LIVE STOCK PRICES AT SOUTH OMAHA

Cattle Market Steady to Stronger; Heavy Receipts

BEST HOGS 5-10c HIGHER

Sharp Upturn in Fat Lamb Values; Trade 15@25c Higher Than Close of Last Week. Tops Bring $10.25—Bulk of Supply at $9.75@10.00. Other Classes About Steady. Feeders Firm—Fat Sheep Bring Last Week's Figures—Good Breeder Demand.

Union Stock Yards, South Omaha, Nebraska, October 10, 1916.—The week opened with a large run of cattle, some 597 cars, or about 15,000 head being reported in up to noon. Strictly choice corn fed beefs are quotable around $10.00@10.60, and the fair to good, 1,050 to 1,300-pound beefs are selling largely around $8.75@9.50. Notwithstanding the sharp advance in cows and heifers last week and the liberal offerings Monday there was a vigorous demand from all quarters and the market ruled active and stronger all around for the stock.

Quotations on cattle: Good to choice beefs, $10.00@10.60; fair to good beefs, $8.75@9.75; common to fair beefs, $6.50@8.50; good to choice heifers, $6.75@7.25; good to choice cows, $6.40@7.00; fair to good cows, $5.75@6.40; canners and cutters, $4.50@5.50; veal calves, $8.00@11.00; bulls, $5.25@6.75.

Real good hogs were comparatively scarce on Monday's market, and as shippers had orders for some loads of that sort, the competition was very keen on most of the desirable stuff that was here, order buyers taking a few loads on a strong to 5@10c higher basis. A top of $9.45 was paid for one load, this price being the highest for a week. Bulk of the offerings moved at a spread of $9.10@9.20, with the top, as noted above, at $9.45.

Sheep and lamb receipts for Monday were very liberal, supplies amounting to 137 cars or about 38,000 head. While the fast lamb trade was a little slow in starting, it was a sharply higher affair. Sellers went after a big advance, and while packers took their time about it they finally gave in, paying prices that were 15@25c higher than last week's close. One shipment of good lambs topped the market at $10.25. Feeding lambs sold about steady with last week's close, and some traders thought that if anything values were stronger, but there was no quotable change. Feeding ewes were scarce, most of the offerings going for breeders.

GARRET H. LORENZ Democratic Candidate for County Treasurer of Sherman County.

SHIFTY WILSON ON COLONEL'S BODKIN

Elusive Balancer on String of Words Pinned Down by Proof That in Fifteen Public Utterances He Took Forty-One Different Positions on Preparedness.

EACH STAND CONTRADICTED FROM 1 TO 6 OF THE OTHERS

Democratic Candidate Said That Our Army Was Ample and That We Did Not Have Enough Troops to Patrol the Border; That We were on the Verge of a Maelstrom and That There Was No Critical Situation; That the National Guard Would Not Do and Then That It Must Do.

In the fourteen months extending from December 8th, 1914, to February 10th, 1916, there were fifteen messages, letters and speeches of President Wilson which I have read. In these fifteen messages, letters and speeches, during those fourteen months, President Wilson took forty-one different positions about preparedness and the measures necessary to secure it; and each of these forty-one positions contradicted from one to six of the others. In many of his speeches the weasel words of one portion of the speech took all the meaning out of that speech; and these latter words themselves had a weasel significance as regards yet other words. He argued for preparedness, and against preparedness. He stated that our army was ample; and that we did not have enough troops to patrol the Mexican border in time of peace. He said the world was on fire, and that sparks were liable to drop anywhere and cause us to burst into flame; and he also said that there was no immediate danger. He said that there was no sudden crisis; and then again that he did not know what a single day would bring forth. He said that we were on the verge of a maelstrom; and then that there was no special or critical situation. He said the danger was constant and immediate; and also that we were not threatened from any quarter. He said that there was no fear among us; and also that we were in daily danger of seeing the vital interest and honor of the country menaced and the flag of the United States stained with ignominy. He said that we were in very critical danger of being involved in the great European struggle; and also that there was no need to discuss the question of defense, or to get nervous or excited about it. In one and the same speech, he said that a sufficient number of men would volunteer, and that if they did not he would be ashamed of America; and he also said that he did not know of any law which laid upon them the duty of coming into the army, if it should be necessary to call for volunteers. He said that we needed 500,000 volunteers, and that if there was any legitimate criticism of this demand it was because it was too small; and as soon as a Congressman had objected to the plan, he promptly abandoned it. He said that the National Guard was not the proper body upon which to rely; and then not only changed his own mind but forced his own Secretary of War out of his cabinet, because this Secretary possessed less flexible convictions and was unable instantly to reverse himself when going at full speed.—From the Speech of Colonel Roosevelt at Battle Creek, Michigan, in Behalf of Mr. Hughes.

WILSON DEEMED IT FUTILE TO STAND FIRMLY

President Wilson seeks to justify himself on the ground that it was "futile" and dangerous to "stand firmly." This is an appeal that can with equal truth be made by every soldier who runs away in battle. He further alleges his belief that the cause he championed "has the sanction of the judgment of society in its favor." I remember thirty-two years ago in the Black Hills a local vigilance committee which was in doubt about hanging a suspected wrongdoer. While they were discussing the matter, there appeared over the neighboring divide a frowsy, elderly horseman in a linen duster, who promptly galloped towards them waving his arms and shouting "Hang him! Hang him!" The leader of the vigilantes at once asked the frowsy stranger what he knew of the facts, whereupon the stranger answered: "I do not know anything about the fact; and I never saw the man before; but there's eleven of you and only one of him, and I believe in majority rule!" This is merely a picturesque paraphrase of what Mr. Wilson calls action under "the sanction of society." It exemplifies the principle upon which President Wilson has acted in those public matters, internal and external, where he was threatened with the use of force.—From the Speech of Colonel Roosevelt at Battle Creek, Michigan, in Behalf of Mr. Hughes.

There's at least one satisfaction in the European war. All sides are victorious.

FINNEGAN'S PHILOSOPHY BALAAM.

"Well do I mind the story," said Finnegan. "Balaam was a highbrow that knew less than his Jackass. He took an office to curse the people. The Jackass saved them. 'Tis all in Number Twenty-two, Och, hone!' 'Tis different these times. The Jackass knew better till Balaam tamed him. 'Lave me ride ye,' says Balaam, 'an' I'll make ye the biggest Ass in the world.' 'Great,' says the Ass; 'what d'ye feed?' 'Tork,' says Balaam. 'Me savior,' says the Ass. 'So Balaam mounts. But soon the Jack balks. 'Phwat is it?' says Balaam. 'Snakes,' says the Ass; 'Ut looks like the jawbone uv me mother.' 'G'wan,' says Balaam, hittin' the Ass a clip. 'Tis me furren polley,' he says. 'Phwat's ut for?' axes the Ass. 'Ut defnds the nashun,' says Balaam. 'How?' says the Ass. 'Faith,' says Balaam, 'ut takes a bigger Ass than you to know that. Lave it to Brine,' says Balaam to the Ass; an' the Jack walks on meditative.' 'Hee, haw,' says the Ass, balkin' an' kickin'. 'What now?' says Balaam. 'Divil a Jackass ever seen the like,' says the Ass. 'Ut could be a frog,' says he, 'for ut stands up in front, and sits down behind; an' 'tis mostly mouth,' says the Ass. 'Ut has white feathers,' says the Jack, 'wid yaller streaks, that changes,' he says, 'to Very Crooz Red, or Niagara Blue, an' now they're Carrysall Yaller again,' says he. 'Hivins, have I been drinkin'?' screams the Ass to Balaam. 'Sants be praised,' says Balaam. 'Me Watchful Waitin' can still change its mind,' he says. 'G'wan, where glory waits,' he says. 'G'wan, in the service uv Mankind,' says Balaam to the Ass, touchin' him up. An' the Ass shuffles ahead, wavin' his ears in admiration. 'Hee-haw! Hee-haw!' says the Jack, renrin' up wid his eyes bulgin'. 'Phwat's grippin' ye now?' says Balaam, impashunt like. 'I dunno,' says the Ass. 'Ut looks like the Flyin' Dutchman with a Socialist Crew,' he says. 'Tis me Ship Bill,' says Balaam. 'Side step to the right,' he says; 'side step to the left,' says he, wettin' him. 'Back up,' says Balaam, near wrenchin' off the Jack's jaw. 'Now forward for the Merchant Marine an' fifty million pork,' says Balaam wid a shower uv blows; an' the Ass goes on thremblin'. 'Wah-hee! Wah-hee! Wah-hee!' says the Jack, shyn' so he near threw his rider. 'Til learn ye to shy at me Naval Bill,' says Balaam, lar-rupin' the baste so he cud scarce stand. 'Ye can't pass ut widout wearin' Republican clothes,' says the Jack in a coarse whisper. 'Ye Ass,' says Balaam. 'Don't ye know that anny clothes is better nor nakedness?' G'wan,' says Balaam, in tones uv thunder. So the poor baste lozes on, limp' wid pain. 'Tis not time to tell ye all the adventures they had, but they kept on over rough roads, now an' then crossin' a ditch on a wam term plank, which made even Balaam unaisy. Firty time the Jack kicked, he got sharp rattans an' a wallop. So when the journey was near over, the poor baste was all in, and far too proud to fight. Any Jack-Ass can be that widon he's kicked. 'Wan stormy night, the Jack blooms into a harmony like a Dimycrat Tariff Hymn played on a gaspipe wid the feet. 'Phwat ails ye now?' calls Balaam, clubbin' him wid both hands. 'Nivver did I pass the like,' yells the Ass, sweating and thremblin'. 'Ut says ut's an eight hour law. Oh, phwat is ut?' screams the Ass to Balaam, feebly waggin' his ears. 'I dunno phwat ut is meself,' says Balaam, 'but I know phwat ut's got,' Balaam says. 'Phwat?' axes the poor Ass. 'Five hundred thousand votes,' says Balaam, wid a pious air. 'G'wan, ye big Ass, an' don't ye argue wid an Idylst,' says Balaam to the Ass. 'We can't pass ut in the dark,' pleads the Ass. 'Lave us wait for light,' moans the Ass, weepin'. 'Nix,' says Balaam. 'There's a hot time comin' an' the votes'll spile. Do ye thirst for sixteen more years in the wilderness?' Giddap,' says he, 'purrin' y'er heart,' says Balaam, 'iv ivry thought that's selfish,' says Balaam, 'or personal,' chants Balaam to the poor Ass ticklin' the Jack's slats wid a couplin' pin. 'By this time the Ass was so wore out wid his arduous labors, that he knew no more than Balaam himself. So, wid one despairin' cry, he dropped his ears, as he an' his master stumbled forward into the dark.'
