A large number attended convocation Tuesday morning. The first part of the time was given over to Daily Nebraskan announcement and plans, and remainder of time spent practicing the S. of A. songs.

A delegation of about two hundred members of the Omaha Stock Exchange will inspect the State Farm next Saturday. This is the annual trip of the Omahans to the Farm. The dormitory girls will serve dinner to the visitors, and in the afternoon the stockmen will attend the Kansas-Nebraska game in a body. Next spring the Farm students will be favored by a visit to the Omaha stockyards as a return of hospitality.

Work on the Plant Industry Building at the Farm is progressing slowly. The building will probably be completed next summer in time for next year's term of school. The contract for this $80,000 structure was given to George Shoul of Seneca, Kas. The material is of the Bedford limestone and gray pressed brick, the same as that of Agricultural Hall. Thus it is in harmony with the architectural plan of the campus. There will be three floors, occupied respectively by the horticulture department, entomology department, and the department of agricultural botany. In all there will be about twenty-five rooms and the entire structure will be heated and ventilated by an independent system.
