PENSIONS AND REVENUE.

MAY BE A DEFICIT AT THE END OF THE YEAR.

EXPENDITURES INCREASE.

Receipts from Customs Under the New Tariff Law for the First Month of Its Operation Have Fallen Below the Estimate, While Expenditures Show an Increase Over Same.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 20.—Anxiety has been expressed in some quarters lest there be a large deficit in the revenues of the government at the end of the fiscal year.

"I don't anticipate any deficit in the revenues of the government this year," said Colonel H. Clay Evans, the commissioner of pensions, to-day, "although the expenditures for pensions will be greater than the appropriation, thereby necessitating a deficiency appropriation for their payment."

"How is the increase for the year accounted for?" Colonel Evans was asked. "Well, to begin with, there are something like 200,000 old claims pending before the bureau, which will be acted upon as rapidly as we can get to them."

"Then there is a remarkable increase in the number of new applications for pensions. For instance, in the last six months of the fiscal year of 1896, the applications under the general law were 15,900, while in one month alone in 1897, the month of June, there were 18,168."

"What occasioned such a marked increase in the applications?" "Well, while I have had little communication with the old soldiers to determine what moved them in the matter, I think I could make a pretty good surmise. I guess some of the boys had been holding off under the last administration from applying for pensions, concluding that they would rather try their chances of getting their applications granted with a Republican administration."

GEORGE GOULD OPTIMISTIC

United States Conditions Never So Good—The Taxes on Millionaires. NEW YORK, Sept. 20.—George J. Gould, with his family, returned to this city yesterday on the American liner St. Louis. For three months while he had been resting in Europe the business revival has added at least $15,000,000 to the value of the Gould securities.

"There never was a time," said Gould last night, "when conditions promised so much for the United States. We have the tariff settled, we are rid of the silver and other bugaboos and—well, everything looks all right. There has been a strengthening in the markets all along the line. Business men abroad realize that the United States is now master of the situation. We have the goods to sell—grain, cotton, etc. The crops are short, their needs are great and they must buy of us. In moving our enormous crops there will be an increased activity in railroad securities and the railroads that are benefiting by this are busy building cars and engines to handle the immense tonnage which must be hauled this fall."

Gould was told of the trouble that has been caused in Tarrytown through high assessments on estates of wealthy residents. "The up-state people are simply following the example which the tax-officers of this city set them," said he. "Why should they drive rich people away from New York city and New York state? I was the first victim. Our estate and my personal property were taxed at an advance of 1,000 per cent without a similar advance in other properties. I would not stand such gross and unjust discrimination, although I am always willing to bear my fair share of taxes."

A., stationed in the East, now visiting at Fort Leavenworth, and Percy Darragh, who is studying medicine at the University of Pennsylvania.

NEBRASKA VETERANS

PART OF THEIR TIME DEVOTED TO THE STATE'S HONOR.

The Soldier Sentiments of Senator Allen—His Interests in and Efforts For Those Who Saved the Country—Congressman Strode and Hon. W. J. Bryan Talk Briefly.

The occasion of "Nebraska Day" at the reunion of the soldiers of Nebraska at Lincoln, the speaking was held in Exposition hall. Chairman Erhardt read telegrams from Congressmen Greene and Stark, announcing their inability to be present. A letter from Senator Allen was also read, the first part of which told of his participation in the war and devotion to the old soldiers. It continues: "For those who honestly served in the same great, just and holy cause, whatever their station in life may be, I have strong feelings of affection akin to those existing between brothers, notwithstanding on political questions we may widely disagree. Men capable of sacrificing personal convenience and risking health and life in the accomplishment of a great cause in the interest of the race are too broad-minded, sensible and patriotic to cavil with others who performed a like service respecting their political opinions."

The war for the union was fought on the theory that ours is a national government and that this is an inseparable union of indestructible states, and that a state having entered the union becomes an integral portion thereof and cannot throw off or abandon its allegiance at any time a majority of its citizens may so declare. This is the settled doctrine of our country. We are not only a federal union, but a nation, and our government possesses, and can exercise for the common good all the power that any other national government can rightfully exercise."

Thirty-two years have passed into eternity since the close of the war in which we served together and the mustering out of the volunteer army and navy. Those who were then more soldiers have become gray-headed men and in the west have encountered the hardships, privations and experiences of a long, useful and active life. It must have impressed itself on all that with our retirement from the army we did not cease to be charged with duties and responsibilities of a very high order and of an important character. The same cause that impelled our enlistment and induced us to encounter the hardships and experiences of a soldier's life, namely, the preservation and protection of the union, has doubtless induced us to perform our duty as citizens to the best of our ability, in making more secure the foundations of civilization and in strengthening the government wherever, in our judgment, it may have needed strengthening."

I may be permitted to say that I shall in the future, as I have in the past, use every reasonable and honest effort to advance the interests of the soldiers and sailors of this state and nation. I have during the incumbency of my present office had under consideration 965 pension cases at the bureau of pensions, many of which have been granted, besides having introduced and secured the passage of many private bills. I have strenuously contended on the floors of the United States senate, and shall continue to do so, that all who honorably performed like services in the cause of the Union should be equally rewarded in the granting of pensions, and that the artificial distinction between husbands, made necessary by the existence of a state of war, shall not continue between their widows after the war closed and each took his station in the rank of citizen. I shall earnestly continue this line of advocacy until such an odious condition shall have ceased to exist in the United States. The wife and children of a soldier who performed meritorious and honest services for his country and risked life and limb at a time when the government needed him, should be rewarded equally with the wife and children of those who received higher pay, greater honor and emoluments during the short period such distinction existed."

Among the speakers was Congressman Strode. He gave a review of the causes that led to the war, and said that the greater part of the army that marched to the front in 1861 was in the eternal camp today. He discussed the war as it affected Nebraska, and followed the state through its formation of a state government and admission into the union, eulogizing Marquette and Thayer as two of its greatest patriots. The part of present patriotism was to "stand up for Nebraska." The state had increased in population from 200,000 in 1867 to over a million in 1897. It has grown into a great commonwealth since the war. It was being built up at the time Ben Wade said: "I am in favor of homes for the homeless, rather than niggers for the niggerless." In 1870 the state raised 7,300,000 bushels of corn; in 1880, 59,000,000; in 1890, 190,000,000, and in 1897, fully 300,000,000 bushels. In 1870 there were 298 school houses in the state, and now there are 7,000, the state having the lowest percentage of illiteracy among all the states. The speaker thought we ought to stand up for and be proud of the state. This would be true patriotism. He said there were many sincere people who preach and profess patriotism, but the true patriot is the one who practices as well as preaches.

Congressman Strode was followed by Hon. W. J. Bryan. He thought, however, that on occasions like this it was proper for those to speak who took part in the war, rather than those who were born too late to enter the great struggle. We can look back upon the little contest in which we have been engaged and find how small it was compared with the civil war—the greatest war of history. The war was great because conquered enemies had been converted into permanent friends, and the greatest question that has ever arisen in the history of a nation had been settled forever. We are now part of a great nation, and whatever a majority of the people decide, whether we as individuals like it or not, is the law of the land. The glory of the late war grows brighter as the years go on, and the leading figures grow more conspicuous, the one great central figure being Abraham Lincoln, who is now revered by north and south alike. Mr. Bryan referred to Mr. Strode's definition of patriotism and said he was glad that the word was broad enough to include some besides those who actually fought in the war. The patriot was a man who fought the battles of his country, whether they be fought with bullets or with arguments. It was important to win our liberties, and just as important to preserve them. "If a man hasn't a chance to die for his country, isn't it a glorious thing to live for it?"

Corn for Table Use. A model kitchen in which will be prepared in a scientific manner Nebraska's staple product, Indian maize, in all its varied forms, is the scheme proposed by Mrs. Harriet S. MacMurphy of Omaha to the Nebraska Exposition commission. Some of the members are disposed to look with great favor on the scheme as being a most valuable means of showing the world the great value of corn as a food for man as well as beast, thereby increasing the demand for the crop with which Nebraska can supply the world.

Mrs. MacMurphy's plan contemplates the establishment of a kitchen which shall be a model for a housewife, fitted with all the most improved culinary apparatus for preparing food in the most scientific manner. In this kitchen Mrs. MacMurphy proposes to give daily demonstrations all during the exposition, showing to all visitors who desire to be informed the result of scientific investigation into the art of preparing food for the table in a manner which will insure the best results from the nutrition therein contained. Mrs. MacMurphy proposes to make a specialty of preparing corn for table use, and for this purpose she proposes to demonstrate by practical methods the very many tempting forms in which this highly nutritious food may be utilized by man. These delicious preparations will be prepared in plain sight of visitors, and they will then be distributed among the people who desire to have further proof of their excellence.

Nebraskans Are Going to Texas. The Trans-Mississippi and International Exposition is to be boomed in the south by another party of Nebraskans. On the evening of Saturday, October 2, there will leave Omaha over the Wabash railroad a party of sixty-five Nebraskans, bound for Texas. They will occupy two Pullman sleeping cars and they will be gone eight days. Twenty-five members of the party will be from Omaha, and the remaining forty will be prominent representatives of the leading towns in the state.

The committee of the Omaha Real Estate exchange having the matter in charge has worked indefatigably for the success of the excursion. The necessary transportation has been secured throughout and a representative party of Nebraskans has been made up. The committee will at once make official application to the exposition management for a large quantity of exposition literature to take along on the trip, and will also ask for the appointment of the two best exposition orators that can accompany the party to make addresses at all points where stops will be made.

Wants to Settle His Defalcation. E. C. Hockenberger, the defaulting ex-county treasurer and ex-secretary of the school district of Grand Island, has again made the proposition to the board of education of that city to pay the board $1,000 if it would recommend to the county attorney to dismiss the criminal proceedings against Hockenberger. The latter has once been tried on the charges of embezzling school district money, and on his own confession that he falsified the records to cover up a previous shortage he was found guilty. The case has been appealed to the supreme court and by it remanded back for a new trial. It is said by the defense that Hockenberger never took the actual cash which he embezzled, and on this technicality it is believed by many that he will never be convicted.

State Liquor Dealers. It has been decided to hold a state meeting of saloon men in Omaha October 14, with a view to perfecting a state organization of saloon keepers to be known as the Protective Liquor Dealers' association. The effort is intended to bring to Omaha in '98 the national association, which holds its meeting in Indianapolis this year. All retail dealers throughout the state will be urged to attend the October meeting and Omaha's wholesale trade will be looked after.

Arrested Under the Postal Laws. John L. Estabrook of Guide Rock, Neb., was brought before U. S. Commissioner Bode at Grand Island, by Deputy U. S. Marshal Cooley of Lincoln, charged with using the United States mails for fraudulent purposes. It is alleged in the complaint that Estabrook, under the fictitious name A. F. Newton, wrote a letter to one Dordua of Guide Rock, the purpose of which letter was to defraud Dordua out of $300.

Beet Crop is Excellent. The first week of the beet sugar manufacturing campaign is passed, says a Grand Island dispatch, and an extra fine quality of sugar is being manufactured from the beets this year. The output has never been equalled and it is certainly an excellent crop for the factory. Some of the beets have tested as high as 18 per cent sugar, with a purity coefficient of 90. There are not many beets in California that will test higher than this.

Deserted and Tried Suicide. Mrs. E. E. Jacobs, wife of the porter at the Lepin Hotel, Hastings, made an attempt to commit suicide by taking a dose of toothach drops, containing creosote, but was saved by the timely arrival of a physician. Mrs. Jacobs came from St. Louis, Mo., following her husband who had left her. In explanation of her attempt upon her life she said that she had discovered that her husband no longer loved her, and she had nothing to live for.

Chase County's Immense Crop. Farmers in Chase county have about finished their threshing. The wheat crop has turned out better than at first anticipated, spring wheat ranging from five to fifteen bushels per acre. Chase county never had such a corn crop in its history. Many fields from 75 to 100 acres are estimated to yield from forty to sixty bushels per acre, and it is about all matured.

The Circassia Near Port. QUEENSTOWN, Sept. 18.—The overdue Anchor line steamer Circassia, which left New York August 28 for Glasgow and which should have reached that port Thursday, September 9, was sighted this morning off Kinsale head, in tow of the British steamer Memnon Captain Bales, from Montreal. September 5 the Circassia was met by the Thingvall line steamer Island, from New York, and taken in tow by the latter as it was in a disabled condition. Owing to the heavy sea which prevailed, the hawser parted and the Island was forced to go on.

Section Hand's Rich Find. SEDALIA, Mo., Sept. 18.—Mike Kegney, a Missouri, Kansas & Texas section hand, while working yesterday on the company's right of way near Beaman, unearthed a rusty iron tea kettle containing gold and silver coins amounting, it is reported, to about $1,200. The coins consisted of Spanish silver dollars, a few California $50 gold pieces and other coins of American mintage. The money is supposed to have been buried in 1861 by a farmer by the name of John Emory, who died at Beaman some fifteen years ago without disclosing where he had hidden his treasure.

Odd Inventions. In the accompanying illustrations, we show three machine movements, which were once patented, but are now public property. In the first is shown what is known as a disk and friction brush movement. In the second, the vertical bar is reciprocated by means of the slotted cam, while in the third the wheel, A, turns five times to one revolution of the wheel, B. Inventors will probably be interested in knowing that the United States Court recently decided that to defeat a patent for a combination, it is not enough to show that all the elements of the combination, separately considered, were old at the time of the invention. Inventors desiring free information as to patents, may obtain the same in addressing Sues & Co., attorneys at law and patent experts, Bee Building, Omaha, Nebraska.

Iowa Patent Office Report. Thirty patents were issued Aug. 31, to one inventor, F. H. Richards, of Hartford, Conn., for thirty different weighing machines.

The secretary of a company in Lake View, Iowa, says: "We recorded our assignment in the county where we do business," and asks, "Should it be recorded anywhere else?" Answer: Recording any paper that affects the title to a patented invention in a county or state is not a legal notice to the public. The following is the law upon the subject:

Sec. 4898. Every patent, or any interest therein, shall be assignable in law by an instrument in writing and the patentee or his assigns or legal representatives may in like manner grant and convey an exclusive right under his patent to the whole or any specified part of the United States. An assignment, grant or conveyance shall be void as against any subsequent purchaser or mortgagee for a valuable consideration, without notice, unless it is recorded in the patent office within three months from the date thereof.
