Members of Senior Class Offer Varied Convocation Program

Convecation yesterday at 11 o'clock was held under the auspices of the Senior class. Edward Huwaldt, as chairman of theconvocation commit-

Mary Davis, Vern Hoatson, Miss tee, selected the best talent of the Senior class for the final appearance before the university public. The oppressive heat of the forenoon was probably the cause of the small attendance.

The program, each, number of which was heartily received, consisted of the following:

Vocal solo, "The Birthday," by Woodman, Miss Evangeline Long. Library Clock Talk, Mr. Harry J. Burtis. Violin solo, "Mazurka," by Meynarski, Miss Gladys Smith. Plano solo, "Liebestraum," by Listz, Mr. Harold Rosenbaum. Reading, "In the Toils of the Enemy," by Wood, Miss Florence Farman.

Company "Q" Goes on Raid.

In celebration of the results of the afternoon's competition, the annual nightie brigade stampeded the streets of Lincoln and for some two hours pierced the sanctimonious atmosphere of the "holy city" with plentiful noises and screeching university and company yells. The itinerary had its beginning at the Armory and after following R street to Sixteenth turned to O street. The nocturnal marauders paid their respects to Riggs, who returned the compliment with a generous handout of punch, and paraded the boards of the Lyric for the purpose of adding zest to the movies. The gang then moved on to the Lindell where they wound through the corridor to the strains of "Rub-a-dub-dub." A raid on Rector's was unsuccessful by reason of having both front and back doors slammed and locked in their face, and a boycott was immediately suggested by the disappointed mob as a deserved punishment for the inhospitality of the store.

After a promenade through the Lincoln, the snake dance headed for the Temple and later to the athletic field, where a monstrous bonfire was built. Fiendish dances with flying apparel and canabalistic rites in the warm glow of the fire, accompanied the sacrifice of the night shirts as they were cast into the blaze by the galloping mobs. Few broils were stirred up during the whole affair, and except for a few thefts, the most pernicious evil of the evening was the jerking of trolleys on passing cars.
