A. B. Brown, '04, electrical engineering, is in the city and has visited a good many of his friends in the University.

I. L. Hershey, '06, intends to leave his work this semester and take up irrigation work on a party in western Nebraska.

H. P. Warren, '05, civil engineering, has obtained an appointment from the government to work on the Panama Canal. He expects to leave for Panama sometime during the week.

The Mahler bomb calorimeter, which was ordered by the Mechanical Engineering Department, arrived yesterday and will be set up and used in testing the coal from the boiler trials. This instrument is the standard of the world for testing solid and liquid fuels and will fill a long felt want in this work in the Engineering Laboratory.

GRAND MASK CARNIVAL.

Owing to the many requests of those who took part in the last carnival at the Auditorium Skating Rink, the management has decided to hold another of those fun producing parties on Friday evening, April 7. Grand march at 9:30 when all masks will be removed and four handsome prizes will be awarded.

EMPLOYMENT BUREAU.

Men who have cards out will please call at Y. M. C. A. rooms and replace same at once.
The new Y. M. C. A. cabinet will meet Saturday evening at 8 o'clock.
