

The Daily Nebraskan

VOL. XIII. NO. 24.

UNIVERSITY OF NEBRASKA, LINCOLN, SATURDAY, OCTOBER 18, 1913

Price, 5 Cents

NEBRASKA vs MINNSOTA

"Stiehm" Roller In Great Shape to Flatten Wily Gophers. Game Will Be Battle of a Decade

GAME CALLED AT 2:30

Coach Stiehm Says, "We Have a Good Chance of Winning." Teams Evenly Matched. Both Stronger Offensively than Defensively.

(H. V. Harlan.)

Today the eyes of the entire Middle West are focused on Nebraska field where will occur a contest of giants. The North has come to do battle with the West. It is the big game of the year. All Nebraska is on tiptoes awaiting the result.

The wily, cunning Gophers have descended from the north and will try to defeat Nebraska. The strong, sturdy, sagacious Cornhuskers are filled with gritty determination to drive the invaders back, broken and beaten. It will be the battle of a decade.

Twenty-two human units, selected and trained with exceeding care, will line up, the one against the other, to strive, to struggle, to sacrifice for the great Universities they represent. The pigskin will flash in and out of sight; body will crash against body; brain will be matched with brain and brawn with brawn. The thunder of the impact of one flesh and blood machine against another flesh and blood machine will rise in the autumn air. Those who are fortunate to witness the battle will thrill with the magnitude and glory of the contest. It will be a fight until the last whistle is blown; with no quarter given and none expected; with no excuse for defeat; with no arrogance in victory.

"Stiehm" Roller In Fine Shape.

The Cornhusker machine, familiarly known as the "Stiehm" Roller, is in the best condition. Coach Stiehm has groomed his warriors well and they are each and every one in perfect shape to put up the greatest battle of their lives. For three weeks the W. W. has been pointing his coaches towards the Big Game. For three weeks he has been working his disciples with but one aim in view, to wit, that they should be in perfect condition to whip the Gophers. He has done all that a coach could do. It is now up to the machine that he has cemented together to show the stuff they are made of, and for the students to show that they are with "Jumbo" and the team in either victory or defeat. On the eve of the battle the lion-hearted mentor said, "The team is in fit condition. The backfield is as strong as any in the West. The line has developed in wonderful fashion and is capable of playing stone wall football. WE HAVE A GOOD CHANCE OF WINNING."

Minnesota Is Strong.

There is no gainsaying the fact that the Cornhuskers will face a wonderfully strong machine in the Gophers. Yet Minnesota is not invincible. WE

(Continued on Page Three)

Pathe's Weekly Takes Films of Olympic Events Over

University Will Be Advertised Over the Entire Country.

During the Olympic contests held on Nebraska Field last Saturday a battery of cameras was in action, among which the most interesting feature was the moving picture machine manipulated by Dr. Condra. He succeeded in getting some exceptionally good pictures of the medicine ball contest and the free-for-all. These pictures have been taken up by the Pathe's Weekly people and will travel all over the United States. This will be very interesting to those who took part in these two contests, and they will be more or less anxiously awaiting the arrival of these films in Lincoln. The fact that these were not state films, but private ones, will be of interest.

Today there will be two moving picture machines in action on Nebraska Field. They will take pictures of the crowd and of the battle between Minnesota and Nebraska. These films will be sent over the state and exhibited in most of the towns.

Miss Venice Peol, '06, of Washington, D. C., is visiting friends in Lincoln.

AULD LANG SYNE

A WELCOME TO THE HOMECOMERS WHO MEET ON THE CAMPUS TODAY FOR THEIR SECOND ANNUAL HOMECOMING.

By DR. CHARLES E. BESSEY.

Here you come trooping back home again after an absence that has made the old folks think of the days when you were with us with all your rollicking ways. And as you come we listen for your footsteps, hoping that you will be as glad to see us as we are to look into your faces again. How the old days will be revived in our memories as we see your glad faces, and clasp your warm hands. We shall think of you as you were ten, twenty, thirty years ago, before Time had touched your heads with silver threads.

You will find some of the faculty of three decades ago still on the campus, and still at work, and we shall make it our pleasant duty to welcome you back to your alma mater. But you will see some vacant chairs; you will miss some faces from the faculty. You will not see MacMillan, nor Hitchcock, nor Aughey, nor Nicholson, nor Hicks, nor Brace, nor Rachel Lloyd, nor Ellen Smith. We who remain speak for them the welcome they would have extended to you.

Call the roll of the Chancellors while you are on the old campus. Dr. Benton is living quietly a mile away in this city; Dr. Fairfield has left us for the unseen beyond; Dr. Manatt is a student of Greek in an eastern university; Dr. Canfield has passed over into the other life; Mr. MacLean is a student of education in England; Dr. Andrews lies in an invalid's bed in the south; while Dr. Avery is filling the chancellorship with great distinction and success.

Call the roll of the professors. Three or four only that you knew thirty years ago will answer to their names. And then look at the long line of men and women who now constitute the faculty. There are more of them than there were of students thirty years ago. And although they are strangers to you they are doing as good work as was done by those who taught you so well long ago.

And then the students of today. How very young they look to you! Of course they do! But they are no younger. You are older; that is all. They are wonderfully like you in every way. And why shouldn't they be like you; for some of them are your children, and others are your neighbors' children.

So welcome back to the "Old Uni." Come and be carefree boys and girls again for a day, while your proud alma mater smiles her welcome to you through her glad tears.

CHARLES E. BESSEY.

VISITORS HERE IN SQUADS

ANNUAL HOMECOMING BRINGS BIG CROWDS TO CITY TO SEE MINNESOTA GAME.

RECEPTION GIVEN THIS EVENING

Commercial Club Will Entertain—Guy Reed Holds Open House in New Office.

Today's homecoming will stand long in the memory of Nebraskans, both students and alumni, as the greatest ever held. Enthusiasm is boiling over in every branch of the University. Everybody is brimming over with the desire to give the visitors a good time.

Alumni will meet a warm reception today from the minute they step off the train till 10 o'clock at night. A reception will be given in their honor by the Commercial Club at the club house from 8 till 10 this evening. Open house will be held at the new alumni headquarters in Administration building all day with the new secretary, Guy Reed, receiving visitors. Alumni headquarters will be opened at the Lindell Hotel, where a special supper will be on the schedule at 6.

The biggest event of the day will be the reception in the evening. Chancellor Avery, Governor Morehead, Lieut. Governor McKelvie will all make short speeches. A string quartet will furnish music and several soloists will be on the program. The musical part is under the supervision of Mrs. Raymond.

At the fraternity and sorority houses miniature homecomings will be on deck all day, and various rejoicing get-together meetings will follow each other in close succession.

WILL SELL MINIATURE HORNS AT GAME THIS AFTERNOON

Noise-producers Vended by Gentlemen Desiring a Dime.

Noise-producers in the form of tin horns that could be used by a vessel in a fog will be sold on the field today. Minnesota is at least sure of a welcome equal to that of ten factory whistles blowing off at the same time. Perhaps there is method in this madness and the noise intended to drown out the signals of Williams' Gophers. The price is one small dime, so get your horn, and if you can't yell, toot for Nebraska.

Doctor's Thesis Published.

The last edition of the "University Studies," the magazine containing the literary work of the faculty, and published by the faculty, contains Miss Laura B. Pfeiffer's Doctor's thesis. The issue is given over entirely to a full publication of this thesis, the subject of which is "The Uprising of June 20, 1792."

No Autos for Freshmen.

At Cornell a new rule has been passed barring freshmen from having automobiles. It is argued that the time and attention involved is more than a freshman can spare, and also that the spirit of democracy suffers.