GALLERY HAS NEW COLLECTION.

The College of Fine Arts has a new collection of seventy pictures on exhibition in the Art Gallery. These are colored prints reproduced from original famous paintings on canvas, wood and panels, and from frescoes. They are Medici prints from the German, Flemish, English, French and Spanish, published and copyrighted by the Medici society, limited. In their nature the prints are mostly portraits, but there are a few landscapes.

Among the artists represented in the collection are Rubens, Corot, Van ayke, Guido Reni, Raphael, Murillo de Vinci, Rembrandt, Phillipino Lippi. All of the originals are in Europe either in national galleries and museums or in private collections. The collection in our gallery is worth almost seven hundred dollars, the price of the individual prints ranging from five to seventeen dollars.

There are also on exhibition 50 plates of models of decorative art from the French Academy.

A Correction.

Owing to an oversight, the name of Harry Burtis did not appear as the author of the Senior poem in yesterday's issue.

Ralph E. Weaverling of North Bend, was a visitor at the Alpha Tau Omega house Friday.
