

SOPHS PULL VICTORY

JUNIORS LOSE BASKETBALL CHAMPIONSHIP BY ONE POINT.

ALMOST PUGILISTIC CONTEST

Both Teams Fight Fiercely for Supremacy But Sophs Climb Up At the Finish.—Score 21-22.

The Sophs have won another championship. The juniors were the goats this time. The sophs won from the freshmen several days ago and the seniors defaulted to the juniors. This left the championship game to be played between the second and third-year men. They came together last night in a battle that would put the suffragette riots of England so far in the shade that they resemble more the pink teas of our own fair maidens. According to some of the feminine spectators that were present, it was held in a manner somewhat resembling one of those inter-sorority council meetings of old.

The two teams and the dishonorable referee appeared on the field at about 8 o'clock, ready for the fray. After much arguing as to the eligibility of the various players, the battle started and it sure was some battle. The most of the Soph players were late and the team started with a crippled line-up, it being found necessary to impress several men from a gym class that was in session.

The Juniors soon acquired a ten-point lead on the improvised Soph team. The regular Soph team appeared at this moment and the game took a different turn. The first half ended with the score 14 to 9. The second half was close and some real pugilism was engaged in. Finley, the long hungry looking center for the Sophs secured several goals at this juncture and, coupled with some excellent guarding by Southwick, made the score climb up until at the close of the combat the Sophs were one point in the lead.

When the whistle blew for the final call of time a count of the injured was taken. It was found that one of the Sophs had a cut in the back of his head requiring three stitches. A junior discovered a broken arch in his foot after one pile-up. Both teams tried several times to intimidate the referee but he, being a man of fearless character, refused to be frightened and made the teams go on with the game even at the risk of his life. Some suitable reward will be given the winners.
