Only Republican Newspaper in Sherman County

Edgar Howard, of Sarpy county, has sent Governor Holcomb his resignation as a member of the legislature. Mr. Howard was a member of the house and had the distinction of being about the only democratic member of that body. In his letter he states that he resigns because his fellow-citizens have elected him county attorney.

Bob Ingersoll said some 15 years ago that he would join the church when Kentucky went republican. He has been reminded of the fact since the recent election, but says that he doesn't remember of having made such a statement, and now that Kentucky has really gone republican he is more than ever convinced that there is no hell.

It must be a source of joy to the populist party to know that they polled as many votes in Buffalo county as they did in several states. As a local calamity it seems as tedious as a Nebraska drought; but it has no place and no growth in old prosperous states. If the pops ever get a president he must be elected by the votes of Dawson, Buffalo, Custer and Sherman counties.—Buffalo County Sun.

The republicans of Howard county achieved a great success in the late campaign by reason of having organized a republican club which, as an organization did active work all through the campaign. A move of this kind should be made by the republicans of Sherman county, and soon. The presidential campaign will soon be here and it would not look well to see the whole Union go republican except Sherman county. Let us get the machinery in motion.

Republicans who feel a little discouraged at results at home have only to put on their long range spectacles and take a look at the returns in every state that held an election last Tuesday. Without consulting the returns from Ohio and other republican strongholds, the fact that Maryland and Kentucky have repudiated democracy ought to stiffen the back bone of every republican in Buffalo county.—Buffalo County Sun.

The independent leaders are boasting of the increased vote of the populist party in Iowa, but say never a word of the great vote polled by the republican party of that state. The increased populist vote, however all comes from the democratic party but not one from the republican party. The democrats in Iowa are using the populist party for a stepping stone. Not wishing to come over to the republican ranks all at once they have taken that round-about way and in 1896 they will undoubtedly vote the straight republican ticket.

The supreme court has handed down among others an opinion which is of interest to sheriffs, policemen and other officers who have charge of prisoners. The case is that of Joseph Lamma, who was a deputy sheriff of Buffalo county. The prisoners in the county jail had made up a plan to escape by rushing out past the guard when he came in to bring them food. Lamma was standing near the door when Rogers, a young man of about 20 years of age, who was held charged with a felony, came running down the corridor. Lamma raised his gun and fired, the bullet striking Rogers in the breast. He turned when shot and went back to his cell and there died. The supreme court sustains the judgment of the lower court, which convicted Lamma of manslaughter.

A Washington correspondent to the Lincoln State Journal writes: Washington is still thrilling with the excitement of the late election. The scenes on Pennsylvania avenue on Tuesday night, when the great crowds gathered in front of the bulletin boards and blocked the transit of cable cars, bicycles and pedestrians equalled those at the close of any presidential campaign. The interest excited to learn whether the landslide of 1894 was to be an avalanche in 1895 was supreme. It was felt that election night would indicate whether popular condemnation of democracy a year ago was simply transitory or whether within twelve months of calm consideration the deliberate verdict of voters was to endorse and emphasize that of a year ago.

The result has left no doubt. The democratic party is felt even by its ablest leaders to have been tried in the balance and found wanting. Two of the southern states for the first time has gone overwhelmingly republican, despite the motheaten bugbear of negro domination which in both Maryland and Kentucky was once more dangled in the face of voters. Democrats in Washington are despondent. They accept the outcome as a verdict of condemnation against the imbecility of the democratic party, against its lack of cohesion, against its lack of principle. Many of them declare that the Fifty-third congress has thoroughly deserved the stamp of disapproval placed upon it by the voters of the republic. In full possession of all the branches of the government, with ample power to formulate and enact legislation in accordance with their party promises, with opportunity to make a foreign and domestic policy which would commend itself to broad Americanism they failed utterly and two successive elections have shown that the appreciation of the failure by the people of the country was no less thorough than the failure itself.

The elections of Tuesday are figured out here in Washington on both sides to mean certain republican success in 1896, the control of both branches of congress for a number of years to come, with a republican executive to approve or disapprove the laws passed by a republican national legislature. The senate will pass into the hands of the republicans with a good working majority in 1897, when five republican senators will be added from the states of New York, Maryland, Ohio, Kentucky and Kansas, not to speak of the two republican senators from the new state of Utah who will take their seats early next year.

The free silver craze is shown to be rapidly subsiding, and the policy for which the republicans have always fought and by which the dollar of the laboring man has been maintained in its purchasing power at the highest standard of the world's money will not be successfully assailed. The republican policy of protection, adjusted to the needs of labor, will not be permitted to go by the board. There will doubtless be modifications of the tariff, sufficient to provide a revenue for the needs of the government and our foreign policy will once more be placed upon a plane where the American flag will protect all of its citizens wherever found and where the American doctrine which denies the right of foreign interference with the republican institutions on the American continent will be something more than an empty declaration.

One by one old traditions are knocked into a cocked hat. Grimes, that good old soul, is not dead after all. Reports of a semi-official nature show that he was elected judge of the Thirteenth judicial district over Judge Neville, pop, by 100 majority, and republicans are correspondingly happy.—State Journal.

Work on the mammoth addition to the starch works plant at Nebraska City is progressing at a lively rate and it is expected to have the foundation completed soon.

For a few weeks past we have been unable to give much attention to our local columns. This was occasioned on account of political matters. But now that election is over things will be different and we promise to make the NORTHWESTERN come up to its usual high standard in point of local and general news.

The following letter from John O'Neill, of Bristol township, should have been given space last week but in our rush we forgot it, however, we will do Mr. O'Neill, even at this late date, the justice in setting him right before the people. He denies having made the statement referred to in his letter and at the same time threatens to see us personally if we do not publish his letter. We do not publish it however because of this threat but because we desire to give Mr. O'Neill a hearing. The report as stated by the NORTHWESTERN had been commented upon and talked about by dozens of people before the NORTHWESTERN mentioned it. While we have not, nor do yet charge Mr. O'Neill with having made the statement, and only published it as a report yet it would seem that where there is so much smoke there must be a little fire. The following is Mr. O'Neill's letter.

Ravenna, Neb., Oct. 28th, '95. ED. NORTHWESTERN, Sir—I see published in your last issue a paragraph stating that I expressed myself to the effect that there were not protestant votes enough in Sherman county to elect a certain man for treasurer. Now sir that is a malicious falsehood, and I demand you to correct it in your next issue or I shall see you personally about it. I have very little to say on political matters during this campaign and further more I never did stoop so low as to give utterance to sentiments of that kind, and I challenge anybody to prove my being guilty of anything of this character. And now I desire you to publish this letter.

JOHN O'NEILL.
