

OREGON SCHOOLS MAY BE FORCED TO CLOSE

University and Agricultural College Threatened Because of No Funds.

SALEM, Ore., April 4. The University of Oregon and the Oregon Agricultural college are threatened with having to close their doors for two years because of lack of funds. As a matter of fact, there will be no means of supplying funds in case there is no quorum tomorrow and no final adjournment of the legislature next week.

The legislative assembly passed large appropriations for both colleges, not only for maintenance, but for new buildings, improvements, etc., and in the case of the agricultural college, money for extension work, which if it went into effect, would enable every county to have experiment work under expert direction.

The University of Oregon medical department at Portland also may have to suspend and be closed up.

FABLE IN SLANG.

Once there a swell little College Newspaper. If you looked on the inside Page above the Deenergizing column of Black Face filler you saw just the Dandiest little list of Reporters that ever graced the Dope sheet of a One horse rag. After you had read that list of Coming Americans you felt like the World surely would be Revolutionized by such a wonderful Aggregation of Brains as all in one Organization. They ought to put out the New York World in half the time it takes the Present Staff, to judge by numbers, but the Sad thing about a College Newspaper is the Lack of Energy. Two kegs of Dynamite and fourteen threats to flunk wouldn't wake up a bunch of Dears, who had their Hearts at all set on getting Two hours for Awaking. When they reported for Nothing and revolted at the Sad Assignments, mark you, I say, when they did it it something like This "Have You Got anything for me today, Mr. Editor? but I'd rather not work. I'm so Busy you know." With visions of a Pool Table or the Book Nook Swimming before his Eyes it

WE WOULD LIKE TO KNOW

In ancient times of scraps and fights, they'd never stop to be polite nor ask the reason why. In times of feudal discontent a man would go like Caesar went, without the slightest cry. They never said, "We'd like to know," but "Scout, its time for you to go, and heres the hemlock cup." But nowadays the hammer gang lets loose an awful bunch of slang to chasten the corrupt. They yell at us in fiendish glee, and tell us that the blind could see, what they would like to know. Why have a dance which comes so high that no one can afford to buy the card that lets him go? Who guaranteed the Prom would pay, and how went wrong the Junior play? they yell at us in print. Are frat men all a pack of fools, who want to change the rushing rules; why wont they take a hint? And who can say that he has seen a Freshman with a cap of green pulled tight around his head? Why is the campus clock so slow, and will the water ever flow from our fountain's dusty bed? They question us in black-face type, and tell us it is a pipe to drop the social buzz. But though they knock extravagance, we'll stick to Flo and the formal dancer, and we should worry.—FUZZ.

requires Great self control for the Long Suffering Man of All Work to reply Sweetly "Very Well." and this not the worst. After three or Four Old Faithfuls have flunked in their Classes in order to see the Rag got out on time bye days out the week with out being Upholstered with too much Boilerplate the little Knockers send in their Hammered Compliments at each and every opportunity.
