"ETERNAL PUNISHMENT."

When Woodrow Wilson became president of the United States, it was very generously advertised that he would attend the "Church of the Presidents," because that institution happened to be of Mr. Wilson's creed.

For some reason best known to himself, the president passed by the edifice where Lincoln worshipped, and where the original Lincoln pew remains in tact.

The pastor of this particular church on a recent occasion startled his congregation by his utterances on "Eternal Punishment." Answering the question "Is there a Hell?" the minister declared: "This question is one not to be answered by desire or fear, by mawkish sentiment or presumptuous logic but by Divine revelation. I am not disturbed by what you think God ought to be or do, but by what he says. In heaven itself praise is sung of the 'wrath of the Lamb.'"

The pastor declared that hell is not a place where physical agony is inflicted but he argued it is an exclusion from heaven. "It is restriction of liberty and privilege; it is the degradation of utter darkness; it is portion of awful memory and remorse; it is eternal companionship with the devil and his angels."

By reason of the great prominence of the church, this old-fashioned doctrine, though somewhat modified from the way in which it was preached half a century ago, attracted a lot of interest in the capital.

MUSICAL PROGRAM.

A very interesting and instructive musical entertainment was given at the opera house Friday by the grade children, grades one to six inclusive.

Mrs. Owen deserves credit and praise for her work along the musical line. She was very ably assisted by the teachers of each grade for each grade had to be well managed in order to give each student a part in the program.

The program was carried out well in every detail. The kindergarten giving as their selection the work they have every day. Their selections were well rendered and much appreciated by the audience. Those who had leading parts in the remainder of the program did their work well.

The patrons who attended were well pleased with the program. Those who had not attended missed a treat in music line. Patrons should feel interested in these activities in order to appreciate and get an insight into school life and work.

The next musical number will be a presentation of Hiawatha by the seventh and eighth grades. Watch for the date and come.

CITY COUNCIL MEETS.

Loup City council met in adjourned regular session of Nov. 10, Cooper, Collpriest and Ohlsen present.

Meeting was called to order by Mayor R. H. Mathew in the chair. The matter coming before the council at this meeting was to consider the granting of the request of the Hydraulic, Engineering and Machinery Co., of Lincoln for an advance of $300 on material used in construction of our new well. After careful invoice of the material, the request was granted and by motion allowed.

As the present well point is not what is needed in the new well, the Mayor was appointed as a committee of one to proceed and carry out to completion the well point proposition. By motion council adjourned till next regular meeting.

PETE ROWE, City Clerk.

Winter Pruning Against Apple Blotch.

The value of pruning may be increased by giving some attention to the removal of apple blotch cankers, says the agricultural botany Nebraska department of the Nebraska Experiment Station.

The blotch fungus has made its appearance in southeastern Nebraska and its eradication will require intelligent attention. In addition to summer spraying the removal of the blotch cankers on the smaller branches is to be recommended. These cankers may continue to enlarge for several years, a new crop of spores being produced each spring upon the newly invaded region. Removal of such cankered limbs may be combined with pruning to improve the shape of the tree and to increase fruit production.
