pire Schroll was square on both sides so no rag chewing was necessary.

J. W. Peters had the misfortune one day last week of losing a 40x40 barn which was struck by lightning on his farm in Holt county which is occupied by his son, Stanley. The loss inside was seven tons of hay, two sets of harness, one single harness, one saddle and one horse which was owned by a traveling man. The other horse got loose in some way and was saved. Insurance covered more than half.

Roosevelt's "strong support" for Hughes' "undiluted Americanism," makes a combination such as no national campaign has seen for years.

Consideration for others squeezes out the thought that this is fine weather for loafing.

IMPROVED SERVICE TO HAWAII.

The Burlington railroad announces that in conjunction with the Great Northern Pacific S. S. Co., a new and improved service to Honolulu—"The Paradise of the Pacific"—on the S. S. Great Northern—"The Palace of the Pacific" will be inaugurated from San Francisco this fall. This is the luxurious greyhound that broke the record last year, and makes the trip with but four nights at sea. She will make eight round trips this season, leaving San Francisco on November 7th and about every twenty days thereafter to and including April 3rd.

The vanity of some people is equalled only by their vanity, and you can always spot them in any crowd.

Try Chase's first—it pays.

NEW REVENUE LAW

The new revenue bill was passed in the senate Tuesday of last week. It then required the approval of the house on changes made and then it was ready for the president's signature.

It is the last big measure of the administration and it contains many features of unusual interest. In its passage in the senate, five republicans joined in voting for it in connection with all the democratic senators. The republican senators were: Cummins and Kenyon of Iowa; LaFollette of Wisconsin; Norris of Nebraska, and Clapp of Minnesota.

This revenue bill lays emphasis on taxes on inheritance; owners of great wealth have their estate subject to an inheritance tax increasing in proportion according to the largeness of the estate. Increases are also made in this bill on the income tax but the minimum is left as it has been heretofore. The incomes of the very rich are taxed higher in the new measure than they were in the old one. A tax on war munitions is another feature new in the revenue bill. One of the most important features carried in the passage of the measure is the creating of a tariff commission. This will be hailed with unusual satisfaction by all except those whose interests are tied up with special interests that have been given such tariffs heretofore that all competition was destroyed. The great rank and file of the people will be glad to have the tariff put in the hands of the commission so that every subject can be tested on its merits and given such protection as required, doing away with the politics and the trades that have characterized the passage of tariff bills direct by congress. In recognition of the fact that this country was at the mercy of foreign manufacturers in all dye stuffs used here, the new revenue measure puts a direct protective tariff on dye stuffs so that they can be manufactured at home and given protection so that the business can be made profitable. Another feature of the bill is a proviso for protecting American manufacturers from "dumping" all the end of the war when it is felt that European countries will attempt to flood this market.

Two amendments were added to the bill by the senate that give this government power to retaliate against trade black lists and against interference with the mails in connection with foreign business. The amendments authorize the president of the United States to deny the use of mails and other methods of communication in this country to citizens of any belligerent nation which does not accord equal facilities to American citizens or corporations. Power is given the government to hold clearances from vessels in American ports which are subjecting citizens of the United States at home or abroad to any undue discrimination in regard to transportation of freight or passengers.

These provisions have been incorporated in the new revenue law to give this country power to stop illegal interference with its mails and to stop any system of blackmail such as the English government has recently attempted to enforce. The new tariff commission under this act will consist of six members to whom all questions relating to the operation of the tariff laws or the tariff relations between this government and foreign countries, will be referred. This commission will investigate and report to the committees of congress whatever changes and modifications are warranted.

In the many constructive measures that have recently been put upon the statute books, of the many measures looking to the settlement of questions of large interest, the new revenue law is one of the most complete and far reaching of any of them and it promises to not only raise the revenue required, but to raise it in the least objectionable way and with the least hardship to those who pay. At the same time, it is a measure that clears the atmosphere along tariff lines and along inheritance and income tax lines so that these features for raising revenue will be on a more permanent basis.—Trade Review.
