THE RISE AND FALL OF PRESIDENTS.

History records that Andrew Jackson was elected in 1822 and was the last democratic president up to the present time to succeed himself. Martin VanBuren followed Andrew Jackson, but since the Whig party was formed only one democratic president, Franklin Pierce, has had a democratic successor.

The federal party lasted twelve years, and Washington and Adams belonged to it. Adams' administration was so unpopular that it killed the party. The Whig party was in power eight years. The democratic party is the only political organization dating back to the early days of the republic having named the presidents for 64 years. The republican party has controlled during 41 years.

George Washington was 57 years old when inaugurated, and he was sworn in at the head of Wall Street, April 30, 1789. A statute in front of the sub-treasury, marks the spot. The campaign was conducted in a narrow area, only 100 to 200 miles wide along the coast from Boston to Savannah; and less than 4,000,000 people were concerned.

John Adams served but one term, and sixteen states cast their electoral vote for him. The leaning of the federalistic party become aristocratic and it died. However, Adams did not, and he lived to be 91.

Thomas Jefferson was a member of Washington's cabinet, and the founder of the democratic party. He was the first president to be inaugurated in the new capitol at Washington.

James Madison was a democrat, as also was James Monroe, and the latter did good work in fixing up our present constitution. John Quincy Adams, who had attained distinction as a diplomat, followed, and he, as well as his successor, Andrew Jackson, belonged to the democratic party. Jackson had great natural power, and it is related in his biography that he was taken prisoner at one time by the British. An officer ordered him to clean his boots, and Jackson indignantly refused, and was struck a severe blow on his face with a sword, which left him scarred for life.

Martin VanBuren came next, being elected from the votes of 26 states. He was a democrat, and his administration was marked by troubles with Indians.

The Whig came into power by the election of William Henry Harrison. The new president caught a severe cold at the inauguration, and died within a month. John Tyler served out the term.

The democrats returned to power with James K. Polk, who had the Mexican war on his hands. The Oregon boundary line was established in this administration, and the Department of Interior was created.

The Whigs won the following election, with Zachary Taylor, who was a military hero on account of his part in the Seminole and Mexican wars.

He died in office, and the term was completed by Millard Fillmore, who served for three years.

Franklin Pierce, a democrat, followed. Then came James Buchanan, of the same party. Buchanan subdued the Mormons in Utah, and John Brown's raid at Harper's Ferry was during his administration.

Abraham Lincoln was elected by the republicans, and 33 states voted in the electoral college. He was succeeded by Andrew Johnson, and the latter was impeached by the House, but acquitted in the Senate.

U. S. Grant was a republican, and a military hero. At the close of his term he went around the world, and was received everywhere with great pomp and ceremony. He engaged in banking in New York, but the firm of Grant & Ward failed. Grant wrote his memoirs, and the family fortune was reestablished.

Rutherford B. Hayes defeated Jas. G. Blaine for the republican nomination, and served after a great contest in which many democrats claim until this day that Tilden should have had the office.

James A. Garfield was elected as a republican, and his term was filled out by Chester A. Arthur.

Then followed Grover Cleveland, first of the democratic presidents since the civil war. He was the first president to be married in the White House. Benjamin Harrison succeeded him as a republican, but Cleveland came back at the expiration of the Harrison term.

Then followed William McKinley, Theodore Roosevelt and William Howard Taft, republicans. Then Woodrow Wilson, democrat.

All of which "old truths" contain a good deal of "new information," or "things forgotten," for most people who have followed out this story.

THANKSGIVING.

From the time of the landing of the Pilgrim Fathers, Americans have been accustomed to set aside one day in the year wherein to review the past year and take stock of the dealings of Providence with us as a people.

What was at first the spontaneous expression of grateful hearts soon became a custom, and as the years sped this custom became fixed, until today it assumes the sacredness of a permanent institution.

This season is again with us. The fruits of the broad acres of our fair domain have been garnered in. The warehouse and granaries are fairly bursting with their contents and prosperity sets a guest at almost every fireside.

Our president and the governors of the various states have designated the day on which the people shall express to a bountiful Creator their gratitude for these blessings.

And to the many positive and material blessings which have been ours, there is added on this occasion the especial blessing that we as a people have escaped the madness that has fallen as a blight upon our neighbors and kinsmen across the waters. The magnitude of that blessing we cannot at this time begin to estimate.

But while we have these palpable blessings for which to be thankful, we have other things for which to express our gratitude, and these antedate and underlie our present happiness and prosperity, our peace and safety. We have to be thankful that back in the days when our nation was being born, a land of heroes, than whom the world has never produced greater, had impressed upon their hearts to lay the foundation of that nation upon the only possible true and lasting base—the Fatherhood of an omnipotent God and the brotherhood of man.

And we have to be thankful that all down the years since that time there have been heroic souls—worthy sons of noble sires—who have never ceased to call to us with clarion voice to watch and preserve the old landmarks, to plant our feet upon the everlasting rock and stand firm.

And over and above all else, we have to be thankful that a merciful God has so moulded the hearts and lives of the people of this nation that we are enabled to look above and beyond self and see for ourselves the great principles of eternal truth and justice that must ultimately rule the whole earth; that we are enabled to grasp the truth that an injury of ourselves, and that a kindness to our fellows calls down a benediction upon our own heads.

So that the one supreme blessing for which we should at this season return thanks, is the fact that our God has enabled us as a people to know and to do the right.

MEXICANS TRADE CATTLE FOR LEAD.

Mexico keeps right on handing it to us, diplomatically and commercially. It looks as if the democratic tariff law is an encouragement to Carranza to steal all he can lay his hands on and ship it over the border for sale in the American market. During the nine months ended September, 1916, we imported from Mexico $78,000,000 worth of goods, compared with $68,000,000 during the same period in 1915, and $59,000,000 during the first nine months of 1913 under republican rates of duty. We are getting some of it back in the way of a trade balance because of the sale of ammunition to the Mexican bandits—we are getting it back in two ways, in fact—in money, and in American soldiers and citizens filled full of American lead. But this looks like a rather expensive proceeding. A protective tariff law and an embargo would greatly simplify matters.

ROCKEFELLER BLOWS HIMSELF.

A report from Cleveland tells how John D. Rockefeller, who is supposed to be worth $1,000,000,000 went to a Sunday school rally and gave a penny to each of hundreds of children attending the affair. Perhaps John D. is hoarding pennies for such beneficent purposes which may account for the shortage of the copper coin.

Vast numbers of new dimes have been put into circulation. But bring the old ones along. We'll take them dirt and all.

CHARACTER IN READING. The Youth's Companion does more than entertain: it affords the reader a mental and normal tonic. Its stories are not only well told, contributed by the best writers of stories, but they maintain the standards, reflect the ideals of the best homes. They do not throw a false glamour over the tawdry things of life. Rather do they depict the courageous, the healthful, the simple—the true life of the greater number with their adventures, their conflicts of temperament, their failures and successes. In 1917 The Companion will print 12 serials and story groups besides fully 250 single stories and sketches, all for $2.00. The Forecast for 1917, which we will send on request, tells all about the great features of the coming volume.

By special arrangement new subscribers for The Youth's Companion can have also McCall's Magazine for 1917—both publications for $2.10. Our two-at-one price offer includes: 1. The Youth's Companion—52 issues of 1917. 2. All the remaining issues of 1916. 3. The Companion Home Calendar for 1917. 4. McCall's Magazine—12 fashion numbers of 1917. 5. One 15-cent McCall Dress Pattern your choice from your first number of the magazine—if you send a 2-cent stamp with your selection. THE YOUTH'S COMPANION, St. Paul St., Boston, Mass. MARKETING "SPRINGS." When marketing the "springs," a little pains taken to sort out the 1 1/2 to 2 pound broilers will pay, even at this time of the year, says the poultry department of the college of agriculture, Lincoln. It is the practice of the packer to separate these out and feed them on a milk fattening ration. He then puts them in cold storage, to be sold early the following spring as fancy broilers. He is glad to get them even if the producer is wise enough to ask three or four cents a pound premium.

UNCLE SAM'S MONEY IS UP.
What will be the attitude of the United States towards foreign commerce is a question very simply answered, if one will forget the matter as a political issue, and examine into the activities of the American International Corporation. The title indicates that foreign affairs are a question of concern. Fifty million dollars is "up," and such names of captains of finance and industry as Percy Rockefeller, Theodore N. Vail, Chas. A. Stone, Lovett, Corey, and a lot of others, appear behind the attempt to break in on the international game. That means that hundreds of millions of Yankee dollars have been pledged to one of the most colossal enterprises in the history of American business. South America, China, Europe and Asia, are being invaded with plans for financing enterprises and industry. American capitalists have arisen to the occasion, and while politicians have been talking it over, our big business men have actually gotten into the game. Tariffs, treaties, wars, navies—and all that sort of government concern, may take its regular course, but the mobilization of finance and industrial resources has not waited. It has organized for
