OUR PICNIC.

E'er the sun appears tomorrow,
 With no thought of "zams" and sorrow,
 The laws will early rise;
 Then, with song, and cheer and shout
 We'll give warning of our outing
 Does this put you wise?

We've chartered cars to ride in,
 And to the beach we'll spin,
 'Rah' for the joy that's near;
 We'll roast a beef upon the "spicket"
 Have you bought a ticket?
 If not, get one right here.

Our dean will give us lengthy spiel,
 At Doc's bum jokes we'll squeal,
 Oh what a dence of a time!
 There'll be a lot of games and sport,
 And we'll have no fear of ease or court,
 Just take it from our rhyme.

And when the sun has gone to rest,
 'Neath the shadows of the west,
 We'll hop a car for town,
 Then gladly to our cases we'll be sent
 To try for grades most excellent;
 The other days we're 'round.

PEANUT.

LACK OF TIME FATAL.

Owing to the lack of that most valuable asset, time, the law editorial staff decided at the eleventh hour that it would not put out today's edition.

The press of business, together with the innumerable arrangements necessary for the Barbecue prevented them from giving the time to literary inspiration, so they turned the issue over to the regular staff. The law scribes want it known, however, that they have not given up the idea of a law number altogether, that they will perpetrate one in the near future, and that it will be something startling.

The pride of the law school prevents them from producing anything which the forestry or engineering colleges can equal, hence they have decided to wait and work.

Editor's Note—We ask our readers to bear in mind the fact that the task of putting out today's paper was rudely thrust upon us at the last minute, after the staff had decided to take a day off, and to read with forbearance.
