POLITICAL GOSSIP FROM WASHINGTON.

Washington, May 4 (Special Correspondence.)—Farmers all over this country are considerably stirred up over rural credits legislation," said a southern member of congress. "The idea has come to be quite prevalent that the administration has 'cold feet' on the rural credits proposition and that the proposed bill, which has the backing of the president, is merely makeshift and not what the farmers of the country want. My mail is filled with protests from farmers, and other members tell me the same thing. It is being quietly whispered about, that the administration, which two years ago was in favor of rural credits, has grown lukewarm on the subject. The farmers throughout the country are not to be fooled and they are giving the men who are back of this rural credits proposition some anxious moments. It is stated about the capitol that the plan was to pass a rural credits bill just previous to adjournment at this session, which falls far short of the demands of the farmers of the country. I think it is a mighty good thing the farmers are 'smoking the president out' on this proposition."

"I have served in many congresses, but I must say that this session of the 64th has accomplished about as little as any in the history of the government," said a middle-west democratic member. "Here we have been in session nearly five months and practically nothing has been done. None of the great questions confronting us has been solved or met and there is no telling when they will be. Here our revenues are falling behind appallingly and yet nothing is being done to replenish them. The democratic party cannot continue this do-nothing policy and expect to get away with it. Our party leaders seem all at sea and are not pulling together in unison or harmony. This congress must wake up pretty soon and do something or a good many of us will not be here after this session."

"The trimming the Bryan family got in Nebraska in the recent primaries, shows that the once peerless leader is slipping badly," said a western democratic member. "The truth is that the people have got tired of the dictation of Bryan. Any man in any party who assumes to do all of the thinking for the party and who takes on himself the prerogative of settling all public questions, is riding to a fall. When you get right down to brass tacks, the American people do their own thinking, and they have never yet failed to rebuke the men who thought for a fleeting moment they ruled the universe."

A recent visitor at the capitol was National Committeeman V. L. Highland, of West Virginia. He was most optimistic as to the republican situation in his state. He said that there is already great interest manifested in the primaries to choose delegates to the coming national republican convention. They will be held on May 4th. Speaking of the political outlook in West Virginia, he said: "There is no question as to the way our state will go in the general election. We shall carry West Virginia for the national and state tickets and elect an almost entire republican delegation to the next congress."

"I can tell you the administration is 'sweating' some on this Mexican proposition," said a democratic congressman from one of the border states. "President Wilson has at last discovered that when he joined hands with Carranza he got hold of a red hot poker. He is trying to let loose now and he cannot. I am pretty well satisfied that he is looking for a chance to back out of Mexico and get the American troops away. I am not a good democrat, but let me say one thing. If the administration pulls the troops out of Mexico after all this ado and after what has happened down there, then in my opinion, you can sing the 'swan song' for our party. We will be buried beneath the 'votes of the American people and we ought to be."

THE EXPECTED HAS HAPPENED.
The issuing of bonds in time of peace for the purpose of paying governmental expenses is purely a democratic procedure. Cleveland did it; and now Wilson will do it.

The army bill which has just passed the senate contains a provision for the expenditure of fifteen million dollars for the establishment of water-power plants for the manufacture of nitrates to be used in the production of munitions and for fertilizers. The money is to be procured by the issuance and sale of that sum in Canal bonds.

The canal, it will be remembered, was constructed at a cost running into the hundreds of millions and was paid for, largely, out of the current receipts of the treasury as provided in the wise revenue laws for which the republican party stood sponsor. In effect, we republicans built the canal out of the small change in the nation's purse. But the democrats, to find fifteen millions, have to issue bonds. A bond issue was confidently predicted as one of the certain results of a democratic administration and, sure enough it is to occur. It is the happening of the expected.

An explorer in South America has discovered the remnants of the well-nigh extinct tribe of the Pikipitanges, consisting of a chief, six women and two boys. They will be joined, early in November, by the remnants of the democratic party in the United States.

The man behind the gun is cutting a big swath in Europe just now, but the lad behind the plow keeps right on with his forward movement in the U. S. A.

If war comes some men will fight from choice, a few from necessity, and the majority will let the other fellows do their fighting.

POLITICAL CHATTER.

From April 4 to April 11, the "free cash" in the treasury decreased, even according to McAdoo's fanciful form of statement, $3,371,517. Small wonder that the democrats in the senate, when voting fifteen millions for a nitrate plant, provided for an issue of Panama Canal bonds to meet the cost of the item.

The Bryan family seems to be nearing the end of its road in Nebraska politics. Brother Charlie was denied the nomination for governor which he wanted from the democrats and Brother Bill turned up as tail-end on the ticket for delegates to the St. Louis convention. And, as a means of rubbing it in, Henry Ford, who stands for the Bryan policy in pacifism, was a drawing card in the republican primaries held at the same time.

Two political sensations that were sprung in the State of Utah lately have brought consternation to the democrats. Mr. N. L. Morris, a delegate to the progressive state convention, started the delegates with the statement that so far as fundamental principles were concerned, the republicans and progressives stood on common ground. He returned to the republican camp and was accompanied by many other members of the progressive party. He was elected a delegate to the republican judicial convention, in which he participated.

The other sensation was the announcement of former State Senator Bamberg, a life long democrat, that he is not only opposed to the removal of the tariff on sugar but recognizes the need of a tariff "on more things than one to protect the farmers, manufacturers, and workmen of this country." Senator Bamberg is a prominent business man in Utah, and was assured of the democratic nomination for the United States senate if he would accept it. He declined, evidently because he was no longer in sympathy with the policy of his party.

Fifty-nine infants and adults were baptised during the morning and two more at the evening services. Ninety-nine were given the right hand of fellowship at the morning services and one in the evening. At Wiggle Creek in the afternoon, a class was organized with fourteen members making a total of 118 during the day. The doors of the church will be thrown open again next Sunday at both services for the reception of members.

PROCLAMATION.

Whereas the Mayor and City Council upon an inspection of the streets and alleys of Loup City, find that many of our respected citizens have been dumping refuse, ashes, manure and other unsanitary substances into the streets and alleys of this city, contrary to the public health and laws.

Therefore relying upon the public spirit of its said citizens and that they will co-operate in an endeavor to help clean up and beautify the city, the council has heretofore designated May 10th, 1916, as annual clean up day, and requests that all those who have dumped such refuse upon the alleys or streets of this city, remove same on said date, and also clean up all yards and plots of ground from unsightly or unsanitary matter.

The citizens are further requested to entirely refrain from the dumping of any refuse of any nature whatever into any street or alley hereafter, the same being contrary to the law and a public nuisance.

In case this proclamation is not complied with and such refuse removed from said streets and alleys not later than by May 15th, 1916, the city authorities will then take steps to remove such refuse from said streets and alleys and assess the expense thereof, together with proper legal penalty, against those who have violated said laws.

The mayor and council rely upon the friendly co-operation of the citizens in thus cleaning up the city.

R. H. MATHEW, Mayor.

The Dinosaur was a prehistoric animal of great size that was weighted down by its own hide of armor. The advocates of a tremendous standing army have been likened to it. The Dodo is a bird that can't fight, can't fly, can't run, can't protect its own or itself. The name of Dodo has been hung onto people who want no army, who do not believe in preparedness of any nature, who would turn the other cheek and take another whack. Both extremes appear to us to be even more than unwise. They appear to be even foolish, the one inviting arrogance and the other courting prompt disaster. Far better would it be to have a navy capable of protecting the vulnerable points of our coast, an Army of 200,000 or 250,000, and a National Guard in the different states expanded to approximately a million men under federal supervision and removed from political interference or dictation. Such a course would practically insure immunity from foreign invasion, or at least the ability to wage a successful war in the event of attack, and at the same time would keep the expense of maintaining our armed forces down to the minimum.
