MENTAL MISHAP SENDS BILL ROSS ON "FEM" CHASE

accept the honor of his company to the "dawnce."

Now Bill cannot be censured for not starting from the frat house in time. The terrible crime of loafing about the Saratoga until in his absorption over a game of billiards he would forget the fleeting foot of time, cannot be laid at his door this time. It was really a misfortune rather than culpability on his part. Fate played a hand in the proceedings and sent him sliding down the toboggan of ill luck.

Eight o'clock saw him on the way to her happy fireside. Whistling a popular air he appeared in the vicinity where he supposed she lived. Not being certain of the house he inquired at one house where the number was. He was directed to a door further down the street. Finally after repeated questioning he found himself six blocks away from her home. "This will never do," thought Bill, as he turned and retraced his steps. This time he appeared six blocks upon the other side of her domicile. "This was too much!"

In deep disgust at the indefiniteness of the student Directory he hastened to the Nu Sigma Nu house and called up the Alpha Tau house. Harry Coffee answered the telephone and at W. L.'s command brought a student Directory and looked up the address of the young lady in question. Finally he discovered it and by comparing this with the city directory he soon discovered the error.

Again he started forth and finally after burning a few boxes of matches which taking advantage of his former experience he had purchased, knocked upon the proper door and was ushered into the presence of the patiently waiting young lady.
