

NEBRASKAN MAKES GOOD

W. A. Carriker, Jr., Meets Success in Government Work in South America.

Dean Wolcott of the medical college is in receipt of a letter from W. A. Carriker, Jr., a former Nebraska student who has made good in South America. Mr. Carriker was a student here from 1899 to 1903, specializing in zoology and entomology, leaving college to go with Professor Bruner to Costa Rica.

He did not return, but remained two or three years in Costa Rica as a collector for the United States National Museum, the American Museum of National History of New York City, and the Carnegie Museum of Pittsburgh. Coming back to the states he was assistant curator of birds at the latter institution, returning a few years later to South America as a collector, traveling through Venezuela and Columbia.

While in the former country Mr. Carriker visited regions hitherto not visited by white men and made a special study of bird lore.

He is now representing a Cincinnati coffee concern in Columbia and intends to make a visit to Lincoln soon in search of some young college students to go into business with him.

PROFESSORS AS WRITERS.

Members of University Faculty Contribute to Publications.

Professors in the University of Nebraska are becoming prominent as writers. Prof. S. B. Gass has written an article, which will soon appear in the Yale Review, entitled "Without a Straw: A Reflective Narrative of a College Experience." Another article by Professor Gass, entitled "The Arts College and the Democracy," will be published in the Sewanee Review.

The German philosophical periodical, Englische Studien, will shortly publish an article by Dr. Louise Pound on "Instructive Nasals in English." Miss Pound will also have an article in Dialect Notes during the year.

Professor Alexander, who aided in revising and criticizing the new book, "Grammar and Thinking," is publicly acknowledged in its preface, written by the author, A. D. Sheffield.

MAY QUEEN FOR IVY DAY

Senior Girls Add New Features to Regular Program—Louise Barr to be Queen of the May.

Many new features have been added to that part of Ivy Day usually given over to the senior girls.

At a mass-meeting, held Tuesday, of all the girls of the class of 1912, it was decided to have two new "stunts," a queen of the May, and a daisy chain. Louise Barr was chosen as queen of the May.

Every senior girl is to take part in the carrying of the daisy chain. The coeds will be dressed in white, but will wear the regulation senior caps.

The girls who will be in the May Pole dance have already begun rehearsing. They will be dressed in caps and gowns. The following seniors have been chosen for the dance:

Marie Lee, Alma Sullivan, Verna Coleman, Grace Walker, June Brown, Verna Hyder, Cornelia Lindsay, Ruth Haller, Hazel Teeter, Dorris Wood, Esther Warner, Merle Thomas, Alwine Zumwinkel, Grace Burritt, Louise Barr and Claire McKinnon.

Athletic Board Filings.

You've got a hard row to hoe, if you think you can make a good impression by wearing poor clothes.

Good impressions are occasionally made in spite of poor clothes, but a lot oftener they are made as a result of good ones.

Our Kensingtons are the sort that make good impressions, stylish, well tailored, perfect fitting—they're bound to please the particular college man.
