We have often heard of laying "plans," but we were a little slow to catch on this time. Boys what will you take?

The Third Nebraska, Bryans regiment was mustered out at Atlanta, Ga. last Thursday. But Bryan the man who deceived them was not in evidence.

It is unpleasant to be swindled at any point in the path but when a fellow is clearly bunkoed, he feels like giving a blind cow an ear of corn to kick him to death.

Will Governor Poynter be on the grand stand when the First Nebraska marches past or will he hide himself in shame when the band plays "See the Conquering Heroes Come."

The First Nebraska boys will be home it is hoped to celebrate the 4th of July with us, and if they do the state should endeavor to compensate them for the veto of the legislative vote of thanks.

Any man that sought to make political capital out of our war with Spain, should not hope to receive the plaudits of the American people. Billy Bryan must not expect them or he will be doomed to disappointment.

The bones of the patriot Garibaldi must rattle in their narrow grave at the spectacle of a cowardly Humbert undoing his noble work. But Bryan will never get the chance to disgrace the heroic work of McKinley.

The American people, whither in national or municipal affairs must assert their sovereignty, and let dictators, whither great or small, when they see the check shirt emerging from the darkness of thralldom be ware, "Caesar had his Brutus, Charles the I. his Cromwell," and the little dictators should profit by their experience.

Mr. Ramon Reyes Lals, an educated, Philippino says in Colliers Monthly, that the present insurgents do not constitute one third of the inhabitants of the archipelago, and that all the better classes want American rule of the islands. He says the reason they do not more emphatically declare themselves is because they are afraid that the little Americans may control the next administration and turn the islands over to Aginaldo, and that in such a case they could not look for any mercy from the dictator. He says the rebels rely wholly upon the attitude of our mistaken statesmen otherwise the war would not have occurred.

Lucien Stebbins, of North Platte, and in 1897 a pop legislator from that district has declared fusion a rampant fraud, and says that from this on the peoples party as organized by him a few years ago, will stand alone. He at the same time announces himself as a candidate for W. L. Greene's shoes, and seems to think he can win against the combined political elements of both old parties. He says both Allen and Bryan are Venal Vampires of the veriest variety. He says "Bryanism says the republicans do not want free silver and that is a good reason why democrats should want it." He warns "confusion pops" that "Bryan will soon have them eating grindstones because the republicans won't eat them." He says "Bryan will take you to some old deserted republican camp and point out some old sardine cans and broken vessels and invite you to fill yourselves. Anything a republican won't have is good enough for a democrat, and you will eat it and stand with your mouth open yawning for more. Anything to beat the republicans." Mr. Stebbins' head is level on that point but we will bet a cooney he don't go to congress.

Too Much Prosperity.
(Cleveland Plaindealer.)

The editor of the Free Silver Banner bent over his desk and wrote. Hot, scathing words oozed from the end of his fountain pen and scrawled across the white paper that he was spoiling for ever.

He denounced the government in the most fiery sentences at his command. He drew pathetic pen pictures of the misery of the people, under the rule of the money sharks and the land grabbers. "Starvation stalked across the land in seven-leagued boots. The monopoly organs boasted of the return of prosperity; but where was this prosperity? Who had seen it? Surely not the people who were compelled to earn their bread in the sweat of their brows."

As he got warmed up to his work the editor fairly ground his teeth. He tossed off sheet after sheet of matter that was calculated to show how all this misery—all these troubles—might have been avoided if Bryan had been elected, and he predicted a complete overturning of affairs in 1900. "They say prosperity is here," he wrote; "but nobody except the monopolists can find it. And, not being satisfied with the misery we have at home, they want to annex a lot more. What would Washington and Jefferson say if they could suddenly appear among us? Are our people going to permit this mistake to be made? We think not! Speed the day when this mockery they call prosperity will have been forced aside!"

He read his editorial through after it was finished, and smiled as he thought of the consternation it would spread among "the fools who thought they were satisfied with the existing order of things." Then he took the sheets to the foreman.

"No use settin' this up," said the latter, as he glanced through the stuff.

"Why?" asked the editor, with fire in his eyes.

"Because the business manager has just sent word in that he's got so many ads we'll have to use the editorial column to get 'em all in."

The editor walked back to his desk, sat down, ran his fingers through his hair, and muttered:

"D—n this prosperity, anyhow! Is there no escape from it?"

Is Mr. Hicks endeavoring to introduce an innovation in architecture in the west, when he places windows so that they will extend both above and below the second floor.

The cost of producing at the Greater America Exposition in Omaha this summer Pain's pyrotechnical reproduction of "The Fall of Manila" and "The Destruction of Cervera's Fleet" reaches a sum that would sustain an aristocratic and extravagant family in comparative luxury for a generation.

We have all due regard for professional men of every kind, but when an architect will run his brick wall 4 1/2 feet above the upper surface of the top joice for the purpose of getting space to put on a long bracket under the cornice, and then set an immensely heavy roof on top of these walls that stand up virtually without support from lateral motion, it is time to have a thorough investigation by practical men before his plans are used.

Mr. C. M. Llewellyn, who was sent to Cuba by the Greater America Exposition to arrange for the collection of an exhibit from the "Pea of the Antilles," has returned, having put a number of agents at work. Owing to the devastation wrought by the disastrous war, little of value can be secured from Cuba to manifest her agricultural and industrial resources, but many curios of the war have been secured and many curious relics of the days of Spanish cruelty and oppression. Nearly 100 Cubans will land in New York in a few days, en route to Omaha to establish on the Greater America Exposition grounds a Cuban village, in which the lives and pursuits of that people will be exemplified. Among them will be many of the patriotic warriors of prominence in the Cuban army. This will be a bigger and better attraction than any seen at the exposition last year.

Have You Heard Of It?

You may have heard about SCOTT'S EMULSION and have a vague notion that it is cod-liver oil with its bad taste and smell and all its other repulsive features. It is cod-liver oil, the purest and the best in the world, but made so palatable that almost everybody can take it. Nearly all children like it and ask for more.

SCOTT'S EMULSION

looks like cream; it nourishes the wasted body of the baby, child or adult better than cream or any other food in existence. It bears about the same relation to other emulsions that cream does to milk. If you have had any experience with other so-called "just as good" preparations, you will find that this is a fact.

The hypophosphites that are combined with the cod-liver oil give additional value to it because they tone up the nervous system and impart strength to the whole body.
