TAG CAMPAIGN ON

SIXTY MEMBERS OF BOOSTERS' COMMITTEE SELL TICKETS.

TICKETS GOOD FOR BEST SEATS

Reserved Sections on North and South Grandstands for Ticketholders—No Reserved Tickets on Sale as in Past.

"Tag—you're it. Three dollars, please."

If some fair co-ed addresses you in this manner today, don't be frightened. She is not a militant suffragette, but a member of the boosters' committee trying to sell you a season ticket. Twenty-five co-eds and thirty-six men are on the campus today with the same purpose in view. Before 6 o'clock they expect to sell 1,000 season athletic tickets, and from the present outlook they will do it. Several members of the committee sold their quota yesterday afternoon and went back for more.

When one considers the value which the athletic management offers for $3 it is not surprising that the tickets go so fast. No true Nebraskan would miss the football games this fall, the admission to which amounts to $1.50 more than the price of a ticket good for the whole season's athletic contests. And when the $2 for admission to basketball and $2.50 admission to baseball and track meets are added to this, a saving of $6 is shown. From a financial standpoint, therefore, a season ticket is the only thing.

NEW MAGAZINES FOR Y. M. C. A. Home Papers to Be Available in Reading Room After This.

The reading room of the University Y. M. C. A. is a popular place for spending leisure hours or for study. Nearly fifty men may be found there at any time of the day reading the magazines provided by the association.

A new supply will soon be ordered, and arrangements are under way to secure all the leading papers of the state, so the "home paper" may be had by many of the students.

FASHIONS APPAL MERE MEN

Novel Crimson Coats and Fuzzy Mackinaws Cause Excited Discussions on Campus—Criticism Actuated by Jealousy.

The cold, rainy days of early autumn seem to have little effect upon the beautiful finery of the co-ed. Verily, Solomon in all his glory is not arrayed like one of these. The gaily bedecked throngs of beautiful maidens passing to and fro from the various buildings help us to forget the austerity of the grim old institution and the dull, monotonous grind of study.

That tall, stately blonde with the beautiful Parisian coiffure is made all the more radiant by the rich warm red of a Norfolk jacket. The brunette just descending the Library steps is quite bewitching in a large black picture hat with a "stick-up" on it, and she is robed in a deep blue Mackinaw. A number of fussers seated upon the steps are awe-stricken by the appearance of this goddess from above and fail to recognize in her an old acquaintance. A bluejay in the Linden tree falls to the ground, dead, as she passes, his heart eaten out with jealousy.

"Oh, Constance, isn't that taupe tailored suit that Genevieve is wearing the dearest you ever saw?"

"Yes, but I don't believe I like it as well as that peachy brown one that Beatrice has."

"Oh, well, Bee's looks better on her because she has a better complexion, and she wears her hair in a psyche knot."

Ye gods! how women's styles change! Will we poor men ever become accustomed to them? We had just begun to understand the pepin of last summer when you began wearing the Mackinaw. That was "the most unkindest cut of all" to rob us of the only beautiful coats we ever wore!

It is in the Library, however, where we have the opportunity of observing the young ladies at their best, if you have occasion to go there—to study, of course. Typical conversation between two young men who imagine themselves well posted on the late styles:

"Say, Harold, do you see that girl over there in the coral waist?"

"Sure."

"Well, I'll bet a hundred dollars her hair is done into that new perpetual wave effect I've been reading about. They say it costs twenty-five bucks to have one fixed up at a hairdresser's, and you have to sit still six hours to have it done."

"It can't be did. No girl can sit still that long!"

(Righteous indignation on the part of the ladies.)

Honest, it appals to attempt to describe further the hats, gowns and other adornments our co-eds wear.

CORNHUSKER LETS CONTRACT

Editorial Positions to Be Filled Early Next Week—Plans Being Perfected.

Work has already started on the 1913 Cornhusker. Yesterday Editor-in-Chief Sweeley let the contract for the engraving to the same company that did such good work on last year's book. Sweeley has a number of new ideas which he will institute in this year's book, and says it will be bigger and better than ever.

A photographer from the east has been procured and is photographing many scenes about the campus which have not been produced in the book before.

Several meetings of the main staff have been held, but announcements of editors of the different departments will not be made until next week. An unusual number of applicants have been received to fill these places, and it is causing delay in the appointments.

DEBATING CLUB HOLDS ELECTION DEBATERS HOLD ELECTION.

Arrange to Hold Regular Meetings on Saturdays to Which All Men are Invited.

The Students' Debating Club met Saturday evening in U 106, and an organization was effected with the result that the following officers were appointed for this semester: Homer Kyle, president; T. Jenkins, vice-president; Leroy McCormick, secretary and treasurer, and O. W. Percy, sergeant-at-arms. Arrangements were made to hold regular meetings on Saturday evenings, beginning with October 5.

Singers' Notice.

Chorus registration is still open without charge. Conflict with drill is now removed. See Mrs. Raymond in Music Hall at the Temple any day this week from 4 to 5 p. m., or telephone at her residence, B-2414.

FRAT RUSH BEGINS

OFFICIAL RUSHING SEASON OPENS THIS EVENING AT SIX O'CLOCK.

CHANGE COMES NEXT YEAR

This Season's "Rush" Week Marks the Last of the Old System—Faculty Committee Enforcing Social Regulations.

Although Nebraska fraternity men have not been asleep the past week, the active campaign for new members commences this evening at 6 o'clock. The "rushing" season will close next Monday at noon, after which time no man can be entertained in the interest of any fraternity after 6 o'clock except on Friday, Saturday and Sunday.

As is the case every year, it is expected that the forthcoming "rush" will be the most strenuous in the history of Nebraska fraternities.

Interest in Change.

Special interest is attached to this year's campaign in view of the radical change that will be made next fall in the rushing system.

Hereafter no man will be allowed to pledge any fraternity until he has completed twelve registered hours in the University. This semester pledging rule has run the gauntlet of agitation for several years, and its adoption is considered significant by fraternity men. It has been tried in many colleges thus far, and seems to meet with satisfaction.

Confusion Over Rules.

The fraternity men have been somewhat confused as well as embarrassed over what has appeared to be a contemplated violation of the University rules prohibiting social entertainments save on Friday and Saturday evenings.

Last year the fraternities were permitted to hold their parties and banquets at their pleasure during "rush" week without protest or interference from the committee on student organizations. As a consequence the recent edict of the committee restoring the fraternities to their status quo was received with some surprise and no little consternation.

Several parties and banquets which had been planned for some time have been canceled and it is expected that there will be no disposition to violate the rules laid down by the committee on student organizations.

Novel Plans Laid.

Save for formal affairs which last later than 8 o'clock, the fraternity men are permitted to do most anything under the sun, and it is expected that the same will be done. Rumors are rife around the campus of a variety of novel entertainments that will be
