Happy Inspiration.
Now and then accident and a happy inspiration combine to get the trump exactly what he is after. Stock Yards Jack was slowly plodding his weary way toward Boston, fourteen miles distant, while auto after auto sped past, blind to his appealing glances. Finally one stopped beside him.
"Say," inquired the chauffeur, "how do I get to Boston?"
"Just follow me," he returned. "I'm going there myself."
And he went forthwith—in the machine.

Positive Proof.
"Bad luck that for poor old Bill," said Jinks, the chauffeur. "He got fined for taking out his employer's car without permission."
"But how did the boss know he took it?"
"Bill ran over him."

Kidney & Co.
(BY DR. J. H. WATSON)

The kidneys and the skin work in harmony. They're companions, the skin being the second partner. If we are anxious to keep well and preserve the vitality of the kidneys and, also, free the blood from noxious elements, we must pay special attention to a good action of the skin and to see that the kidneys are flushed so as to eliminate the poisons from the blood.
Sweating, by hard work or in a bath, at least once a week, helps to keep the skin and kidneys in good condition. Flush the kidneys by drinking plenty of pure water with meals and between meals. Occasionally obtain at the drug store Anuric, double strength, which will help flush the kidneys and the intestines. You will find that Anuric is many times more active than lithia and that it dissolves uric acid as hot water does sugar.

Omaha, Neb.—"From my earliest recollection Dr. Pierce's remedies have been used in our home. Personally I had a wonderful experience with the 'Golden Medical Discovery.' I had a severe attack of Grippe, which weakened my lungs. I coughed incessantly. The doctor pronounced it tuberculosis. His medicine did not relieve me, so my mother reminded me of the 'Discovery' and urged me to take that alternately with the 'Favorite Prescription,' and these medicines completely restored me to health. That was one year ago and I have had no sort of lung weakness since—in fact, not even a slight cold—have been in the very best of health."—MRS. BERTHA FORD, 953 S. 51st St.

"You know Booster? He's in khaki at present, but wait till the war's over, and you'll see him grow rich," said Smithers. "He's going to make the matrimonial agency popular."
"Ah!" said the others.
"Yes," he says hundreds of thousands of bright boys will be coming back to their former haunts to find their promised brides married to munition millionaires. They'll look around them and see the advertisements: "Booster's Bonny Brides. Write for Booklet." Then they'll get a booklet full of testimonials.
"I know," said Brown. "Like this: 'Dear Boosters: I was a bachelor with nobody to love me. Now, thanks to you, I have a wife and family and all the usual trimmings.'
"Or this," ventured Tomkins: "When the war was over and I had no nice, comfortable trench of my own to shelter in, I began to think peace wasn't a blessing after all. However, I married one of your Bonny Brides, and now I wonder whether we shall ever get another war."
"Ha, ha!" cried Brooks. "This is one testimonial that's sure to turn up: 'Two years ago I married one of your brides, since when I have kept her mother.'—London Tit-Bits.

Topics of Interest on Home and Farm Building

William A. Radford tells the man who builds a medium priced home or farm building how to get the most in material value, convenience and architectural good looks for his money, in his articles which appear in the Northwestern weekly. He gives the latest ideas in construction and enables you to build without the expense of consulting an architect.

NEAT DWELLING DESCRIBED

Plant Dark Leaved Shrubbery Near Structure and Make Foundation of Dark Texture Brick for Most Pleasing Results.

By WILLIAM A. RADFORD.

Mr. William A. Radford will answer questions and give advice FREE OF COST on all subjects pertaining to the subject of building, for the readers of this paper. On account of his wide experience as Editor, Author and Manufacturer, he is, without doubt, the highest authority on all these subjects. Address all inquiries to William A. Radford, No. 1827 Prairie avenue, Chicago, Ill., and only enclose two-cent stamp for reply.

There is, of course, a direct relation between the house and its surroundings. By this we mean that either the surroundings must be laid out for the house, or, as in the case where a spot of special natural beauty is selected for the building site, the house must be designed for the surroundings. The latter case obtains in some small towns and in country estates. The former case, or a compromise between the two, exists in the larger towns and cities.

Perhaps it is not the case in this country so much as it is in some of the European countries, but the fact is true, nevertheless, that for the lover of beauty both natural and architectural, the small town which has been situated where nature has furnished plenty of trees, a pleasing topography and clear-watered streams—such a town offers the best possible site for the building of a home. The point is this: It is cheaper and usually more satisfactory to let nature furnish the attractive surroundings and model the home into the background, than to build the background for the home.

Not that those who have studied in the subject of scenic architecture loneliness. Therein lies the greatest advantage of the beautiful small town. Habits do not have to be changed, friendships may be formed and the normal conditions of life exist. The man who owns an isolated summer home seldom goes there with his family alone—he crowds the house full of friends (or if he doesn't his wife does). And what is the reason? Simply that "I" is not used when the real pleasures of life are being discussed; the correct pronoun is "We."

What of the case in which nature has not contributed and the means are not available to supply the deficit artificially? The case is not hopeless! By proper architectural treatment a house may be placed on a 50-foot lot which is by no means devoid of beauty. True, it is largely up to the house itself, since little can be expected of the surroundings. The architect, in this case, can hardly hope to obtain pleasing re-suits if the size of the house required is large. When a structure of moderate size is called for, his skill will enable him to do so design it that it will appear smaller than it really is.

The attractiveness of a house which will yield well to a decorative treatment such as that shown in the accompanying view cannot be questioned. The white lower portion, in contrast are not able to produce pleasing surroundings for the house, for they have proved their ability to do so. Because it is impossible for some lovers of beauty to go where nature has provided it, the work of the landscape architect is very important. The small town blessed with natural beauty is, then, not so much to be considered as the only possible site for the building of a beautiful home as it is to be considered as a spot which offers advanwith the upper dark portion, is very pleasing and always gives the impression of brightness that goes with well-kept premises. The upper part of the walls is finished with shingles, while the lower walls are faced with beveled siding. The porch is built into the house and fitted in a manner which gives an air of privacy. A set of screens may be used on this porch during the summer time, these to be taken out during the winter and glass sash inserted in their place. The porch will then act as a blanket to protect the front of the house from winter winds.

The small vestibule in which the staircase is built has a cased opening into the living room. The fireplace in this room is tucked cozily into a corner and a little seat is built against the wall at one side of it. A cased opening leads back to the dining room, which is built into the corner of the house—the ideal situation for this room. A first-floor bedroom, which would make an excellent den if not needed for other purposes, is entered from the dining room.

The kitchen with its connecting pantry is well arranged to meet the demands of the critical housewife. A work table is built beneath the pantry window and the cupboards are handily located on either side. The refrigerator may be placed in the pantry, and an opening is provided so that it is level from the landing at the top of the short flight of steps leading from the grade entrance.

Three very large bedrooms are provided on the second floor. Each has a generous closet fitted with shelves at both ends. The bath is centrally located off the hall at the head of the stairs.

The view also shows a neat and inexpensive two-car garage built on the rear lot line. The garage is painted white to conform with the lower part of the house with which it is in line.

A house finished as this one is, requires the use of dark-leaved shrubbery near the building. The reason is that the upper dark walls need to be balanced by a mass of dark color near the ground. The effect is carried along by building the foundation walls above grade of some dark-colored material such as may be found among the many patterns of modern rough-texture face brick.

tages hard to obtain in imitation of nature, unless a large sum of money is available for the purpose.

The question might be asked, "Why not go to the country where nature's work has not been marred by the inroads of civilization?" A logical question, and in some cases the affirmative answer is unquestionably the right one. The man who comes from the city, however, or even the town, has been brought up in close touch with the people around him. His habits have been formed in the influence of society. Put him and his family away from the rest of the community and the result is

DADDY'S EVENING FAIRY TALE
BY MARY GRAHAM BONNER.

CAT, DOG, AND HEN.

"A cat, a dog and a hen," said Daddy, "were sitting on the piazza of a large house.

"Along came another cat. 'Meow-meow,' she said. 'Would you like to have me call on you? Is that dog polite?' she added in a whisper to the cat on the doorsteps.

"Very polite," said the cat. And the dog wagged his tail, which meant, "Thank you."

"Then I think I'll stay a while," said the cat. "I would like a sun bath, for it's pretty chilly in the cold wind. Why are you all sitting outside instead of staying in the house? Of course I suppose Mrs. Hen doesn't belong in this house. She has a house of her own, with the other hens and chickens."

"Yes, she has her own house," said the cat at the doorsteps, "but she is here to help guard."

"Why do you guard the door?" asked the visitor cat.

"Because the family was away on a visit. They will be gone all day, and we are guarding the house. The family are so nice and kind to us that we wanted to see that no unwelcome callers got in. When they get home they will reward us by good suppers. And around at the back of the house we have hidden some food in case we get hungry during the day. You see the dog brought a bone here to play with."

"Is That Dog Polite?"

"Well," said the visiting cat, "who are you trying to keep away?"

"I am going to keep away all mice," said the cat.

"Are they apt to call?" asked the visitor cat. "I might like to help you keep some of them away myself."

"The dog laughed and the hen cackled at this, but the visitor cat went on talking. 'Tell me some more,' she said.

"The dog will keep away tramps, and the hen will eat up all worms."

"But do mice and worms call on the family?" asked the visitor cat.

"I have never known them to," the cat on the doorsteps answered, "but then we can never be sure when they might begin. It's best to be sure that they don't get in."

"I see," said the visitor cat. "So you're having a good time while looking after the house."

"Oh yes," said the cat on the doorsteps. "We are having a very good time. Why should we be unhappy and miserable?"

"There is no reason at all why you should be," said the visitor cat. "And even the sun is obliging."

"Yes, the sun is most kind. He couldn't bear to see us here in the cold without his strong rays to keep us warm."

"So the visitor cat sat down too, and chatted with the cat, the dog and the hen.

"I would like to know," said the dog, "why your eyes are so different at different times?"

"Whatever do you mean?" asked the visitor cat.

"Sometimes I've seen them look big and sometimes rather small."

"Ah, now I understand," said the visitor cat. "When we are in a dark closet looking for mice our eyes become larger. It's partly the effect that the darkness has on our eyes and partly because we're looking forward to finding mice. Of course Grownups think it's simply because of the dark closet—but it's partly because of the secret I've told you."

"Just then a shrill whistle was heard through the stillness. And then came a cloud of smoke from the train. The animals didn't know that it meant that their family, who had been away at a neighboring place for the day, were on their way home.

"But before long they saw them walking along the road toward the house."

"I must be going," said the visitor cat. "They might shoo me away."

"Oh no," said the cat on the doorsteps, "do stay for supper. We have an especially good one when the family have been away. They're afraid we have been lonely."

"Sure enough the visitor cat stayed to supper, and they certainly all had a feast."

The Silent Year.

You read of the great men and women, and of the splendid things they have achieved, and your ambitious soul yearns to meet the longings somewhere within you that will not be stilled. Some day you, too, will do something big, write some book, paint some picture, compose a masterpiece of music, inaugurate some wonderful reform for the good of the world. But you feel so small in the vastness of the world that you are doubtful as to the possibility of any power you ever may have being discovered.—Girl's Companion.

The Two Bills.

Vice President Marshall, at a luncheon at Atlantic City, was condemning the belligerent and bullying nature of the Kaiser.

"From the time he mounted the throne," he said, "from the time he ousted Bismarck and imprisoned his own mother in a castle, he showed what a dangerous bully he was."

"His memory in history will be like the memory of that other Bill, an East side one, to whose widow a neighbor said:

"So Bill's dead."
"Yes, he's dead."
"I suppose he's hittin' the harp with the angels now."
"More likely," said the widow, "he's hittin' the angels with the harp."

With the Fingers! Says Corns Lift Out Without Any Pain

Soft corns, hard corns, soft corns or any kind of a corn can shortly be lifted right out with the fingers if you will apply on the corn a few drops of freezone, says a Cincinnati authority. At little cost one can get a small bottle of freezone at any drug store, which will positively rid one's feet of every corn or callus without pain or soreness or the danger of infection.

This new drug is an ether compound, and dries the moment it is applied and does not inflame or even irritate the surrounding skin. Just think! You can lift off your corns and calluses now without a bit of pain or soreness. If your druggist hasn't freezone he can easily get a small bottle for you from his wholesale drug house.—Adv.

Grafts With Skin Scrapings.

A simple method of grafting skin is described by Doctor Buermann in the Muenchener Medizinische Wochenschrift. After raising the skin with salt solution he scrapes it with a razor until he has collected on the blade a mass of mushlike particles of skin. He transfers this to the raw surface, which needs no preparation.

A dressing of boric acid saline is allowed to remain unchanged for five or six days. Then the surface is tightly dressed with strips of plaster, which is left on for a week before renewing. After two or three renewals the scarcely visible particles of skin have grown and spread until they have covered the raw surface.

Oklahoma Druggists Recommend Great Kidney Medicine

Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, during the past eleven years, has enjoyed a splendid reputation, according to the reports from our customers who have tested its value and claim it is a preparation of merit in the conditions for which it is intended. The age of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root speaks in merit in ailments of the kidneys, liver and bladder; if it had not produced satisfactory results to its users it could not have lived as it has.

Breaking a Horse.
A North Vernon citizen living at the outskirts of the city makes a specialty of raising fine horses, especially of the race horse breed. The man's son, a youngster of nine years, was greatly delighted when his father brought home a wooden riding horse. Sometime afterward the boy got an ax and broke the newly acquired toy. He was reproved by his mother who was silenced by the boy's remark: "Papa told me the other day that a horse was no good unless it was broke."—Indianapolis Star.

No Place for the Flag.
A workman hurrying to catch a street car, the other morning, stopped suddenly at the edge of the gutter in Washington street.

"Forgot something?" asked a passerby.

"No," said the man as he stooped in the gutter. "I'm rescuing Old Glory."

Then he picked up a 3 by 4 flag that had blown from an auto.

"That's no place for the flag," said the man as he wiped off the mud and walked away.—Indianapolis News.
