VARSITY-FRESHMEN MIX

LONG GRIND STAGED AT STATE FARM WITH HONORS EVEN.

HAWKINS HAS JONAH DAY

Breaks Tendon in Right Leg and Little Finger—Moving Pictures Taken of Scrimmage.

H. V. HARLAN.

The center of Nebraska's football interest shifted to the State Farm last evening, where a hard-fought scrimmage was staged between the freshman eleven and the varsity stalwarts. For over an hour the two elevens sweat, ripped, and struggled with honors about even. The varsity showed occasional flashes of mid-season form, but for the most part the playing of both teams was ragged.

Hawkins is Injured.

All in all, it was an expensive practice. Early in the set-to Hawkins got the little finger of his right hand broken. Later, while running a freshman punt back he was tackled around the neck and received a nasty fall which resulted in breaking a tendon in his right ankle. He was carried from the field with his ankle rapidly swelling to twice its normal size. This will, in all probability, keep Hawkins out of the game for a week or two.

Freshmen Buck Line.

During the first ten minutes of play the freshmen kept the ball in varsity territory through the plunging of their two halfbacks, Rasmussen and Chamberlain. These two men seemed to be able to rip through the varsity line at will, making their biggest gains through the right wing. Within five yards of the varsity goal the freshman fumbled and Hawkins booted the pigskin back to the middle of the field. There was a lot of fumbling on both sides. Hawkins missed some easy chances, but his kicking was good.

Varsity Begins Progress.

The varsity finally took the ball and began a steady walk for the freshman goal line. A few minutes later they drew first blood when Westover (who had taken Hawkins' place at quarter) went over for a touchdown. Coach Stiehm then gave the ball to the freshman on the varsity five-yard line, admonishing the varsity that "they would have to stay there all night until they could hold the freshmen for ten downs." After the first-year men had made five or six, more or less, touchdowns, the varsity was able to stop their onslaught, which ended the battle.

More Men Needed.

It's a little early yet to make "dope," but a few more grinds like the one yesterday will round the Scarlet and Cream into shape. Coach Stiehm did not have much to say. But one thing he did say, and that was that there is a glaring scarcity of material. And he is right. Ames has ninety men out, and last evening "Jumbo" had not more than fifty. The Coach MUST HAVE MORE MEN.

Physical Education Class Increased in Size This Semester

Twenty-one more girls are enrolled in the physical education department of the University this year than last, in all forty-seven girls. Miss Ina Gittings, physical director, is again giving the course in playground work, which was very popular last year. All of the 1913 graduates of this department have good positions this year, according to Miss Gittings, and are scattered in many states—Washington, Indiana, Tennessee, Missouri, and Kansas.

These girls are placed in positions as physical directors as follows: Marian Swezey, State College, Pullman, Wash.; Edith Shank, Superior; Emma Sullivan, Broken Bow; Florence Farman, Williams Woods College, Fulton, Mo.; Ethel Johnson, University of Washington, Seattle; Amy Garner, Y. W. C. A., Rushville, Tenn., and Anne Wynne, city playgrounds, Kansas City.

One new instructor is in the physical education department at the University this year, Miss Bessie L. Clark, from Courtland, N. Y., a graduate of the New Haven Normal School, who takes the place of Miss Anna Day.

Miss Bess Dumont, physical director of the Omaha High School, is a graduate of the physical education department of the University, as is also her assistant, Miss Mary Herbert. Other young women from this department who are filling important positions as physical directors are the Misses: Martha Bell, a playground director at Los Angeles; Armanda Clement, Y. W. C. A. at La Crosse, Wis.; Myra Conner, Y. W. C. A., Council Bluffs; Minnie Jansa, Y. W. C. A., Tacoma, Wash.; Adele Koch, Peru Normal; Nellie Miller, Spokane, Wash., High School; Bessie McGuire, Los Angeles High School; Margie Richards, high school, Lincoln; Mable Salmon, Y. W. C. A., Springfield, Mo.; Anna Smith, high school, Indianapolis; and Jessie Beghtol and Inna Gittings, in the physical education department at the University.

LIKE A NEWSPAPER OFFICE

Only Printing Presses Lacking in the School of Journalism.

New York, Sept. 25.—With reporters' rooms, editors' office, libraries, clipping files and other features of up-to-date newspaper plants, the new building of the School of Journalism at Columbia University will throw open its doors to students on Wednesday, when the academic session of the university gets under way. The absence of large printing presses is all that is lacking for a complete newspaper plant. The building has been carefully arranged for the teaching of journalism.

The school of journalism was made possible by the late Joseph Pulitzer, who gave Columbia $1,000,000 for its establishment.

Freshmen Girls' Rally In Temple to Number of One Hundred

The freshmen girls' rally held in Music Hall of the Temple was a decided success—a satisfaction, especially to those who had the meeting most at heart. Nearly a hundred girls were present.

Miss Mabel Bunt presided at the meeting, first introducing Mrs. Raymond, who led the singing of the "Cornhusker" and "Scarlet and Cream." Following this, Miss Graham gave some excellent advice to be profitably adhered to during the semester.

Valeria Bonnell, president of the Y. W. C. A., spoke in behalf of the University association, while Miss Hills and Miss Daniels boosted the University chorus and the Girls' Club. Miss Armstrong urged all present to support athletics.

STILL VACANCIES IN CHORUS

In Preparation for May Festival Chorus Has Been Doubled—Chorus Men Excused from Half of Drill.

While much enthusiasm has been shown in the University chorus by the students enrolled for that course, there are many places yet to be filled by those who take an interest in the work or who desire to exempt themselves from drill for two days in the week. The chorus of last year will be doubled this year, making the number some 300 members. A good start has been made and work will commence immediately in preparation for the May festival to be given in conjunction with the Minneapolis Symphony Orchestra.

Work on the University chorus will exempt the members of the three upper classes from military drill for three hours a week. For freshmen who are required to take five hours of drill, and for those who desire to take the musical work in addition to drill, Mrs. Raymond has arranged for a special rehearsal for men alone at 7 o'clock on Monday evenings, the latter plan giving one hour credit for drill and one for chorus. Those who have already arranged their schedules will be permitted to change them so as to include the chorus work.

Mrs. Raymond, in her room in the Temple Music Hall, will be glad to give information and receive applications for the drill chorus.

UNION LITERARY RECEPTION

All Students Invited to First Reception Given by Union Society.

The reception given by the Union Literary Society will be held in Union hall, in the Temple, Friday evening, September 26, at 8:15. This is the opening reception given for any students who are interested, and all are cordially invited. The affair will be strictly informal, and new students will be especially welcome.

MINOR SPORTS ARE COSTLY

ALTHOUGH GRIDIRON SPORT MAKES GOOD PROFITS, ALL GOES TO PAY DEFICITS.

ROB FOOTBALL OF ITS MERITS

So Says Lincoln Star, Basing Opinion on Facts Shown by University Books.

The figures on the books in the office of the Secretary of the State University show that the receipts from football during the 1912 season not only met all of the incidental expenses around the gymnasium and paid for the expenses of the team, but that there was sufficient balance at the end of the season to pay all the deficits of the track, baseball, wrestling, cross-country, and gymnasium team.

However, when the expenses of the minor teams were paid there was not enough cash left in the treasury to come anywhere near providing for the adequate facilities to take care of injured football players during the present season. The gridiron game showed a balance of $3,765 at the end of last season, and it was one of the poorest years, financially, that the sport has encountered in the Nebraska school. The ordinary season will yield between $4,000 and $5,000.

In a very few years this surplus, if used for football purposes, would give the athletic board a sufficient sum to build a structure upon the athletic field and equip it with all of the modern appliances known to the physical training world for the prevention and curing of sprains and strains as well as more serious injuries.

Money Goes to Other Sports.

If the money which football has made for the athletic department of the state school had been used for such purposes during the past ten years Nebraska would now have an equipment which would rival that of any school in the country in caring for injured players. But this surplus has been spent in sending track teams to the meets in the valley and the gym teams to Chicago and the football men, the men who earn the money, must put up with an old-fashioned and worn out machine for baking charley horses which the coaches in an up-to-date high school would scorn to use.

The books in the administration building tell the tale. The figures had not been totaled yet for the year 1912-13 Thursday morning, but a reporter took them off the cash book and they are authentic. Basketball is the only sport outside of football which paid for itself, but the great indoor sport did not leave practically any surplus in the treasury after the season was over.

Wrestling, a sport that the students scarcely ever hear of and which gives athletic training to about a half dozen men, squandered $242 in cash which could well have been used by the football management in improving the bathrooms and massage apparatus for the players. Baseball spent $999.53
