FRESHMEN CAPS ON CAMPUS.

A Few of the First Year Men Cross Campus.

A few of the long looked for Freshmen caps appeared on the campus yesterday morning just before chapel time when the Sophomores and upperclassmen were not on hand to contest the forbidden action.

A small body of the first year men got together somewhere yesterday morning and conceived the idea of going to the campus in a body and wearing the forbidden headgear while the much feared "Sophs" and upperclassmen were busy in the recitation room giving their undivided attention to the "profs." The "Freshies" first went to the 'big rock' and made their presence known by giving a few of their class yells. The plan was apparently unknown to anyone but the individuals composing the group. No other Freshmen and only a few of the other classmen were in sight on the campus at the time.

After they had given a few yells a crowd began to gather and the "Freshies" proceeded to wend their way across the campus to the northeast gate. By this time a large crowd had gathered and was getting close upon the heels of the first-year men when they passed through the gate.

They closed the gate behind them, gathered the eight or ten caps together and dispatched "one of their fleetest" to take them back to safe keeping. They then came back across the campus, but, although a large crowd had gathered no trouble occurred.

The general opinion among the students was that the Freshmen had not given the upperclassmen a fair chance, coming onto the campus at the time they did and then retreating so soon, and that they can not fairly claim to have won their caps on the campus.
