

Student Suitorium
Well Established
In New Quarters

After the fire in its quarters at 504 North Fifteenth street last January, the Students' Suitorium was obliged to move and is now located at 510 North Fourteenth street. The new quarters are neat and as improved equipment has been added from time to time the quality of the work is equal to that of the downtown suitoriums.

The business of the firm is growing and at present, employs five men including a tailor and delivery man. The cleaning is done by a downtown firm but by next year the two students expect to have added to their equipment and floor space so that they will be able to take charge of this phase of the work as well.

Next semester there will be a new member of the firm, J. C. Maylor, who is connected, at present, with a clothing company but will attend the University next year.

FOREIGN TRADE AND SHIP

extend through a larger and more efficient consular service our general commercial knowledge of South America. These are the methods that have gained for Germany her present hold on the South American market, and these, says Raymond, are the only methods by which we can wrest that valuable trade from foreign control.

Mr. Raymond's comments are brief, scientific and to the point. The rhetorical style of his production is conservative; and to those familiar with his fervid manner of speaking the subdued tone of his presentation seems novel. His sentences may betray some anxiety for statistical exactness. His paragraphs may seem less vital than mechanical, and his theme as a whole may reflect less of his admirable economic philosophy than many of the brilliant productions he has rendered in our midst. Still this is the first time Mr. Raymond has turned out for national consumption the thoughts of a real student, and we must concur with what seems to us is his policy in hewing at the outset straight to the line.
