TENDERS HIS RESIGNATION

the summer. By this means the student has more time to plan his course for the future year, as he can have a catalogue to take home with him upon leaving school in the spring.

Upon Mr Rutledge's recommendation the old plan of having the graduates march on to the stage for their diplomas was abolished. Instead of this plan, which was a cause of disorder among the audience and lengthening of the ceremonies, each graduate's name is called off by the registrar and he is to call for his diploma at the registrar's office.

Mr and Mrs. Rutledge will make their new home on a ranch near Clayton, New Mexico, where Mr Rutledge's brother, Carson, who is also a former student of this University, now lives. Carson has developed the ranch to such a stage the one man can not do the work. Mr Rutledge finds it necessary to resign his office to help his brother to run the ranch.

New Registrar.

Vancil K. Greer, who was chosen by the Board of Regents to succeed MR Rutledge, is well known on the campus. He has had several years of experience in the office of the registrar and is thoroughly competent to fill the position. During his term of office as assistant registrar he has acquired a reputation as a conscientious, faithful worker and big things are expected of him in his new capacity. Greer was a member of the graduating class of 1910 and holds an LL. D. degree. He is also a member of Delta Chi fraternity and his home is in Lincoln.

on some of the fossil fauna which have lately added to man's knowledge of the world. Most of the material used in his lecture was reconstructed skeletons, largely the result of his own work.

Dr. Williston, in opening, complemented Professor Barbour and the University on the excellent collection of fossils in our museum. The speaker then related his own initial experiment with fossils, the reconstruction of the skeleton of a Kansas reptile. Then he traced the evolution of animal life. Skeletons and reconstructions were thrown on the screen picturing the evolution from the earliest time, from the long-snouted individuals with fish-like tails, past the ancient crocodiles, the reptiles with grotesque shapes that looked like the personification of a bad dream, down to respectable-looking reptiles in which a faint resemblance to our own ancestors is traced. Four laws of evolution were emphasized: (1) As a type progresses, there become fewer parts, with great specialization of the few; (2) An organ or structure once lost is never regained; (3) No smaller creature ever descends from a giant, the giants—like the elephant—are the final step in their phase of evolution; (4) There must either be an increase in brain capacity of the race will go out of existence.
