

Overflow Forces Museum to Pile Relics in Tunnels

The overflow from the museum has filled the campus tunnels with skeletons of ancient animals. A saurian, one of the terrible snake-like brutes of an early geological period has been unearthed recently and removed to the museum.

The student who ventures into the campus tunnels may be startled by the suggestive heaps of bones that are stored away in obscure corners and dark holes. The lack of museum space to accommodate all that comes in forces the department to use the tunnels for the time being.

There are animals of all types represented. The bones of the mammoth, a huge ancestor of the elephant, with fifteen-foot tusks is no more strange than the eighteen-foot reptile that was last week taken from the tunnels and put together at the museum. Perhaps the most remarkable fact is that these animals were inhabitants of a tropical Nebraska.

TEMPLE HIGH SENIOR CLASS GIVES PLAY SATURDAY NIGHT

Will Present "Varsity Coach"—Fred McConnell Coaching Cast.

The third annual play of the senior class of the University high school will be given next Saturday evening in the Temple theatre. The play selected for presentation, the "Varsity Coach" is a college comedy in four acts. The acting is not difficult and the parts have been well chosen so that the management feels assured that it will be the most successful of the class plays. The leading parts are taken by Miss Gladys Wilkinson and Conrad Wilson of last semester's graduating class. F. C. McConnell, of the University Dramatic club, is coaching the play. Seat sale on sale at the Y. M. C. A. desk in the Temple.

"Hanky Panky."

Thursday night Lew Fields' all star company in "Hanky Panky," another big musical show that is nothing more than a great big vaudeville entertainment. This company travels entirely by special train and are now in their seventy-eighth week with exactly the same company of principals that have been with the show during their long run. This melodious jumble of pillification is interpreted by one of the finest casts of funmakers ever assembled and a chorus conspicuously singled out for Paris. Lew Fields has given "Hanky Panky" by far the most stupendous production he has ever offered to the public. Seldom, if ever, are three such riotously funny comedians as Max Rogers of the famous Rogers Brothers, who, it is said, has the greatest part of his career; Bobby Borth and Harry Cooper, recent co-star with Mlle. Trentini in "Naughty Marietta" have been seen on the stage at the same time; then there is Hugh Cameron, always the pink of sartorial perfection and Dapper Clay Smith; Christine Nielsen statuesque and shapely as ever while Billy Montgomery and Florence Moore the world's greatest vaudeville team introduce in "Hanky Panky" their new and original conceptions of eccentric comedy. There are seventeen musical numbers and there will be an augmented orchestra of some eighteen musicians.

"I personally guarantee that no better or larger attraction has ever been presented in Lincoln or in any other city in the United States." "F. C. ZEHRUNG"
