LOSE AT IOWA CITY

the bout neither man secured a fall but within six minutes after the argument had started a second time Gran forced the shoulders of his opponent to the mat.

In the middleweight class the Iowa man weighing about sixteen pounds less than Bates, his opponent, won in a handy fashion. This was due no doubt to the serious handicap of the Nebraska man who was suffering from three badly fractured ribs.

The last event of the evening was quickly dispensed with, for Anderson, the Nebraska man, was not able to follow the fast pace set by the Iowa man. It took but a minute and a half for the winner to force the shoulders of his opponent to the mat.
