somewhere in the inner recesses of the theatre. Placing the glass under his coat, he returned and announced his intention of solving the mystery.

The wand waver once more put his mirror in his kerchief and advanced to the box. Max seized the rag, made a quick twist of the wrist, and produced a mirror.

The villain was foiled. He stepped back in dismay and proceeded to examine his sleeve to find out the why of his discomfiture. When he finally discovered the glass way up by his elbow, he realized that he had been sadly tricked. Then he opened up such a storm of abuse as has seldom been heard in the history of the Lyric. The magician said several things about young smart alecks and boys wishing to show off before their girls, and he said them in a vehement manner. But the crowd only giggled. Their sympathies were all with Max.

quently referred to was the need for and the power of prayer. Prayer was the moving power of the convention, and the delegates returned convinced that it should occupy a greater space in the lives of Christian students.

Mention of the lessons learned from foreign fields was made in several discussions. Medical missionary work, the need of missionaries in China, Africa, and other countries, and the need for haste in missionary service were points that appealed. The majority of the men returned with a higher sense of each one's responsibility here, if not abroad.

The men who spoke were as follows: G. H. Lamphere, Stanhope Pler, S. H. Anderson, I. N. Kindig, W. F. Urbach, A. F. Camp, R. W. Orr, I. P. Banerji, C. W. Smith, Chas. Hauptman, W. J. Houmark, Frank Carlson, R. L. Ewing.

It was announced that the meeting next week would be addressed by W. A. Rollins, on the "Jiggle Pin."
