

CAMP CAUSES COMMENT

CADETS ARE NOT ALL UNANIMOUSLY IN FAVOR OF ABOLISHMENT.

BOWMAN FAVORS THE ACTION

Decrease of Amount of Work for Credit Given is Popular With Student Body—Won't Change Theoretical Course

The decision of the University Senate that the annual military camp be abandoned is concurred in by Lieutenant Bowman. He believes that the plan will be quite satisfactory that has been outlined by the Senate and should be given a thorough trial. For some time there has been a change contemplated in the military department and that it has now taken place is indicative of much discussion and study of the situation.

The commandant in an interview expressed the following opinion regarding the matter: "I heartily concur in the decision of the University Senate and am quite satisfied as to the outcome of the matter. I feel that the change of time required for drill is for the best, as a cadet may now obtain six hours of credit in two years rather than the four hours which he has received heretofore. The one hour of elective drill will be for those who are interested in military science and will give them an excellent opportunity for a more thorough study of the subject. As to camp I feel that it is best to eliminate this feature of drill at present. If at some future time an appropriation could be secured to provide for a camp for the cadets, the plan would perhaps be more feasible than the present one."

There is quite a diversity of opinion among the students concerning the abolishment of camp, but the supporters of the camp theory and those who believe that it should be eliminated seem to be equally strong in numbers. Some maintain that at camp one has an opportunity to put what he has learned during the year into practice, and also it affords a week of wholesome recreation for the student who is unable to obtain suitable exercise on account of being tied down to his studies. Others believe that the camp is a hotbed of revolution and hard work, and that one does not gain much actual experience from the week's camp. Those in control of the situation feel that the week is used by the cadets in giving vent to pent-up energy rather than in absorbing a knowledge of strict military discipline.

The compulsory drill of four hours per week has never been entirely satisfactory, and those in charge of the military department have felt for some time that the time expended by the student was scarcely proportionate to the credit received. The new plan of having three hours of drill compulsory, for which the student receives one hour of credit, and one hour elective for which one hour of credit is also given, seems to be more satisfactory than the old one, although it is not altogether satisfactory as yet.

The theoretical drill schedule will

KANSAS STUDENTS PAY WAY

Fifty-Six Out of Every Hundred Work to Go to University.

Figures compiled by Registrar Geo. O. Foster recently, show that out of every hundred Kansas University students, fifty-six pay all or nearly all their expenses without aid from home.

In the fields through the long summer, behind a desk, in a store, ploughing or peddling, do some 1,400 of those young Kansans labor to obtain those funds necessary to obtain the higher education that the state provides. Each student on registering fills out a card giving this information on his resources and the University registrar has just completed his tables from this data.—Daily Kansan.

not be changed this year and the new schedule will not go into effect until next year. The plans for the change in required hours, however, will be in operation during the next semester.
