A CALL FOR MEN.

On the twenty-first of next month will be played the greatest game in the history of Nebraska athletics, when we meet the champion Michigan team at Ann Arbor. To compose the eleven which is to play on that occasion there are only five "N" men. Does the student body know what that means? It means that in the next three weeks there must be found, or made, six men who can play better football than has ever been played west of the Missouri. It means that there are more places open to new men than has ever been the case since "Bummy" Booth came to Nebraska, five years ago, and that these men must be found inside the next twenty days.

And for a field from which to select these half dozen warriors there is a squad numbering less than fifty strong in a university of a thousand men. "Bummy" Booth can do wonders, and no man in the country is his equal in developing a new football player, but even he is powerless unless he has something with which to begin, and without the men to work on he can never succeed in getting that team which is going to give Michigan her money's worth.

Consequently a call has gone out for more men. And if Nebraska still has the spirit she showed when the team came home from Colorado and from Minnesota in 1904, her students will answer this call in the way it should be, and the size of the squad will be doubled this evening. Every man who ever saw a game of marbles, even, is wanted, and the mere fact that you are not big, or never saw a football before, should not prevent you from donning the moleskins and doing your part to hold up Nebraska's end of the football string. Every man who does get out may be sure that he will have all the individual attention he needs, and will be given a fair chance to show what he is made of.

This appeal is directed to each individual student, and not to the whole mass. It is you who must be made to feel that some share of responsibility for victory or defeat rests upon yourself, and that if we meet defeat at Ann Arbor and at Minneapolis you alone are responsible. Coach Booth has promised to do his share if he is given the men, and the West knows that he can do it. It is now up to every student who weighs over a hundred pounds and who every played corner-lot football to get out and do his share, and if he does so Nebraska will have the greatest team in its history even though the Athletic Board go broke buying new suits for the candidates.

Daily Nebraskan Staff Positions.

Once more we wish to call the attention of the student body to the vacant positions on the Nebraskan, and to urge those desirous of doing work on the college daily to consult the editor at once. There are six places open to the best men, and these will not be filled for two weeks, so that every one may have an opportunity to show his ability in this line. An effort is being made to secure University credit for members of the staff, and as the regents have sanctioned this, satisfactory arrangements will doubtlessly be made. Aside from the credit, an opportunity will be offered to do lots of hard work and to get a large amount of valuable experience.

Any one wishing to see the editor in regard to these positions may find him in the editorial office, U. 204 1/2, at chapel time each day.

Applications for the Glee and Mandolin club positions continue to accumulate, and over 100 men are now on the list of those who wish to make that trip to the Pacific coast at the expense of the music-loving Westerners. No arrangements have yet been made as to the method and time of try-outs, but they will occur in a short time and within two weeks the work of whipping the men into good voice and manner will be well under way. Those desiring places must not neglect to enter their names with Mr. Dirks, who may be seen any day at chapel time in U. 106.

Prospects are very bright for a good Freshman basket-ball five. Several strong players from Hastings, York and other towns are entered as first year men and have made known their intentions of getting into line for basket-ball work this winter.

Miss Nell Smoyer, '08, was married during the summer to Mr. Babson of Seward. Mrs. Babson visited old University friends on their return from the honeymoon.

George A. Lee, 1903, Law '05, winner of the Edward Thompson Company prize in 1905, is teaching in the Beatrice High School this year.

Miss Susan Barnhart, '05, formerly assistant in German, was married during the summer to L. W. Chase of the Mechanical Engineering department.

Miss Elva Sly, '02, is principal of the West Point High School. Paul W. Harrison, '05, is instructor in Science in the same school.
