DON UNIFORMS SOON

CADETS WILL BLOSSOM OUT IN NEW REGIMENTALS.

APPOINTMENTS NOT YET MADE

Three Announced, But Not Assigned to Companies—Theoretical Work and Range Practice to Begin Soon.

The long-expected olive-drab uniforms of the cadets have not yet arrived. The first-year men are eagerly awaiting the day when they can appear in all the glory of their gay regimentals, but the more seasoned veterans of the second year are dreading the donning of tattered uniforms in the crowded quarters of the locker room. Lieutenant Bowman is certain, however, that the uniforms will be here early next week, if not sooner, as they have been ordered for some time.

There are several appointments of non-commissioned officers to be made in the various companies, but these can not be determined without further tryouts of the second year. Three company quartermasters, or second sergeants, have been selected from among the third-year men. These are V. D. Smith, E. A. Noble and Fred Trumbull. Kenneth M. Snyder was appointed junior color sergeant.

A class in theoretical drill will be started shortly after Thanksgiving to train the second and third-year men more thoroughly in military tactics.

The rifle ranges, as heretofore, will be maintained in the woods behind the penitentiary and in the basement of the mechanical engineering building. Range work will begin about Thanksgiving, according to present plans, and all first-year men will be given instruction in gallery and range practice. The rifle teams will be open to second-year men as well as first, but work on these will not be started for some time.

ADDITION TO ARTS LIBRARY.

Professor Powers' Book on Italian Art Given to Fine Arts School.

The School of Fine Arts has received the following gifts from the University Bureau of Travel: Powers and Powe, "Later Italian Art"; Powers, "Mornings with the Masters of Art"; University Prints of French and Spanish Masters.

President Powers will be remembered by the University public in connection with an excellent address delivered at convocation some years ago. His new book, "Mornings with the Masters of Art," is a masterly discussion of the great products of Christian art. He traces Christian art from its Greek sources through mosaics down to the climax under Michel Angelo. By rigidly excluding unimportant details he has succeeded in giving an admirable account of the main forces at work in this important epoch.

OMAHA BOOSTERS REVIVE CLUB

Meet Today to Act On Movements of Alumni—Will Be More Active This Year Than Last.

Omaha students registered in the University will meet today in room U. 102 at 11:30 to reorganize the old Omaha club.

The purpose of the meeting is to pass resolutions presenting the attitude of the Omaha students relative to the contemplated action of certain Omaha alumni relative to the athletic situation at Nebraska.

It seems that the gate city alumni are going to meet this evening and there give vent to their feelings which have recently been stirred up by a sporting writer on the Omaha Bee. The purpose of the student meeting, according to some of the leading spirits, is to head off or counteract any action that the alumni may see fit to take.

The Omaha Club was primarily formed to work in conjunction with Nebraska alumni in Omaha in boosting Nebraska in the eyes of Omaha people, and especially coming college students. Instead of allowing the preparatory school students of the metropolis to be captured by outside universities, they are planning to attract them to Nebraska. The work will be taken up more vigorously than last year in the coming winter.

TENNIS SQUAD ANNOUNCED

Eight Men to Play for Team in Spring. Court Privileges Given to Squad Men.

Those who finished in the finals of the recent tournament have been awarded places on the squad. As early as possible next spring from those who are on the squad, four will be chosen to play on the team. In order to eliminate any hard feeling as to the choice of the team members, anyone may be challenged, and if beaten must give up his position to the victor.

On account of the poor and limited grounds it has been decided, as heretofore, to allow the members of the squad first privileges on the court.

The following men are announced as "on" the squad: Sussman, Allyn, Flory, Thompson, Gardiner, Williams, Meyer and Findley.

CORNHUSKER SPIRIT NEEDED

Proposition of Band Going to Missouri Not Getting Needed Boost—Are You Wearing an "N"?

Up to date only a few "N Bootser" buttons have been sold. Surely everyone knows by this time that the band has undertaken to pay its expenses to Missouri in order that they may aid Stiehm's warriors in bringing home the Missouri Valley Championship.

Perhaps the student body does not realize the importance of the band going to Missouri. Ask any of the grid-iron warriors if the band is of any aid. And Nebraska certainly needs help at this game, for whether or not we defeat Missouri more points than Ames did a week ago, goes a long way in deciding the championship honors.

Every student should consider this matter carefully and when one of these "N" buttons is presented to you, accept it—kindly fork over the said 50 cents, and be a real Cornhusker.

BUCK SPEAKS ON "H. G. WELLS"

Professor Addresses Convocation on Life and Works of Author.

It will be assured to those who attend convocation this morning that they will hear a good address by Prof. P. M. Buck, who will speak on "H. G. Wells."

Professor Buck is one of the favorite convocation speakers of the school, and convocation attendants will remember the excellent address he delivered last year on "Jack London," a subject on which he has written many magazine articles. His talk on "Wells" will be in the nature of a review of his works, and will be well worth hearing.

WIN EASY VICTORY

ADRIAN UNABLE TO PUT UP A HARD GAME.

BOTH TEAMS BADLY CRIPPLED

Forward Passes Used Frequently—Nebraska Penalized Heavily, But Rolls Up Forty-one Points Against Them.

The Cornhuskers defeated the Adrian College team last Saturday in a very listless game of football by piling up a total of 41 points against the large elpher garnered by the Michigan boys. Nebraska made six touchdowns and kicked five goals. The Adrian team was handicapped by injuries as well as the Cornhuskers and were able to make their downs only three times during the game.

Coach Stiehm, after seeing 20 points rolled up the first period, sent in a bunch of substitutes the second and third quarters, and then only were the Adriautes able to play the Huskers any way near even. They held Nebraska three times for downs, but were able to make only three of their own.

Purdy, the slashing halfback, played his usual brilliant game and got away for long runs several times. Captain Frank did good work, and it was in the final period after he and Purdy had been placed in the lineup were the substitutes able to score. The game was sluggish all the way through and fumbles were quite frequent. The only feature of the game was the blocking of a punt by Allan with Pearson picking up the ball and racing 35 yards for the final touchdown.

Nebraska tried ten forward passes and completed six of them. Four of the flips were made for good gains, while the other two were completed for no gains. Adrian used the pass five times and were able to complete it two times, once for a gain of 20 yards and the other for 10 yards.

Howard outdistanced the Adrian punter on the average of nearly four yards to each punt. He punted three times for 100 yards, while the Adrian kicker booted the ball seven times for 204 yards, or an average of 29 yards. Nebraska punts were never returned for over a few yards, while the Adrian punts were returned for good gains.

The Cornhuskers were penalized seven times for a distance of 85 yards. Most of these penalties were inflicted for holding or pushing, and only twice for offside play. The Adrian team played a much safer game and were taken back 15 yards for holding.

Dr. Wharton at Vespers.

Dr. Fletcher L. Wharton, former pastor of St. Paul's, is to address the Y. W. C. A. girls at their weekly meeting on Tuesday evening at 5 o'clock. Dr. Wharton is much interested in social betterment. While here, he was a great favorite among University students. His subject will be "A Truthful Life."
