AN EASTERN EXPERIMENT.

Nebraska is watching with interest effects of the injection of eastern athletic blood into the scheme of athletics which has been developed by Coach Stiehm and which has proved so very successful in comparison with the other schools of the valley. Assistant-coach Dudley has been considered a fair type of eastern athlete, having played three seasons in the back field with Dartmouth, and he will be depended upon to emphasize those points in play which make eastern football what it is. The question is, just what is eastern football?

Our alumni have conceived the idea

Names Go the Way of the Forgotten When Called at First Roll

Names are supposedly attached to persons as identification tags, claim checks, so to speak, but anyone who ever advanced this theory can see the exceptions which prove the rule every opening day of school. Then it is that the freshman wonders whether he's in class or not, whether he's even registered or not. And it is not always the new students, but frequently the old stand-by's, who had thought their position on the official roll books secured by several semesters.

One of the chestnuts which never grows old is cracked every time the professor mixes his genders in calling the first roll. As sure as fate, the class laughs when some meek little freshman girl is forced to admit that she's not under false colors in answering to the name of—say, "Mr. Jean T. . . ." It is even better, to assume that that brawny candidate for football honors is Miss Frances—

We'll admit that some of our names are funny, but it is somewhat of a rub to have the class think so, too. "Mr. Dippy, is Mr. Dippy present?" queries the instructor, and Mr. Dippy sinks gracefully into the nearest corner before replying.

Perhaps sometime all names will be typewritten, and the instructor will not have to rely so much upon his imagination.

If by any chance you ever get anything from us that isn't entirely satisfactory, we want to be the first to know it. Our service means: "to please you in every particular."

Right now we're making a host of friends by showing a new English Model for Young Fellows. It's by Hart Schaffner & Marx and worth remembering.

that Nebraska should follow the eastern style of play, and therefore the demand for an eastern player as assistant coach. In general the idea should be a good one, but it remains to determine in what Nebraska is weak, and whether the eastern methods differ enough from our own to make any appreciable difference. In the opinion of the average Nebraskan, Coach Stiehm is building up a style of play here in Lincoln which is making good. It has proved effective against our conference neighbors. If coach Dudley can help make it effective against Minnesota to him will fall no small share of the praise. But to Coach Stiehm and his "western" system, we doff our hats. In other words, Nebraska is more than glad to get the assistance of Coach Dudley, as a coach. As an instructor in eastern methods his work will be regarded largely as an experiment, and loyal Cornhusker appreciation will reward its success.

Crowd at Fulk Opening

Several Thousand Visited the New Store on Saturday

Several thousand people attended the opening of the Fulk Clothing Company's new clothes shop Saturday. All were agreeably surprised to see the new store and heartily agreed that it was the most beautiful and best equipped store for modern merchandising they had ever seen even in much larger cities.

Those who did not attend this opening, whether they wish to buy clothing or not, will be well paid to visit this elegant clothes shop for men.
