MEMORIAL.

Miss Effie M. Longman, Fellow of the Department of Rhetoric, who died on Sunday morning at her home in Bethany Heights, has been a reader in the department for more than three years, and was known to many a student who has received her help with Freshmen themes, and to many graduate students with whom she had worked in English and philosophy. With her death the rhetoric department suffers a loss which it will be impossible to repair. She had abilities which were unusual—a clear and accurate mind that even her instructors could envy, a minute thoroughness that did more for the students whom she helped than they could be aware of, and a patience in explanation that made her help unusually effective.

It was, however, in other traits than those which could be exercised in her limited teaching that her rarest qualities could be found. Those who knew her well, or had access to the occasional stories and sketches and essays which she wrote but had no ambition to publish, had a revelation of humor, of pathos, of observation, of quiet, kind and penetrating criticism, and of a range of thought which made no demands for a wide hearing and had no obtrusiveness and no clamor. It was qualities of this rare kind which, for her friends and for her associates in the department, have made her sudden death unspeakably sad.

TEGNETS MEET SATURDAY.

The Tegner Society will meet Saturday evening, Jan. 18, in Faculty Hall at the Temple. An interesting program will be rendered. All Swedish students and faculty members are cordially invited to attend all the meetings of the society. In order that the meeting may begin promptly all are requested to make it a point to arrive at or before 8:15.

The Forum

LINCOLN, Neb., Jan. 13, 1913.—To The Daily Nebraskan: I wish to express my disapproval of the matter in which I was advertised as the soloist at the concert by the Nebraska state band, in last Saturday's Daily Nebraskan. I am glad to give assistance to what I consider a local organization which should receive the support of everybody, but it is not an occasion for any "welcome or cheering" for me and it is certainly not to be my "last appearance" before leaving for the Philippines next spring.

FLING ON EUROPEAN PROBLEMS

Prof. Fling To Give Six Lectures On Europe In Omaha—First One Yesterday.

Monday Professor F. M. Fling went to Omaha and there delivered the first of a series of lectures in the Central high school auditorium, dealing with present day European problems. The public library is advertising the lectures, which are given as part of the C. M. Dietz course. The lectures are free, but admission is by ticket.

The subject of Prof. Fling's talk Monday was "The Nineteenth Century." The full course which he will give is as follows:

- Jan. 20—The Political Life of the States of Europe.
- Jan. 27—The International Relations of the European States.
- Feb. 3—Europe and Her Colonies.
- Feb. 10—Industrial Democracy in Europe.
- Feb. 17—The Religious Problem in Europe.
