The Value of Thrift

As individuals, and as a nation, we are the most extravagant people in the world. This state of affairs has largely come about within the memory of most of our older citizens.

It has come from the unprecedented development of the country, and the vast fortunes and amount of money made during the last forty years.

It is a common saying that America is the most prosperous country on the globe. This may be true at the present time, but looking forward fifty years, if this present extravagance continues, it will bring disaster and misery.
