THURSDAY CONVOCATION.

Music.

A string quartet with the organ will give a program in Memorial Hall on Thursday morning at 11 o'clock. The program follows:

Andante cantabile (Tschaikowsky) string quartet.

Capriccio Italien (Tschalkowsky), strings and organ.

Edw. J. Walt, first violin.

Mrs. August Molzer, second violin.

Mr. William T. Quick, viola.

Miss Lillian Eiche, 'cello. Mrs. Raymond at the organ.

Unless something else of importance intervenes a musicale similar to this will be given every Thursday at convocation.

ENFORCEMENT BY REPETITION.

We learn in rhetoric that enforcement may be secured by repetition. A central theme, repeated with variations, catches the attention of the reader or hearer and is held in the memory after other less emphasized statements have been forgotten. That being the case, the freshmen who were at the rally yesterday morning will understand why Dr. Condra was introduced as the "Father of Nebraskan Spirit." For a number of years he has taken this subject, "Nebraska Spirit," as his theme, and convocation after convocation, rally after rally, freshman class after freshman class, have heard the vigorous injunctions of this "red-blooded Nebraskan." And every hearer has felt the force and sincerity of his remarks, and been moved, in greater and lesser degrees, toward reaching the ideals of the Scarlet and Cream. No better advice could be given to students set adrift in a large university at this time, than to think carefully over "Doc" Condra's advice, and to act in the spirit of his words.

THE GATHERING OF THE CLANS

with the announcement of class elections, to be held next Tuesday, there may be expected to come the hasty gathering of the clans. And the little campus work will of course quiver with the excitement of the coming contest? Well, hardly. Politics, striped of all its ornaments by the relentless Australian ballot, is now numbered among the minor sports. With the reservation, however, that it is leading the minors. So, the word "quiver" will hardly express the probable attitude of the campus. And yet, the classes go on as usual, and the number out to vote seems to those interested the smallest in years, the followers of the game will be on the sidelines to the finish, and the work of the clans will be apparent on the surface, as usual. And in the end the final count will show that a goodly number voted after all, whereupon the names of the successful candidates will be reported in the "Rag," for future reference when their success has been forgotten by the rank and file, and the clans will resume their warring with one another.

GOOD FOR WASHBURN.

The students at Washburn University are already planning a special train for the trip to Lincoln when the Sons of Ichabod meets the Cornhusk ers on Nebraska field this fall. The school down at Topeka seems to be behind its eleven from the start this fall, and although the game with the Cornhuskers is three weeks distant subscriptions are already being taken up by the Athletic Management to engage the train. That is the school spirit that makes a football team fight to the last whistle for its students, and although Jayhawker rooters have always stood behind the Red and Blue whenever the occasion demanded, nevertheless we'll have to give it to the Congregationalists for their early display of "pep."-Kansan.
