

NO CO-EDS AT AMES

MUST MAKE WAY FOR ENGINEERS FROM IOWA CITY.

RADICAL STEP BY IOWA BOARD

All Engineering to Be Given at Ames Hereafter—Arts, Sciences and Domestic Science at Iowa City—A New Ruling.

The State Board of Education of Iowa has taken a very important step, an action which is the most far-reaching of any ever taken by any similar governing body of this country. This action is the co-ordination of the three state institutions of learning, viz., the State University at Iowa City, the Iowa State College of Agriculture, and Mechanic Arts at Ames, and the State Teachers' College at Cedar Falls.

Heretofore the courses given in these respective institutions have overlapped. Domestic science and science has been given at both Iowa and Ames; engineering has been given at both these institutions; a course in liberal arts has been offered at Iowa and Cedar Falls. This overlapping of courses has caused much trouble in the past, as concentration on certain courses has been impossible owing to the fact that the equipment and facilities have been divided. Three large state institutions giving work of a similar nature, but of course differing in some respects, were within a radius of 125 miles. It was natural that the same departments in the different schools would not be equally good. The Engineering School at Ames was superior to Iowa, the domestic science course at Iowa was better than that of Ames, and the liberal arts course at Iowa excelled that of Cedar Falls. The question then was, Why not combine the courses and thus reduce duplication as between the several schools to the minimum?

The board has finally agreed upon the following plan of co-ordination of the three institutions: First, all work in engineering is to be centered at the Agricultural College; second, all courses in professional education and liberal arts at the Teachers' College, which extend beyond the sophomore year will be discontinued and centered at the University; third, all courses in general science and domestic science now existing at the College of Agriculture will be discontinued and the field of household art will be opened at the University.

Such a radical step on the part of the Board of Education will place Iowa in the front rank of the leading educational institutions of the country.

Missionary Class Formed.

Mission study classes of the Y. M. C. A. were organized yesterday for the coming semester and work will begin one week from next Sunday. According to present plans they will co-operate with the men's Bible classes in all the larger churches and will be under the leadership of some prominent man each Sunday.

Henry M. Eakin, U. of N., '03, now a geologist in the United States geological survey, Alaskan division, visited the University this week en route from Alaska to Washington. Arrangements were made with Mr. Eakin for certain lectures to be delivered to the students in geology, particularly the mining and engineering students, when he returns to Alaska next spring.

The first game of the season showed the weak spots of the Indiana team. It seems that the forward pass was a complete failure, and that smashing tactics were the only ways of making a gain. The real test for the team will come Saturday, when they line up against Stag's Midway stars.

Statistics compiled by the United States Bureau of Education show that 25 per cent of the graduates of 37 representative colleges become teachers. Business takes 20 per cent; law, 15; medicine, 7; the ministry, 6, and engineering, 4.
