Mining and Engineering, 8; Journalism, 5; Agriculture, 5; Forestry, 5; Diplomatic Service, 4; Miscellaneous, 7; and unknown, 6. This makes a total of 321 Rhodes scholars who have received the benefit of Oxford training in the course of six years, 1906 to 1911, inclusive. In addition to the university course at Oxford all of these students have had the benefit of European travel in vacation periods, the funds for which are provided in the ample allowance made to each Rhodes scholar.
