ILLINOIS SEEKS BLOOD

COMES BACK TO WIPE OUT DEFEAT OF TWO YEARS AGO.

NEGATIVE CONTESTS WISCONSIN

Teams Are Primed to Fight to Win—Dance in Temple at 9:30 o'Clock to Accompany the Debate.

At 8 o'clock tonight in Memorial Hall Nebraska meets Illinois in debate on the question of federal charters of corporations. Today the three men who will represent Nebraska are in bed behind locked doors. They have done the most of their work, and tonight will be merely a resume of the accumulated results of those labors presented in the most forcible manner known to the combined wits of Professors M. M. Fogg and G. N. Foster, and a squad of fifteen picked men.

When the affirmative team mounts the home rostrum, Nebraska's representatives on the negative will be beginning their fight against Wisconsin at Madison. They left Lincoln Wednesday, arrived at their destination yesterday, and after a short review last evening and this morning are now likewise resting and recuperating their forces for the contest before them. Prof. M. M. Fogg is in charge of the team who fight tonight away from their home platform, and he has given his word that they will fight to win.

On the affirmative team Nebraska has one veteran and two other men, who have exhibited great ability since the tryouts the first of the year. Byrne C. Marcellus, '11, law '14, is well known among the student body for his admirable work against Wisconsin in 1910, when the northerners went home defeated. C. A. Sorenson, although not a member of any previous debating team at Nebraska for two years, was actively occupied in this kind of work at Grand Island College, which combined with two years' work in the state high school league, makes him a man thoroughly capable of upholding Nebraska's honors tonight. Guy C. Kiddoo, '13, law '14, the third man on the affirmative team, is better known in other branches of school activities than debating, particularly as business manager of the Daily Nebraskan and of the Cornhusker, but has exhibited great ability in this new activity.

At Wisconsin a team just as capable will represent Nebraska. Two veterans furnish a strong defense which will not lack support from the new member. R. W. Garrett, '12, law '14, was a member of the team which met Minnesota last year. From the showing he made at that time he will be a strong factor in tonight's contest. H. A. Prince, '12, law '15, is another member of the unlucky Minnesota team who is counted on for a great deal in the debate with Wisconsin. Harry J.

ALUMNI SPIRIT BEHIND GROWTH PRIZE FOR COLLEGE ANTHEM

Recent Addition to Loan Fund Shows Active Interest in University on Part of Former Students.

That the spirit of her alumni is a powerful factor in the growth of Nebraska is aptly shown the case of the A. E. Carter Loan Fund, which was accepted by the Board of Regents Tuesday. This fund was established by Mrs. Ida C. Carter, of New York City, as a memorial to her husband.

Alfred E. Carter graduated from Nebraska in 1904, receiving a degree in civil engineering. Soon after leaving the University he was given a very responsible position in connection with the renovation of Havana. At the end of the first American occupation of Cuba he located in New York City and, for several years prior to his death was in charge of important phases of the rapid transit work there. He died suddenly at his home June 11, 1912.

In a letter to the University Mrs. Carter states that she knows of no better memorial she could dedicate to her husband. His alma mater was always very dear to his heart and he fully realized the difficulties in the path of a young man making his own way through college.

Regarding the disposition of the fund Mrs. Carter says: "It would please me that the fund be devoted to the Engineering Department whenever a need arises there, and I likewise prefer it to be used for male students."—Ly.

Burtis, '13, although a first-year man on the team, is well known over the University for his literary ability and will give Nebraska a great boost towards victory.

Illinois comes as a defeated team with hopes of retaking the honors lost in 1910 to C. L. Rein, Byrne Marcellus and Anan Raymond. Whether they attain these hopes can be told better this evening. Whether victory or defeat comes, Nebraska supporters can be sure that they were supported by two teams worthy of the school.—Sr.

Glee Club Begins a Campaign For a New University Song.

The Glee Club has decided that the University of Nebraska needs an anthem. In order to encourage the writing of one, a box at the Glee Club home concert will be given to the student or alumnus whose manuscript is accepted. The following suggestions must be complied with: (1) There should not be less than four verses. (2) The words and music must be of a serious nature. (3) The music should be set to an original melody, preferably in four part harmony. (4) The words and the sentiment of the song should pertain to the University of Nebraska. (5) Two or more persons may co-operate in writing the words and music. (6) Copyrights may be reserved by the composers.

All manuscripts must be sent to Prof. Mills at the University School of Music by Jan. 10, 1913. Enclose your name in a separate sealed envelope with the manuscript. Your name must not appear on the manuscript.

The anthem will be sung by the University Glee Club on its annual tour this year and also at its home concert.

BARKER TO START BOOK.

Has Been Requested to Write First Chapter of Handbook.

The American Baptist Publication Society of Philadelphia have asked Dr. F. D. Barker of the Zoology Department to write the first chapter of a book which they contemplate publishing soon. It is to be a handbook of 150-200 pages entitled, "The Case Against Alcohol," and will be made up of chapters prepared by experts in their line. It will be a scientific work written in untechnical terms, thus making it suitable for class purposes.—B. M.

SENTIMENT VERY STRONG

UPPER CLASSMEN APPROVE OF FRESHMEN WEARING GREEN CAPS

ACTION SETTLES THE QUESTION

Temple Meeting Poorly Attended, But Is Enthusiastic—Sinke, Coffee, Rein, Carrier and Raymond Talk.

At a meeting of the upper classes held in the Temple yesterday morning a resolution advocating the wearing of green skull caps by the freshmen was adopted by an overwhelming majority. The meeting was participated in by about two hundred students and was presided over by Harold R. Mulligan, president of the senior class. Louis Meier, president of the sophomore class, acted as secretary.

The meeting was called for the purpose of determining the attitude of the upper classmen on the freshmen cap issue, and as soon as it was called to order Sam Carrier, on behalf of the Innocents, introduced the following resolution: "Resolved, That we, the three upper classes of the University of Nebraska, are in favor of establishing the custom whereby all freshmen will be expected to wear green caps."

Remarks were at once called for after a motion had been passed limiting the speakers to three minutes. Otto Sinke took the platform and made a few remarks in opposition to the plan, in which he submitted a series of questions pertaining to the establishment of the cap idea as a precedent for succeeding classes to follow. He was followed by Harry Coffee, who argued in favor of the measure. He mentioned the fact that Nebraska was lacking in real college spirit and cited examples of good spirit in other schools where the freshman cap idea prevails. He also urged that the measure would not be difficult to enforce, because freshmen, when seeing themselves cut by their classmates for their refusal to wear the caps, would soon get in the band wagon with the majority that favored them.

C. L. Rein was called on to give his views. He declared that the issue at stake had really changed from what it originally was, that the matter was seemingly up to the freshmen instead of the upper classmen, and hence he failed to see the object of discussing it on its merits. He referred to his article in the Nebraskan yesterday as stating his position on the matter.

At this point J. A. Rodman brought up the point that the freshmen would not be allowed to establish a tradition for their successors to follow, his point being that the establishment of the custom should find its origin in the ranks of the upper classes. He, however, did not express himself as being opposed to the adoption of the resolution.
