Sig Chis, Wrathful at Story of Burglary, Threaten to Hold Up "Cornhusker"

Indications Thursday evening pointed to the expurgation of another Cornhusker with a possible delay of weeks in issuing. The objection is being raised by the Sigma Chi fraternity because of alleged objectionable matter with which their name is connected. The item in particular is an account of a supposed burglary committed upon a neighboring sorority house in which a number of chairs and other pieces of furniture were deftly removed to other quarters.

Members of the frat have taken the matter up with the school authorities and attempted to get the objectionable page removed before the issue. The issue has been delayed until the matter can be looked into. Whether or not the objectionable matter was presented to the censors of the book for their perusal could not be learned. The matter on its face does not appear bad, but the frat has taken it as an affront.

At the time of publication it was impossible to reach either of the men responsible for the book, so the public is in the dark as to any plan of action they have made. It is probable that the affair comes as a total surprise and that they will be forced to do a tall lot of thinking today and tomorrow with the public demanding their books and the wrathful Sig Chi's hot on the trail of the censors.

COMPANY K WINS COMPETITION

ANNUAL COMPETITION OF UNIVERSITY CADETS OBSERVED WITH APPROPRIATE CEREMONIES

COMPANY 'Q' PARADES AT NIGHT

Entire Regiment Celebrates Ancient Custom of Shirt-Tail Parade Through Streets, and Bonfire.

Activity in the military department of the University came to a glorious close yesterday afternoon when West Point traditions were observed in the ceremonies of competitive drill and announcement of new officers. Ten companies were tested in rapid succession with the result that Company K was awarded the first place.

Company K Wins Honors.

K is a comparatively new company, having been organized only four years ago, and it is the first time that they have occupied the head of the percentage column in compet. C. B. Peery captained the company and L. A. Townsend and E. E. Frost were the first and second lieutenants respectively. The other nine companies followed E very closely, ranking in the following order: D, A, B, I, G, E, M, C, and F. The highest, K, scored 999.8 points out of a possible 1,000, and the lowest, F, 875.6 points. I, the winning company last year, was the favorite during the afternoon, but was unable to stand the pace and slipped down to fifth position.

Silver and Bronze Cups Given.

Following the company compet, the three battalions gave exhibition drills in close and extended order and Butt's manual. Three and four men from each company took part in the individual competition which easily proved to be the exciting event of the afternoon. Beautiful silver cups were awarded Paul Dewell and William C. Chapin, the winners of first and second places. It was a close race between four men, Harold Graham and W. H. Bauman taking third and fourth places. A bronze loving cup was presented Oscar E. Hans for making the highest average team score in the inter-collegiate gallery competition. With the ten cadet companies formed in a huge semi-circle facing the grand stand, the sponsors presented the captains with the sabers given them by their companies. Dean William G. Hastings presented the individual prizes, and Company K was presented with the Omaha cup, a sterling silver pitcher, amid the cheers of the other companies.

Officers For Next Year Appointed.

Officers and non-commissioned officers for next year were announced to the assembled companies, and under the new commanders the men were marched in review before the retiring officers. The men who will command the cadet regiment next year are as follows:
