INSURANCE ON PENSIONS.

The government is taking up a question of the most far reaching importance relating to the care and protection of soldiers of the present war. Plans are being developed that will be submitted to congress by the administration proposing to abolish the system of pensions for wounded soldiers and surviving kin and to substitute in place thereof, a plan of casualty insurance.

Last week there was an important conference held in Washington to which were invited the leading life insurance men of the country. Nebraska was represented at this conference by President W. C. Wilson of the Bankers Life. Tentative proposals were discussed at his meeting. Secretary of the Treasury McAdoo proposing that congress shall specify before American soldiers are sent into battle the death injury benefits that shall be paid by the nation.

It is proposed to make direct compensation in a considerable sum through life insurance rather than having a pension system with a small payment monthly in vogue for many years after the war. Two questions were raised in this connection. One a plan that provided that the government should insure its soldiers against death and injury with the insurance company, the companies to accept the business at the high rates which will be charged for war insurance. The other provision was that the government should undertake the whole obligation congress appropriating funds to cover the death and injury benefits.

It was plain in the discussion of the questions, that the administration is opposed to continuing the present pension system during and after this war. It is contended that the total cost to the government would be much less through direct benefits than under the present pension system. Insurance proposed was for a sum to be fixed not less than $1,500 of insuring a soldier against death or total disability, and the maximum compensation of $5,000 for the death or total disability of an officer was also proposed. It is probable that the insurance that would be given soldiers would be between this minimum and maximum. Under the plan presented, a soldier's widow would receive direct insurance money of not less than $1,500 whereas under the pension plan, a Civil war soldier's widow was granted $12.00 a month.

Of course this question when it goes to congress will attract nationwide attention and will be discussed in all its phases so that when a decision is reached, it will be a decision coming from the approval of both congress and a majority of the people interested.—The Trade Review.

Fat Cattle In Light Supply—Steady to Stronger

HOGS STEADY TO 10c LOWER

Run of Sheep and Lambs Is Rather Limited and Quality of the Offerings Not Very Attractive. Trade Is Slow With Prices Invariably Lower for All Grades.

Union Stock Yards, South Omaha, Neb., July 17, 1917.—The week opens out with a rather light run of cattle, about 3,200 head, and a steady to strong market for desirable beef steers. Choice 1,400-pound beef steers brought $13.35 and choice yearlings $13.25. Medium and common stock was slow sale, but not notably different from the latter part of last week. Cow stuff ruled about steady, choice grassers bringing $9.00. Inquiry for stockers and feeders was better than recently and prices stronger.

Hogs Steady, Close Lower. A rather liberal Monday's run of hogs showed up, about 7,800 head, and there was a very good demand from both packers and shippers. Best grades of all weights sold at steady prices early, but later the market was dull, with prices 5@10c lower than Saturday. Tops brought $15.40 and the bulk of the trading was around $14.65@15.00.

MUTTONS STEADY TO LOWER.

With a very limited run of sheep and lambs for a Monday, about 2,300 head, the market showed little change as compared with the latter part of last week. Demand was very fair and while trade was steady to a shade lower, a good clearance was made. Some right good yearlings brought $11.35.

Quotations on sheep and lambs: Lambs, good to choice, $15.25@15.40; lambs, fair to good, $14.75@15.25; lambs, culls, $13.00@14.75; lambs, feeders, $14.25@15.25; yearlings, fed westerns, $10.75@11.50; yearlings, range, $10.00@11.00; wethers, fair to choice, $9.00@10.25; ewes, fair to choice, $8.00@8.75; ewes, culls and feeders, $6.00@8.50.

CURBING THE WASTE.

Just now the housewives of the country are being deluged with advice and warnings as to waste in the kitchens. In nine families out of every ten the advice is entirely superfluous, from the fact that prices and pocketbooks fail to harmonize. Economy was the first lesson learned by the women when the present era of high prices opened. There is practically no waste in the average American home.

The waste and extravagance in this country is in the hotels, restaurants, cafes, etc., and in the mansions of the idle rich. Intelligent economy will never be practiced in these places so long as people persist in from six to ten course meals, of which but a small fraction is actually consumed, the residue going either to "second hand" resorts or to the swill barrel. No system of food economy can be successful that permits waste of products for no other reason than that the waster has the price.

SHORTAGE IN CORN RESERVE.

Nebraska, Iowa, Illinois, Indiana and Ohio, the five largest corn-producing states, have reserve stocks of corn of only 357,000,000 bushels as against a nine year average of 467,000,000 bushels, according to figures made public by Herbert Hoover at Washington. Nebraska is the only state with a larger reserve than usual, the excess in this case being only 4 per cent, while the other states are materially short.

VALUABLE POINTERS ON CANNING.

Attention of the housewives of Loup City and vicinity is called to an article in this issue of the Northwestern showing the various methods and processes of canning fruits and vegetables, prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture. This article will undoubtedly be of decided value to everyone who contemplates this form of conserving food products. Conserving our foodstuffs is the most important question confronting us at the present time, and this article is intended to further the great campaign which has been under way for some time. A LONG WAR.

Those who imagine the war will end soon by reason of Germany's shortage of men are due to receive a jolt in an estimate of German casualties recently made public in London. According to this report, Germany has lost in killed since the beginning of the war, in round numbers, 1,500,000 men. Add to these 500,000 taken prisoners and an equal number disabled by wounds, and we have a total German casualty list of 2,000,000.

According to the most reliable estimates obtainable, Germany has on the various fronts a total of from 10,000,000 to 12,000,000 men. To these may be added through the natural growth of the population at least 750,000 soldiers yearly. By which it may be seen that at no time since the beginning of hostilities has Germany been stronger in man power than at present.

One of the most fatal errors that one can make is to underestimate the strength of a foe. That is one error this government is not making, and it explains the deep and thorough preparation that is being made for the conflict before us.

ELIMINATING GRAIN SPECULATION.

It looks as though the Chicago board of trade has decided to eliminate largely speculation in food commodities during the war period. On Wednesday of this week, the Chicago board of trade fixed a maximum price of $1.25 per bushel for December and May deliveries in corn, and this would appear to practically terminate grain speculation.

A maximum price such as this on the board of trade would put a bar against speculating in futures, limiting buying for future delivery to a fixed price. This would not affect the cash buying and selling figure that would be governed by immediate demands, but it would do away with speculative advances that find their worst feature in the fact that grain products such as flour, are advanced from time to time as the speculative price advances without any real foundation for the higher prices.

Some time since, the Chicago board of trade put on restrictions in wheat by placing a maximum figure. The result of this was salutary for almost immediately unnaturally high prices for wheat were eliminated and the stopping of dealing in wheat futures caused a recession in the price of wheat in some instances to nearly a dollar a bushel. This brought a change in flour prices, and everywhere made a more stable price for wheat on a more legitimate basis. When the speculators were denied speculation in wheat, they turned to corn and corn prices have been kiting on the Chicago board of trade beyond any reasonable limits. With this organization now fixing a maximum price on futures corn prices will do the same as wheat prices did—recede to a more fixed and normal basis and there will be a steadiness in the market that will do much toward making fixed and stable price conditions. In the face of a growing corn crop, beyond all precedent in this country, have been able to force up prices to an unnatural basis. These speculative or really gambling figures did not make for the consumer any fixed advance in price. It did make a wide range of margin in which gamblers bought and sold without regard to the real basis of supply and demand.—The Trade Review.
