MISSOURI SCRIBES DOPE NEBRASKA CONFERENCE WINNER

See the Results of the Saturday Game as a Prediction of Later Season Results.

Nebraska's victory over Minnesota and the elimination of Drake as a contender for the conference championship were the outstanding features of Saturday's football games in the Missouri Valley Conference. The race for the championship was narrowed to four teams with Drake out of it, Washington and the Kansas Aggies already eliminated, Washington by two scores and Drake at the hands of Kansas, at Ames, and Manhattan by a defeat at Nebraska a week ago.

The defeat of Minnesota by the Cornhuskers means a large boost for Missouri Valley football. Minnesota was considered one of the contenders for the Western Conference title, and Nebraska's victory stamps that team as one of the strongest teams in the west. It puts the Cornhuskers in the lead for the valley championship for the week at least. They have a great forward passing team, and it was the combination of Towle, quarter, and Beck, left end, using the forward pass that beat the Gophers.

Kansas went far toward proving the claim of being the strongest team in years by putting Drake out of the race for the championship. The score, 11 to 0, was made of a touchdown, a field goal, and a safety. The Jayhawkers had the advantage in weight, and in spite of Drake's stubborn defense gained much more ground than their lighter opponents. Kansas showed skill in the use of the forward pass and the play of the ends, Reber and Strouthers, was especially brilliant. Simons, the Drake star, did not show to great advantage. The Kansas team was coached to watch him.

Missouri's defeat of the strong Oklahoma eleven, shows that the Tigers will have to be reckoned with for the conference title. The Missouri line looms up strong at the ends and the secondary backs show plenty of room for improvement.

Ames is the tough team still in the race. They own Aggies showed Saturday that they were most decidedly in it. The 27 to 7 thrubbing they administered to Washington shows that the Tigers are going to meet a strong team at Ames next Saturday. Washington is outclassed, it appears, but somehow the dope always goes wrong when the Tigers play in St. Louis.

JACK BEST, DREAMER OF VICTORY, BACK AT POST

Illness Proves to Be Cold Contracted Through Exposure on Field Saturday.

Old Jack Best, the veteran trainer in the "husker" camp, is again at his post in the training quarters of the great team after a short illness. Old Jack had a slight cold before the day of the Minnesota game. He was somewhat nervous as to the outcome of the game, and therefore decided that it would be best for him to be on the field. By looking after the hurts of some of the men he neglected himself, with the result that he contracted a worse cold. He was troubled some in breathing on account of the sore throat and found that he must go home and take care of the case before it developed into anything worse. As is always the case, old Jack forgot himself when he attending to the troubles of another.

On the day of the great contest Jack was delighted to shake hands again with old members of the squad, some having come from far off. Two men came way from Canada to see the game, and it was this spirit that made Jack feel so good. The present teams, and all the teams for the past twenty-five years that Jack has been in service, have considerable credit to give to the old trainer for his competent work along this line. It was due largely to the presence of old Jack on the field Saturday that the spirit of the men was kept up. Jack says, "I would like to see more freshmen get out for the football team." Let's see some of this spirit, frosh.
